THANKSGIVING

The Argus is thankful that this Thanksgiving Day is here with cessation of slaughter of our boys at the front; thankful that Americans have shown Europe that right must prevail; thankful that democracy has triumphed over autocracy; thankful that no more of our boys have been sacrificed; thankful that we have a President who voices the tenets of righteousness at all times; thankful that the boys "over there" are with us in spirit if not in flesh; and thankful that America has shown the way to victory in war-ridden Europe. Why shouldn't we all be thankful?

It is all over, and we don't mean to hurt anyone's feelings—but we won that war without Gen. Wood being sent to France, anyway, and it beats the band that we did it without Teddy heading a brigade. Really, wonders will never cease.

And, also, we are thankful that the Kaiser isn't thankful.

Uncle Sam caught his Turkey early in the game, and the "fix-ins" are coming later.

It is to be thankful that the bone-heads are still with us—without them there would be no laughs. Selah!

While we are thankful we also take time to extend our sympathy to those who have lost dear ones in the conflict.

Again, why shouldn't we be thankful that Bill Cuddy isn't going to get a shot at that minecopic the "Missus" is making. Ditto Hank Blair.
