Chinese Pheasant in Open Season for Month After Next Tuesday

BIRDS THOT NUMEROUS

War Demands on Young Men Mean Less Hunting This Season

The open season for Chinese, or Mongolian pheasants, Chinese and native pheasants, begins next Tuesday morning, and those who know say that the birds are rather plentiful this year. The not overly cold winter was favorable to game birds, and the summer has been fruitful. Hunters this year will not be as numerous as usual, there having been so many young men sent to the cantonments, and they are usually the boys who get out after the Chinas each fall.

Groups are more numerous than usual, and the native pheasant is about the only bird that hasn't an increase in population. No good reason is known for this excepting that they have gradually diminished from year to year. Clerk Kuratli has had quite a busy week selling hunter's licenses this presaging an exodus to the fields next week.

TWO HUNDRED TAKE UP DAIRY STRESS

Pass Urgent Resolution for Authorities at Washington

JUDGE BAGLEY CHAIRMAN

Address by J. D. Mickle, Promising Support to Dairy Herds

Nearly 200 dairymen and citizens attended the mass meeting at the court house Saturday night, to take up the matter of mill feed for the dairy stock of the county, and a ringing resolution was passed to be forwarded to Washington at once. The gist of the session was to start the ball rolling whereby mills here can grind grain so that there will be mill feed, such as bran and shorts for the feeding of dairy stock. Otherwise farmers must dispose of their herds.

Judge Geo. R. Bagley presided and stated the urgency of concerted action. He introduced Food and Dairy Commissioner J. D. Mickle, who made a pointed talk on the subject. A committee was named, including the chairman, and they retired to draft a resolution. Other talkers on the subject were D. B. Cooley, A. C. Slute, C. B. Buchanan, Chas. E. Wells.

The resolution forwarded read: "Whereas, the dairy herds of Western Oregon have, by years of careful breeding and selection, reached the highest rank in quality and have been the financial mainstay of the territory, and

Whereas, in response to the request of the government for more wheat, many farmers have, during the past season, reduced their acreage of other grains; and

Whereas, the small acreage of oats and other spring grains was practically a failure by reason of the drought, it followed, therefore, that the dependence of the dairy industry must be upon wheat for products; and

Whereas, it is the understanding of this convention that recent government milling restrictions require the milling of 20 other grains with wheat; and

Whereas, the mills of the Northwest have not the equipment nor can they, under war conditions, obtain it in time to save the situation and mill the substitute grains even were they procurable; and

Whereas, the shipping situation in the Northwest, by reason of the lack of ships, further tends to delay the production of wheat millstuffs so vitally necessary to preserve the dairy herds of Western Oregon; therefore, be it

Resolved, by the dairymen of Washington county, in convention assembled, that the situation as it exists today be represented to the national food administration and all members of congress from Oregon, that they should be advised of the imperative necessity that the Pacific Northwest wheat be milled by mills in this territory that the dairymen may have the benefit of the by-products; and further

Resolved, that the government be urged to provide sufficient shipping or storage facilities for flour manufactured that the mills may be continued in operation, and that such exception be made in relation to substitutes as will enable all mills to operate, and that conditions are such that prompt action is necessary to prevent the dispersion of our dairy herds.

The text of the resolution was night-lettered to Senator McNary and the Oregon delegation, and Judge Bagley has received the following reply from Senator McNary:

"Realize serious condition confronting dairymen and have given the subject matter of your telegram attention and am pursuing the matter aggressively."

Washington county is the first dairy county of the state and every effort will be made to hold the herds together. Relief is expected and if the mills start in the valley it will mean a godsend for the dairymen.

Smith had the old buck private on his feet in good shape, although he was just a trifle wobbly when it came to walking. He does pretty well, however, for a man who has had a rib crushed into a lung. Lamb was about as game as one would wish to see, and his many friends are glad to see him able to navigate.

W. F. Adkins, eldest son of the late Dr. J. E. Adkins, was out to Hillsboro Saturday, greeting his old friends. W. F. was raised in this city. He is now a commissary steward, second class, in the U. S. navy, and came over from Bremerton to go aboard ship out of Portland Will says the navy is the life and he enjoys it immensely. He has eight men under him and looks out for the food supplies. He says the government gives them a certain allowance and a part of his duties are to see that the commissary tallies out with the allowance for the crew.

TWO HORSES DROWN IN BACONA DEEP WELL

Team of C. C. Nelson, Driven by Son, Rudolph, Perish from Fall

SECOND TEAM LOST BY HIM

Other Pair of Horses Killed by Falling Tree on Mail Route

C. C. Nelson, of Bacona, lost his second team of horses by accident the other day. His son Rudolph had hitched up the animals to a wagon belonging to Peter Huffman, and was starting to go over to the Huffman place. He started the team down the hill without noticing that the tongue was shorter than the Nelson wagon. The tongue finally dropped out of the neck yoke and rushed the team. In trying to get out of the way both horses and the vehicle were precipitated against the Nelson pump. The pump was torn from its moorings and the cover ripped off, and both animals were precipitated into the well, which was 40 feet in depth. Both were killed instantly. Rudolph called help and when they went into the well they found the horses dead. A part of the harness, which was new, was taken off the bodies, and the well filled in.

The first team Mr. Nelson lost was killed by a falling tree, when Rudolph was carrying the mail. Rudolph says he is never going to drive a team again.

C. C. is philosophic over his loss and says he is only glad that the son, who is aged about 20, was not injured.

Enroute home Beers stopped off at Camp Lewis to visit his son, an enlisted man.
