MASKED, ROBBERS HOLD UP THE ORENCO STORE

Get About $150 for Their Half Hour's Work Monday Night

OVERLOOK ONE THOUSAND

Barton & Co. Have Visitation From Couple of Bad Men

Two masked men entered the Barton Orenco store about 7:30 Monday and robbed the till of between $140 and $150 as near as Mr. Barton can estimate. The two men entered the establishment when the only people inside the building were Mr. Barton, three small boys and P. J. Lambert, traveling salesman for M. Seller & Co. The order at once came from one of the robbers to hold up their hands. All complied even to the small boys. One of the lads started out of the door with his hands in the air, when he was ordered back, as the robbers evidently feared the boy would give an alarm. While the occupants of the store were covered by one the other robber took the cash from the till. They then left and no trace was found of them, nor was there any indication of the way they had traveled. Mr. Lambert proposed that they would go after them, but Mr. Barton heaved a sigh of relief, and said—"not for the little money they got."

The robbers had overlooked about a thousand dollars in currency which was hidden under the counter in an out-of-the-way place, and he was feeling mighty good that they had not ransacked the place.

Sheriff Alexander was notified and at once visited the place. He found no clue to the perpetrators, as it was hard to see anything like tracks of men or vehicles.

As the robbers were very nervous it is thought that they were amateurs, and perhaps local men. Mr. Lambert came up and was a guest at the Hotel Washington that night—he evidently did not care to stay at Orenco, although the hold-up men did not offer to molest him or his cash.

Frank M. Kelsey, of near Newton, made his annual call on the Argus Monday. F. M. is perhaps the oldest living native son in the county, and was born in a log cabin on his father's donation land claim 75 years ago the 16th inst. Seventy-five years in Oregon is going some and F. M. says he is going a quarter of a century more unless he is mightily mistaken.

PIONEER MEDICAL MAN DIES IN THIS CITY

At Family Home on Second Street, Jan. 23, at 11:30 a. m.

NOTED SCHOLAR, ORATOR

Practiced Medicine and Surgery in County Since Fall of 1864

Dr. Francis Alonzo Bailey, noted pioneer physician and surgeon, died at his home on Second and Baseline, Jan. 23, 1920, at 11:30 a. m., after an illness of six days. Dr. Bailey practiced his profession up to the Saturday prior, when he was stricken by pneumonia and taken home. He was born in Hardeman Co., Tenn., Jan. 28, 1839, and at death lacked but five days of reaching his 81st year. He was the son of

Wm. L. and Mary Wilkinson Bailey, and was a grandson of Gen. Frank Wilkinson, of the War of 1812. He received his early education at Woodland Academy and Lebanon College, in Tennessee, and when 17 years of age went to St. Louis, where he took a medical course in Pope's College of Physicians and Surgeons. He received his degree and when the Civil War broke was a Cadet in the Hospital service with Gen. Price's Army in the Confederacy, but never took the Confederate oath. In 1864 he took a position as surgeon with the Hudson Bay Co., on a steamer running up the Mississippi and Missouri. Upon reaching Montana he left the service of the company and started across country for Oregon, arriving in Washington County, October 20 of that year. He went to the M. M. Watts donation above Forest Grove, on Gales, going there because he accompanied a friend of the Watts' across the Rocky Mountains.

In the Fall and Winter of '64-5 he taught school in Sedgwick Valley, a reservation to his contract being that he could answer medical calls. His practice grew to such an extent that at the expiration of his term he quit teaching. While in charge of the school he met Miss Letitia A. Chambers, who was visiting the Scoggin's, and they were married at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Chambers, at West Union, in 1866. In 1870 he took a post graduate course at Willamette University, and 1871 received his degree from Toland College, later known as the Cooper Medical College, at San Francisco, and subsequently being the medical department of Stanford University. In pioneer days Dr. Bailey practiced all over the county, and as the roads were mere trails much of his riding was on horseback, and he carried his medicine cases with him in saddle bags. Many times he found it necessary to swim his horse or make a raft in order to cross streams, as bridges were very infrequent. Dr. Bailey was scholarly far beyond the average of his generation, and kept up his wide range of reading until he was stricken. He was an orator second to none, and was easily the equal of the noted Col. E. D. Baker. In early days there was none who would meet him in public discussion of political questions. He affiliated with the democratic party, although the district was the opposite in politics. Possessed of a wonderful mind, eloquent in expression of his knowledge, had he forsaken medicine for the political arena he would have made his mark in the economic field. Few people know that he threw away a chance to be the Governor of Oregon. When the late Col. T. R. Cornelius ran for chief executive, Dr. Bailey received many telegrams from over the state, asking him to be the democratic candidate. Even Portland, wanting a Washington County man to run, consented to support him in the convention. After a day's deliberation, Dr. Bailey decided to stay with medicine. "As much as I would like to serve my adopted state," he said, "I feel that my duty is with my profession, and I would not break away from a career that I have selected and love." Gov. Penneyer was named and elected. He quietly and generously gave to charity and in this respect never let his one hand know what the other gave. He was modest, unassuming, yet in all respects a positivist. He treated the ills of hundreds knowing he could never be paid for his services. He was a contributor to many medical journals, and had served as president of the State Medical Society; was Regent of O. A. C.; had been Mayor of Hillsboro, and was instrumental in securing the Carnegie Library; served as a school director a number of times, and was noted for his public spirit and pride in community. In 1881 he joined the Masonic Lodge, was Master a number of times, and also represented the lodge in the Grand Body. He is survived by his widow and the following children: Dr. Francis J. Bailey, for years a practicing physician, and a Veteran of the Philippine War, Hillsboro; Dr. Augustus B. Bailey, eye and ear specialist, Selling Building, Portland; John W. Bailey, vice president of the Commercial Bank, Hillsboro; Miss Eva, at home, and Dr. Thomas C. Bailey, dentist, Portland. The funeral took place Sunday under the auspices of the Masonic fraternity. Services were held at the Cong. Church, Rev. H. A. Deck preaching the last rites. Interment was in the Masonic Cemetery, Undertakers Donelson and Bell directing. The pall bearers were E. B. Tongue, Tho. H. Tongue Jr., Dr. W. D. Wood, Dr. J. O. Robb, Geo. Alexander, C. Jack Jr.

Word has reached the city that the authorities are putting on the lid, or are to put the lid on, on speeding on the highway. Hardly an hour passes that some one is not guilty of an infraction of the 30 mile per hour speed limit. Besides, many go around curves at excess speed, and some of these days there is going to be a nasty wreck. The road patrol is also going to keep his eye on the chap with a big machine who thinks he can "hog" the road and force others to creep to the shoulder. Henry Schoene, who married Sadie Schoene at Vancouver, Dec. 22, 1919, filed his suit for divorce exactly 30 days later, averring that the newly wedded wife continually found fault; abused and insulted him; called him vile names and epithets too obscene to put in the complaint; refused to cook his meals, and told him to "cook his own," and generally made life burdensome. He wants Judge Bagley to liberate him. I have the E. C. DeWitt & Co's line of proprietary medicines. This line needs no recommendation after being used once. We carry the following in stock, postage prepaid—DeWitt's Laxative Cold Tablets; DeWitt's Cough Syrup; DeWitt's Dyspepsia tablets; DeWitt's Kidney tablets; DeWitt's Little Early Risers; Bee's Laxative Cough Syrup.—W. L. Stevens, Laurel. 47-47

Mrs. Edith Tozier-Weathered, of Portland, was out Sunday, a guest at the T. S. Weathered home. She wishes the Argus to inform the farmers of the county that there will be a Farmers' Week at Gresham, Feb. 9-14, with O. A. C. instructors each day. First Congregational Church—Main and Fifth Streets; Bible School at 10 a. m.; worship and sermon at 11 a. m. and 7:30 p. m.; topics "Working With Others," and "A Personal Question." Special music at both services.—H. A. Deck, minister.

E. H. Deery, who formerly conducted a meat market at 162 Jefferson St., Portland, has located at 187, Third St., and invites his Washington County friends to ship him their meats of all kinds. Treatment of past twenty years continued at new location. 50

Many cases of the "Flu" are reported over the state, but so far this district appears to have suffered nothing from inroads of the malady. A year ago we were having more than our share of the dread disease. Harry Cline, of near Laurel, was in the city Tuesday morning and called on the home paper.
