Field Marshall Haig evidently wants dry ground in which to "dig in" before Winter sets in with its rigors.

If the American motormen have collaborated and turned out a new motor, as given us by dispatches, it will be a big thing toward ending the war. There is no reason why they have not accomplished this, for American inventive genius is as big a thing creative as can be found anywhere.

The Daily Oregonians will soon arrive here at 7 a. m.

Miss Eva Carstens was in the city from Banks today.

Oscar Kelsay and family, of Clatskanie, were here this week, guests of relatives.

J. J. Meacham and wife, of Banks, have moved to Hillsboro for residence, and expect to remain here permanently.

Miss Bertha Rehse, of East Hillsboro, sustained a broken hip the other day, the result of a fall. Dr. E. H. Smith is attending the injury.

Fritz Rufener, of Helvetia, fell from a scaffold while painting, yesterday, and sustained a broken arm. Dr. J. O. Robb reduced the fracture.

RED CROSS

Red Cross leaders of the Northwest division held an all-day conference in Portland, Tuesday, Dr. K. A. J. McKenzie presiding. He told of the five million members and of the magnificent work the Northwest is doing. Mrs. C. D. Stimson, of Seattle, manager of division, with headquarters at Seattle, delivered an address replete with information of the work in progress. Less red tape and greater efficiency in filling the orders from the National Red Cross has been the motto since reorganization under the direction of Henry P. Davidson, appointed by President Wilson.

Mrs. Lucy Hilton, director of the Woman's Bureau, told of her challenge of the women of the East—and she stated that the Northwest division had filled its quota quicker than the East, notwithstanding the East had said the women of the Northwest were not properly in the spirit of Red Cross work.

A number of Portland officials entertained the out-of-town delegates at a luncheon, among whom were Mrs. C. W. Rollins and Miss Anna Lake. Later an inspection of the Red Cross supply room in the Lipman-Wolfe building, 8th floor, was held. The large shipment from the Hillsboro headquarters was received, and if the workers of the Washington County committees could have heard the unstinted praise of their handiwork they would have enjoyed it as much as the organizer. Every point of excellence was noted, and Mr. Lowengart, in charge of the supply rooms, said Hillsboro and Washington County were to be congratulated. By the end of October all the hospital equipment must be in and then a detailed report will be published.

Red Cross Benefit—
From now on there will be rehearsing and final preparations, and selling of tickets for the big Red Cross Benefit at the Crescent, Thursday evening, Oct. 25. The last benefit was such a success it is scarcely necessary to go into details of the program. It will surely be a good one and worth more than the money—50 cents reserved seats; balcony, 35 cents.

Mr. and Mrs. E. F. Sias visited with Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Buhman, of the Kansas City section, last week.

Mrs. Lottie Smith, accompanied by her son-in-law, Arthur Terrel, and his little daughter, of Eagle Pass, Texas, arrived here the first of the week, and will make their home here. At present they are guests of the families of Postmaster Lamkin and Mayor John M. Wall.

Treasures of the Tiber's Bed.

Father Tiber must be trembling in his bed over the quest for the gold supposed to lie in the foundations of the old temple of Jove, for the river has more than once been threatened. Lecky holds that its periodical flooding and bequest of marshes and malaria have been the salvation of Italy in preventing the Italian parliament, for reasons of health, from sitting long in session. Garibaldi had other views. He meant to fling the old river from Rome to Tivoli, so sent for that prince of engineers, Sir John Fowler. Fowler made the necessary surveys for diversion of the Tiber into the Anio, to canalize the malarial area and drain it into the sea. It would have been a great and romantic feat of engineering but honest John loved Garibaldi as faithfully as did the red shirted Thou sand. "It will cost you nine millions for the work and as much again for compensation. Don't think of it," he bluntly said. "Oh, you stubborn English!" laughed the hero. "Americans here would do the work for nothing merely to get the antiquities in the Tiber bed." But he took Fowler's advice.—London Chronicle.

The Misdemeanor Shark.

There seems to be some misunderstanding concerning the way in which sharks attack victims. Some claim that they turn over as they attack so as to bite more readily with their receding underjaw. Others claim, according to the Popular Science Monthly, that they attack head on, swimming to their victim in a straight line. According to J. E. Williamson, whose work in photographing the shark under water for motion picture plays has been notably successful, the "head-on" description of attack is the correct one.

"I can prove by my pictures that a shark does not turn over to bite," states Mr. Williamson. "If a shark wants to pick up anything from the bottom of the sea he goes right down to it as a cat pounces on a bone and picks it up. A shark does not turn over to bite any more than any other fish does."

Dealing in Diamonds.

There is no other form in which human wealth is so compact and so durable as in diamonds. A paper three inches long and an inch and a half wide will hold a king's ransom in a form that a million years will not harm and that not even fire itself, except the heat of the electric furnace and of the Bunsen burner, will destroy. You would think that anything so precious would be hedged about with a host of precautions. Just the opposite is true. Men go into the offices of wholesale diamond dealers, slip packages of marit stones worth thousands of dollars into their pockets and go away with no record of the transaction except a "memorandum." Half the business of many dealers in precious stones is done by letting goods go out "on memorandum." The one thing that the men in the trade guard more carefully than their diamonds is their credit.—Youth's Companion.

Lions Fear Mice.

Large beasts of prey have a strong antipathy to rats and mice, says the London Tit-Bits. When a mouse was thrown into a cage where there were two lions the animals leaped away, roaring, apparently with fright, and making efforts to get away from the tiny creature. A tiger roared with rage when first introduced to a mouse. Then he lowered his muzzle to smell it, but would have no more to do with it and made violent efforts to break from his cage.

Elephants screamed and trumpeted when mice were introduced, shrinking from them as far as their chains allowed. One elephant, however, more knowing than the rest, when a couple of mice were placed on the ground before him quietly placed his foot on them.

"Expire" in its literal sense is breathing out. Inspiration and expiration together constitute respiration. Isaac Walton observed that "if the inspiring or expiring organ of any animal be stopped it suddenly dies." The Romans spoke of "breathing out" the breath of life instead of "dying" by way of euphemism, just as they said "exit" (he has lived) instead of "he is dead." In all languages the reluctance frankly to say "dead" or "die" appears; hence such words and phrases as "pass away," "decease," "demise," "the departed," "the late," "no more," "if anything should happen to me."

His Answer.

"Now, Captain Wilson," said a certain brigadier general, according to a story which is told in London, "suppose you found your company cut off from the rest of the battalion, hopelessly outnumbered and surrounded on every side. What would you do?" "By Jove, sir, you are a pessimist!" replied Captain Wilson.

SUMMONS.

IN THE CIRCUIT COURT OF THE STATE OF OREGON FOR WASHINGTON COUNTY.

Loretta Isham, Plaintiff, v. G. E. Isham, defendant.

To G. E. Isham, the above named defendant:

In the name of the State of Oregon: You are hereby commanded and required to appear in the above entitled court and answer the complaint filed against you in the above entitled cause on or before the expiration of 6 weeks from the date of the first publication of this summons in the Hillsboro Argus, the first publication thereof being on Oct. 18, 1917 and the last publication thereof being on November 29, 1917, to-wit: on or before the 30th day of November, 1917; and you will please take notice that if you fail so to appear and answer said complaint, the plaintiff will apply to the court for the relief prayed for and demanded in her complaint, to-wit: for a decree dissolving the marriage and marriage contract existing between the defendant and the plaintiff upon the grounds of desertion. This summons is served upon you by publication by order of Hon. Geo. K. Bagley, Judge of the above entitled Court, made and dated at Hillsboro, Oregon, on the 17th day of October, 1917, and which order required that you appear and answer on or before the 30th day of November, 1917.

Passing of the Livery Stable.

Buggies are not often seen now in the big cities, but in the rural districts a great many buggies still are sold. It being suspected that for general courting purposes they are vastly superior to anything in the vehicle line yet invented.

But certainly the livery stable must by this time find business dull. Thus passes a great institution where the wits were wont to gather and discuss horses, men, politics and crops, but especially horses. In many a small town the livery stable office was really public opinion. The traveling men who came to engage a rig were always willing to discuss the affairs of the outside world; the farmers who left their horses to be fed while in town were as likely as not to loaf about the barn while their wives did the shopping; there to discuss crops and the weather, and of course no young man could hire a narrow seated rig without revealing, either by his actions or his speech, the progress of his affairs of the heart.—Indianapolis News.

Fall of the Bastille.

The famous French prison known as the Bastille was originally the Castle of Paris and was built by order of Charles V. between 1370 and 1383 as a defense against the English. When it came to be used as a state prison it was provided with vast bulwarks and ditches. The Bastille had four towers, of five stories each, on each of its larger sides, and it was partly in these towers and partly in underground cellars that the prisoners were situated. It was capable of containing from seventy to eighty persons, a number frequently reached during the reigns of Louis XIV. and Louis XV., the majority of them being persons of the highest rank. The Bastille was destroyed by the mob on July 15, 1789, and the governor and a number of his officers were killed. On its site now stands the column of July, erected in memory of the patriots of 1789 and 1830.

A Touch of Nature.

Just a dirty little yellow cur! I called him homeless until I heard a dirtier little urchin yelling, "Aw, gowan home!" and pelting him with stones. The youngster swore, and I felt sorry for the dog. I wanted to wring the urchin's neck and save the dog. Just as I was about to put my thought into action a big black limousine came swerving down the street. The child darted before it, grabbed the little yellow cur to his heart, and the two came rolling from beneath the whirling wheels. As I helped them from the gutter the boy was moaning. "Where are you hurt, boy?" I asked excitedly, turning him around on his sturdy bare legs. "Dey didn't hurt me—but—dey derin near got my dog!" wailed the urchin between dry sobs.—Columbus (O.) Dispatch.

Military Digits.

Men with long, tapering "piano" fingers are apt to desert after short service, while those having stubby digits, denoting stability of character and utter lack of the artistic temperament, usually stand by their boats and make the best marines. Although desertions from the marine corps are light at times, it has been said that actors, sign writers and strange to say, waiters furnish the largest number of deserters. Records, including finger prints, of all men enlisted in the corps are kept at headquarters for purposes of identification, and there are cases on record where bodies, with finger tips intact, have been positively identified through the finger print medium.—Philadelphia Press.

LINOIL

Automobile Top Dressing
Apply with a brush, thin as possible. Allow to dry, then apply another coat. As a finish for leather or patent leather use rag and rub it on very thin. Winter is coming and you will want that auto top fixed up like new, so it will be waterproof.

I will sell you the Linoil, or will dress your tops. Call and see me.
