For Sale—Two Jersey heifers, one 2 years old, and the other a yearling.—A. O'Leary, Hillsboro, Or., R. 1, Box 10. 33-35

IN HIGH PLACES

By Walt Mason.
I have bought a grand piano and a sumptuous sedan, and a lot of other doodads, on the monthly payment plan. On each thing I paid a dollar, and I'll pay a month's more, till I'm laid away and sleeping underneath a sagging stone. It is true I didn't need them, and I haven't coin to burn, but I see my neighbors blowing every kopeck that they earn, and if they can have pianos and fine motors and such stuff, I will go as far as they do, though it makes the shedding tough. Every month I'll pay a dollar on the junk I do not need, till I limp around on crutches and my whiskers go to seed; and when I have crossed the river to the shining golden shore, I will still be owing money to the Jinx installment store. And I fear the recollection will destroy my peace of mind, when I have a harp before me and a pair of wings behind. But my neighbors, they keep blowing every rouble, every red, and I'd be a sort of piker if I let them get ahead; so I'm buying circus wagons, and I'm buying costly gems, and my wife is wearing sapphires and has diamond diadems, and I bought the whole caboodle on the monthly payment plan, and I'm riding to the poorhouse in a super-eight sedan.—Copyright, 1919. HABIT

"Ben Franklin is our great example of thrift. He wrote more on it and wrote it better than any other man we know. He began practicing thrift when he was 12 years of age, and he practiced it and wrote on it all his life. He became the richest man in America in his day, richest not only in money, but in health, brains, sanity, good cheer, influence. He was a scientist, a business man, a linguist, a diplomat and a philosopher. He always paid his way. He founded the University of Pennsylvania, founded the first public library in America, organized an insurance company, pretty nearly captured the lightning, invented spectacles, manufactured the first cork shoe, went to France and borrowed money on which Washington fought the War of the Revolution and excellence of Benjamin Franklin lay in the fact that very early in life he acquired the habit of thrift.
"Thrift is a habit. A habit is a thing you do unconsciously or automatically without thought. We are ruled by our habits. When habits are young they are like lion cubs, soft, fluffy, funny frolics, little animals. They grow day by day. Eventually they rule you. Choose your habit; you would have rule over you. The habit of thrift is simple, the habit which dictates that you shall earn more than you spend. In other words, thrift is the habit that provides that you spend less than you earn. Take your choice."—Elbert Hubbard. Start now. Buy W. S. S.

27,000,000 SMALL DEPOSITORS SAVE $10,573,971,000

Report Made at the Bankers' Convention Develops Startling Figures.

St. Louis, Mo.—There are 27,000,000 savings bank depositors in the United States, according to figures published at the convention of the American Bankers' Association here. In compiling these figures the allowance was made for duplications. Investigation by the bankers has proved that these savings bank depositors are, with few exceptions, people of small means, but they are the people who absorbed in large measure the war issues of government securities. Thrift and War Savings Stamps, Savings Certificates and Liberty Bonds AND ARE KEEPING THEM.
Not only did they buy and hold government securities, but those investments led to additional savings, consolidated the habit of thrift and increased bank deposits throughout the entire nation. These 27,000,000 depositors now own $10,573,971,000 of savings.

This is the money which has built up the railroads, municipalities homes and industries of the nation. These savings represent over twenty-six per cent of the total resources. These savers financed the war successfully, and on their continuation of the production of new capital through savings rests the solution for financing reconstruction and for the increase of production necessary to check the high cost of living, bankers agreed.

The government savings securities and Liberty Bonds offer ideal means for the production of this new capital in the opinion of progressive bankers. They are adapted for investment of all sums no matter how great or small. They are the safest security possible. They are profitable and readily convertible into cash should necessity arise. Their purchase not only aids in financing the government, but releases corresponding capital from the banks and financial institutions for expansion of industry and development of production.

The figures compiled by the Bankers' Association show that in the five-year period ending January 1 of this year, savings deposits in state banks increased 59.47 per cent; in mutual savings banks, 12.96 per cent; in trust savings banks, 23.04 per cent; in trust companies, 24.32 per cent, and in national banks, 118.26 per cent.

It also was announced that there were 35,000,000 policy holders in Life Insurance companies in the United States.

CALIFORNIA ELKS ORGANIZE THRIFT

San Diego, Cal.—The California Elks' Association, in convention here, in a set of resolutions endorsing the 1919 thrift campaign of the government, directed the president of the association to appoint committees at once to carry on the sale of Thrift and War Savings Stamps and Treasury Savings Certificates and to direct the thrift movement throughout subordinate lodges in California. The convention approved the action of the Grand Lodge, which went on record as a staunch advocate of the thrift campaign in its co-operation in Atlantic City.

SAFE DEPOSIT BOXES HOUSE DREAM GHOSTS

Receipts Crammed With Fake Securities Representing Wasted Millions.

Washington—If the safety deposit boxes of the United States could give up their dead stores of fake securities, enough wasted money would be disclosed to stagger the imagination. If a man expects his financial barrel to fill up, he has got to stop up the leaks in it. This is the keynote of a message sent by William Mather Lewis, director of the savings division of the Treasury Department, to the Twelfth District savings directors urging them to impress the wisdom of holding government securities.
"Thousands of people in the United States are losing their hard-earned savings every day because they lack knowledge of financial dealing," continued Mr. Lewis. Untold numbers of fake scheme promoters and recipients of investment shares, because of this popular ignorance, are pointing out short roads to big fortunes to those whose Liberty Bonds and War Savings Stamps they hope to secure in exchange for beautifully embossed but absolutely worthless stock certificates. These fakers know the value of government securities. They are anxious to get them, for they figure that they will soon be selling at par and above. They know that following the Civil War the war issues of government securities soon were above par, and that there is no well-informed person today who does not believe that the Liberty Bonds will sell well above par, long before their maturity.

"But their victims do not know these facts, and so they trade the best securities in the world for some wild-cat that promises a high rate of interest. What their chances are of getting stung is illustrated by the fact that in Georgia out of 300 applications from a certain type of company to sell stock in that state, only two have been able to meet the requirements under the blue-sky law and were given permits."
"The other 298 are probably operating somewhere where the going is better. If the American people would give to the matter of spending and investment money 10 per cent of the thought they devote to making it, the high cost of living would be greatly decreased. Reckless spending and foolish investment are elements in the present situation which can only be remedied by the rank and file of our people."
"As long as easy money is in evidence, the profiteer and the shark will prosper."
