RAILROADS WILL HAVE SOME REDUCED RATES

Nearly all of Them Sending out Notices for Summer Travel

ONE PRICE FOR TWO YEARS

Beach and Mountain Trips to Come a Little Easier Now on

Within 30 days after the railroads took over the management of their lines with no federal interference the change is already apparent to the man with only one eye. When you wanted to go to the beach the past few years, you paid the price each way, getting no reduction. It's different in this year of our Lord 1920, for the railroads are already promising reductions in fares for vacationists.

When you get that tired feeling this summer and wish to hike to Tillamook, Newport or Seaside, or to some mountain resort, you will get your little old reduction as you did in the halcyon days of yore. This will mean a portion of your hotel bill, your spending money, or a saving, and it is expected to stimulate travel. As trains must run anyway the roads figure that a reduced price will encourage you to take a vacation whether you need it or not, and as railway managers are half-human, they are generally capable of reading the public mind.

So when Washington County wants a clam-feed, or wants to take that annual dip in the Pacific, you will feel more like spending the money.

A move is on foot to establish a big hospital in the county, and mail has been sent out to get the line of opinion as to its location and who will support such an institution. It certainly is needed here, for the capacity of those now running is not enough to care for those needing attention. A. C. Shute is chairman of the Club committee making the investigation.

Chas. Geiberger, of near Tualatin, who spends his time ranching and roadbuilding, was an Argus caller Wednesday. Chas. says that the people down his way are smiling in the paths of peace.
