

COUNTY HEALTH NURSE HAS OPENED OFFICE

Many Community Centers Visited in Health Interest

HAS OFFICE, COURT HOUSE

Prevention is Counted a Big Factor in the Work

Hundreds of school children in Washington County districts are making the acquaintance of Mrs. Agnita Smith, the County Health Nurse and learning that she will visit them often in their classrooms for the purpose of giving them health supervision. In the past two weeks, Mrs. Smith, accompanied by Miss Jane Allen, state advisory nurse, has been visiting the different community centers of the county and she will soon have worked out a regular schedule by which she hopes to get over the well-settled sections of the county at least once a month.

Each week's visit to a community will include, along with personal calls in some of the homes where she may be needed for advice or instruction, at least half of each day in the schools. She plans to give talks to pupils on right health habits of living, and will also inspect for symptoms of physical defects, such as poor vision, diseased tonsils, adenoids, etc., certain pupils selected by their teachers. This inspection is not compulsory. Parents are asked to notify the teachers if they do not wish their children inspected.

The county public health nurse is not a nurse to look after tuberculosis cases only. She is a general public health nurse—that is, she is interested in every type of case where there is an opportunity for her to do preventive work. Her mission is good health, how to get it, and how to keep it. She is interested in helping mothers keep their babies well and strong. She wants to show them how to keep the children of pre-school age healthy, and for the children in school she endeavors to see to it that they are given a fair chance to develop as nature intends them to, both mentally and physically. In other words, the public health nurse believes in prevention as more worth while than cure, hence she spends a large share of her time working for the good health of babies and children.

Mrs. Smith is opening an office on the second floor of the court house, and will keep office hours every Saturday afternoon from one to five. Anyone in Hillsboro at this time who wishes to see her and talk over any matter pertaining to her work is invited to call at her office.

HANNA-MATHEWS MILL MAY START UP SOON

Hamilton & Reagan, Experienced Mill Men, May Take Hold TO REPAIR PLANT AT ONCE Will Make Additions to the Mill and Start Cutting Soon

It begins to look as though the Hanna-Mathews sawmill, north of the city, will soon be running its saws again, thus adding to the industrial payroll of the town. J. A. Hamilton, of the firm of Hamilton & Reagan, was in the city the first of the week, figuring on a deal to take over the mill. Negotiations are well under way, and it is expected that the new firm will soon take possession.

Mr. Hamilton says that a number of men at once will be placed on the job repairing the structure, making some minor changes, and some additions, and a start cutting will be made in the very near future.

Both are experienced men and they recognize this as a fine point for milling.

The plant is located on the P. R. & N., a mile out, and there is a chance for a fine dam, if needed. The mill is so located that it can get logs from the Nehalem timber belt, and purchases will be made there as soon as the local cut is made.

Hillsboro welcomes any move that will mean a greater employment of men, and it goes against the grain to see the wheels of the plant idle.

Grandma Friday, as she was familiarly called, was beloved by a large circle of friends for her kindly disposition and ready assistance for those in distress. Mrs. Friday was one of the organizers of the Ladies Aid of the M. E. Church, at Banks, and even when incapacitated by illness continued to sew and lend aid to this organization.

Through her long illness, which lasted more than two years, she made no complaint, but passed peacefully away, surrounded by all her children.

The surviving children are Edwin Friday, of Grants Pass; Albert, of Craik, Sask.; John and Bert, of Banks, and Mrs. W. O. Galaway, of Banks.

BANKS STORE ROBBER MUST FACE TRIAL

Charles McGrew, After Six Years at Pen, Faces, Old Indictment BROUGHT HERE LAST WEEK

State Charger That he Shot at Ralph Kinton, of Banks

Chas. McGrew, oldtime robber and general outlaw, was brought to Hillsboro from the State Pen last week by Deputy Wm. McQuillan, and the bandit, after serving nearly six years in the state institution, is to again face trial for shooting at Ralph Kinton, at Banks, on the night of July 10, 1913.

McGrew's prison term ended, and just as he was about to leave the place, Mr. McQuillan took charge of him on a warrant from this county. The indictment facing the prisoner, McGrew now being in the county jail, was drawn by District Attorney E. B. Tongue, and reads:

"That the defendant, Chas. McGrew, on the 10th day of July, 1913, in the said County of Washington, State of Oregon, then and there being armed with a dangerous weapon, to-wit: a revolver loaded with powder and leaden bullets, did then and there willfully, purposely, unlawfully and feloniously assault one Ralph Kinton with said dangerous weapon, by then and there willfully, unlawfully and feloniously shooting at the said Ralph Kinton with said revolver, the said Ralph Kinton being then and there within range of said dangerous weapon."

McGrew at first pleaded not guilty to robbing the store, and on December 19 was sentenced by Judge Campbell to from 2 to 5 years in the pen. He was already a parole violator and that accounts for his being detained longer than December, 1918.

It will be remembered that after McGrew was caught in the store that he shot at Mr. Kinton and then went under the store building, where a posse kept him cornered until the arrival of Sheriff Reeves. Sheriff Reeves went under the store after the bandit, and brought him out.

There is little doubt but that McGrew will plead guilty to the charge. He is said to be a courageous man and his record in this county bears out the opinion. The penalty for the offense is a county jail sentence not greater than a year.
