

PORTLAND P. M. IS ASKED TO RESIGN

Frank S. Myers Will Step Out This Saturday Evening

OFFICE SCENE OF TROUBLE

Incumbent was Born and Raised at Forest Grove—Lane's Protege

Post Master General Burleson has asked Frank S. Myers to vacate the Portland postmastership on this coming Saturday evening. Mr. Myers has been serving his second term, and there has been much friction around the office in connection with employees, and six months ago two inspectors investigated the office and made their reports. The request for resignation followed the filing of the report.

Mr. Myers is a Forest Grove man, originally, and was a great booster for Senator Harry Lane. Upon Lane's elevation to office, Myers was appointed to the Portland office. The charges against F. S. were that he had an unbecomable temper and that his attitude toward the men under his employ did not tend to the good of the service. Myers was prominent in local politics.

The next postmaster will doubtless come under civil service appointment.

Prior to taking office Myers was a traveling salesman, and was well known over the state.

The department also asked for the resignation of his assistant, with whom Myers had frequent altercations.

A HILLSBORO GIRL

A Corvallis paper in an article on a Commercial Club function had the following mention of a Hillsboro girl: "A happy surprise was the singing of Miss Bertie Jones, dramatic soprano. She appears to be but a 'mild' so to speak, and had more voice than all the rest of the sopranos in town put together. It is pleasing and she sang most acceptably. Of course, she had to respond with a second number. Sooner or later she is going to be a wonder." Miss Jones is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Spencer Jones.

U. OF O. NOTES

Vincent Engledinger has been selected by Professor Lukken to play the piano accompaniment to the Mixed Chorus, which is practicing the cantata, "The Rose Maiden," Florence Garrett, Miriam Stockton and Russell Morgan are singing in the chorus.

Russell Morgan is now a fraternity brother of Don Long. He has been pledged to the Delta Theta Pi, a law fraternity. This fraternity has not a house to live in at present, but expects to have one by next year.

Mrs. J. H. Garrett visited her daughter, Florence, over the week-end, at the Alpha Phi house. She attended the informal dance given at the Osburn Hotel last Saturday evening.

The local debate tryout to determine the teams to represent Hillsboro High School in the coming debates under the State High School Debating League will be held in the High School auditorium tonight, at 7. The question to be discussed concerns the prohibiting of the use of the writ of injunction in labor disputes, and inasmuch as the recent coal strike saw a working out of the injunction, the topic is a live one. A group of students have been working hard to gain places on the teams, which will meet Forest Grove and Tillamook in a triangular contest in February.

TIME IS RIPE FOR PRUNING ORCHARDS

Get it Ready for Spraying for the San Jose Scale

COUNTY CAN BEAT WORLD

On Raising Apples if Care is Given Trees at Proper Time

Editor Argus: Permit me to tell the orchardists that now is the time to prune and get the orchards ready for the annual spraying for the San Jose scale. There is little doubt from appearances that many orchards have been sadly neglected on the important part of raising clean fruit. I have written many articles for the county press, giving my experience for over 30 years of successful orchard practice, and shown that we can make good. I have demonstrated that by getting premiums in competition with all the districts of the great Northwest, the famous Hood River district included. But I am sorry to say, in the words of the late Millard Lowndale, commissioner of the First District, "Washington County is the most neglected in the state." To which, I say Amen. A county inspector should be the one to give out information, but unfortunately we have none, to the best of my knowledge. I believe it is just as well, for the Budget allows $100—not for a month; oh no! For the year 1920, Multnomah, which has less orchard land than we, pays $1525 per annum, besides the expenses of the inspector. Mr. Pearey, former inspector of Douglas, tells me that Douglas County pays $1800 annually, besides expenses. I will say that great orchard improvement was noted when S. J. Galloway was our inspector. He was surely the right man in the right place and why he was not retained, I am unable to explain.

The Oregon Co-operative Association intends to build packing houses here in the county and will handle and pack our fruit, providing it is of good quality and not covered with scale, or wormy, in other words, clean fruit. So it will be to our advantage to raise the best. A Portland firm making a "delicious" beverage last fall bought over 40 tons of scaly trash at Beaverton—it would make one sick to look at it, and to think that stuff was made into "delicious beverage." I would surely hesitate to give any to my Catholic friends on Friday, for it must have been pretty "meaty."

First—prune your trees and burn the debris at once to destroy the scale; then select a calm day for spraying; use one part of lime and sulphur solution to 10 parts of water. This is the first annual housecleaning. If you sprayed heretofore and it did no good, why, you were in too much of a hurry and did not make a thorough job of it, or perhaps you used a spray on which you paid no freight on water, the soluble sulphur composed of sulphur and caustic soda. Or perhaps you used another dry lime and sulphur spray extensively advertised as being equal to the lime and sulphur solution. Many using these tell me they are not good, and will never use them again. Let me quote you Prof. Melander, of Washington State College, on the dry "stuff":

"When Sherwin-Williams dry sulphur is dissolved in cold water a certain amount remains as sediment, consisting of sulphur and more or less chalk, possibly of value against mildew, but of no worth against scale or aphids. It is claimed that this insoluble material sometimes obstructs strainers and nozzles, a recent analysis by the Washington State Chemist showing—

"In cold water; insoluble, 17 per cent; polysulphid, 42 p. c.; Thiosulphate and other combined sulphur, 8 p. c.; lime 25 p. c. and sugar, 2 p. c. Their printed leaflets say that a barrel of liquid lime sulphur solution weighs 600 lbs., and that 80 to 100 lbs. of Sherwin-Williams dry lime and sulphur will accomplish the same results. This statement is obviously fallacious, but is made in order that a 100-lb drum of the dry material can compete in selling price with the barrel of liquid, a barrel of standard lime and sulphur solution containing 135 lbs of sulphur and 65 lbs of lime in solution in 320 lbs of water—all 200 lbs of the ingredients are soluble and there is the maximum amount of polysulphur available. In the drum of dry lime sulphur there are about 65 lbs of actual sulphur and 26 lbs of lime, but of the total 101 lbs about 20 lbs consists of sugar or material insoluble in cold water. On the basis of actual sulphur contents it would take 2 drums of dry to be equivalent to a barrel of concentrated liquid. Unless the material is boiled into a solution 2½ drums would be a close equivalent on the basis of similar strengths of spray solution. Therefore, the cost of the dry stuff at present prices is too great to offset any

"freight advantages." The fruit grower who depends upon 10 lbs of dry lime sulphur to 50 gallons of water is taking a big risk."

These are a few extracts from Prof. Melander's article. Being in Portland a few days since, I made inquiries about the price of the dry lime sulphur; $15 per 100 lb drum. Now if it takes 2½ drums to equal a barrel of liquid lime and sulphur costs but $11, of what advantage is it to use the dry stuff except to help the dealers—and what does he care for your orchard?

Some will say "Lime is in the spray manufacturing business and wants to boost his spray." I will say as I have previously said, "forget it; get your spray anywhere you wish. You are under no obligations."

Yours truly,
B. Leis, Aetna Orchards,
Beaverton, Ore.

TEACHER ANSWERS THE WORK GIRL

Takes Position That Teaching is no Sinecure

SAYS WORK IS ARDUOUS

Animadverts on Duties and Preparations

Below is an answer to "Work Girl's" letter in last week's issue. Peruse it, for it gives the teacher's side of the subject. The writer, however, errs in one particular—a good cook is a matter of education. Nero's cook was a bad actor and Cain's wife always burned the biscuits. But here is the letter:

"Editor Argus: In behalf of those in the teaching profession I wish to give 'Miss Work Girl' more ideas on the subject of salaries to add to the few that she already has. True it is that a teacher spends 35 hours in a school room each week in actual teaching, but the other 133 are by no means spent 'sitting on cushions and sewing fine seams.' A conscientious teacher must spend at least an hour or two after school preparing work for the following day. A teacher's supper she has from 50 to 100 papers to correct, which call for careful judgment and cannot be given just a 'mark.' To do this right a teacher must have a good education and this education must be paid for. Most any one with even a mere scattering brains can prepare a digestible meal and clear up the remains. Are you properly prepared for the teaching profession, Miss Work Girl? If you think the school teacher has a snap, save your cook money and get busy. Go to Monmouth for the required 6 weeks' course; take the teachers' examinations and get your certificate; get a country school with a salary of $75 per month and a board bill of $30 per month. Be sure you get a school with eight grades and about 35 pupils all ages and sizes, whose mothers and fathers think they are kin to angels. Then begin managing your room and preparing about 25 to 35 lessons a day, besides hearing recitations. Keep yourself presentably clothed on your $45 a month extra and after you have been picked to pieces by the fond fathers and mothers with the aid of the school board, and after you have taught several years perhaps you will be able to save about a $100. This may sound like a snap Miss Work Girl, but can you do it and be satisfied? Don't begrudge the teacher a few holidays. She merely needs them to recuperate."

—An Ex-School Teacher."

RAYMOND H. WARD

Raymond H. Ward died in this city Tuesday, Jan. 27, 1920, from injuries received Monday while working at the Johnson sawmill in South Tualatin. He was waiting to put a belt on a line shaft when he was caught by the belt and injured internally, his clothes drawing him into the revolving shaft. He was hurried to the Dr. Smith hospital and everything possible was done to save his life. At death he was aged 19 years, 10 months and 18 days. He was a son of Mr. and Mrs. Carl E. Ward, well known in Hillsboro and in South Tualatin.

Besides his parents he is survived by two sisters, Mrs. Lois Hoffman, of Cornelius, R. 2 and Miss Inez Ward at home.

The funeral took place this afternoon at 2 o'clock, at the Donaldson & Bell Parlors, Rev. H. A. Deek delivering the rites. He was a quiet, unassuming and industrious young man and leaves a large circle of friends who deplore his death and extend to the bereaved parents their deepest sympathy.

ABIGAIL A. HOLLAND

Mrs. Abigail A. Holland passed away Jan. 26, 1920, at 7 o'clock, at her home three and a half miles southwest of Hillsboro. She was born in Canada, Nov. 17, 1843, and emigrated to Michigan with her parent when a child.

She was married to Alonzo D. Holland in 1867. In 1878 they came to Oregon with their two children and have been residents of the state almost continuously since.

That the O. A. C. school of commerce is gaining popularity is shown by the fact that it has a 100 per cent. increase in registration over that of the last normal year. Six hundred and twenty-five students are regularly enrolled while 2000 students are taking commerce subjects as electives in their courses in other schools of the college. Among Hillsboro students taking the commercial course are Addie Carter and Helen E. Killen, taking vocational work; and Kenneth W. Crandall, W.
