TROUT FRY PLANTED

The Hillsboro Rod & Gun Club Sunday distributed 60,000 cut-throat trout in the tributaries of East Dairy. The youngsters came through in good shape and arrived here on a regular car at two o'clock Sunday morning. A like number of fry were sent on through to Forest Grove, and these were put in tributaries of Gales Creek. Carter's two trucks took out the tanks from Hillsboro, and Fred J. Sewell, Hal Taylor and Wm. Nelson went along to make the deposits in the streams. This deposit should help out the fishing on East Dairy in a year or so, and another consignment is expected this year if the Game Commission can possibly furnish them the hatcheries. The boys found the roads pretty slippery between here and East Dairy. Sewell says the youngsters were very active and took to the water like old water dogs. The club is trying to get a shipment for McKay Creek.

TO TOUR EAST

Unless plans go awry, a Hillsboro resident and Oreno farmer are going to tour from here to Minnesota with their machines, starting sometime the latter part of June. The two prospective travelers are John C. Bechen, of Oreno, and Aug. Tews. If they travel together they will have company and this will be worth considerable. Tews wants to see his brother back in Minnesota, and Bechen is of the same mind. The latter will have a day more of drive. If they make the trip they expect to go via Spokane.

A $6,000 PIPE ORGAN

O. Phelps, proprietor of the Liberty Theatre, has bought a six thousand dollar pipe organ, and it will be installed inside of sixty days or such a matter. The big musical instrument is one of the best in the state outside of Portland, and will be an innovation in theatre circles. The organ is pronounced by experts to be a classy affair, and will be a splendid addition to the Liberty. Mr. Phelps will do his own installation, and expects to have it ready for operation sometime in August. When installed it will be a big drawing card for the Liberty.

OPEN UP OREGON

The voters should not fail to pass at least two of the measures on ballot at election June 3, namely:

The amendment to the constitution authorizing the State to guarantee the interest on drainage or irrigation bonds for five years.

The State is not asked to pay or guarantee the bonds. The bonds are secured by local lands and are paid by local districts. During period of construction, and in preparing of his land for maximum production, the farmer is hard pressed for money, and the State of Oregon, by extending its credit to aid in development of his lands, without paying out a cent of taxpayers' money, makes it possible to develop all of these millions of acres of good farm land.

The interest, which State is asked to guarantee, will be paid by districts and State of Oregon simply acts as banker and financial agent for districts. It is extending results of Rural Credit act to organizations of farmers.

It will mean millions of dollars spent for construction work and hundreds of millions added to assessed valuation of state. It will give our discharged soldiers and sailors first chance to secure the land offered for sale at a price fixed by the state.

The other measure is the Roosevelt Highway. The whole state is interested in being linked with the other coast states by an all-year north and south highway which snow never blocks. This would give three great north and south, which with the cross roads east and west, would open up the whole state for development. Every citizen in the state should be interested in opening up the whole state for this is not an Eastern, Western, or Southern Oregon proposition—it is a state-wide proposition just as is the irrigation and drainage district measure.

For once let us forget sectionalism and get behind real estate development which will help us all.

Wanted—To buy for cash—about one acre of land with some bearing fruit trees and small house, equipped with plumbing and bath. Place must be on hard surfaced road.—Address, Wm. Raynard, Hillsboro, Oregon, R. 2.
