Well, well, we'll say that neither Wood nor Lowden are pikers when it comes to trying to land a presidential nomination. Lowden and his friends have spent but a half million or so, and Wood and his supporters have only spent a million. That's going some, eh? Old Monte Christo was a four-flusher compared to them.

Senator Chamberlain won in the primaries notwithstanding the Starkweather people used the name of President Wilson to defeat him. The good people of Oregon know Senator Chamberlain and appreciate his worth. He made a Governor beyond reproach, saved the state and its people millions of dollars, and in the United States Senate has made a name both for himself and for the great state of Oregon. He will be elected by a greater majority than ever before. His opponent is Mr. Stanfield, of Umatilla County, who wished very much to see the Senator defeated. Washington County gave him over two to one majority, and this without a campaign on his part.

CHAMBERLAIN WINS

United States Senator Geo. E. Chamberlain won in the primaries in the state over Starkweather by practically a two to one vote. In Washington County the democratic vote was very light. The Starkweather faction received many votes in using President Wilson's letter, and used the argument that a vote for Chamberlain was a vote against Wilson. Thus Chamberlain lost many votes. The great majority of democrats, however, did not feel that way and registered a big vote for the senator, considering that but a small per cent. turned out to the polls.

The vote in this county—
Chamberlain 475
Starkweather 218

The legislative nominations on the Dem. ticket were W. J. McCready, Forest Grove; F. J. Stroud, Beaverton, and L. A. Long. The latter will not qualify, so will not be on the ticket. The Argus does not know as to the remaining two. John M. Wall was named for district attorney.

STATE-WIDE MOVE

Endorsement of the expansion movement of the Oregon State Chamber of Commerce to raise a budget to carry on its program of development work by a state-wide canvass was given last Thursday by the Portland Chamber of Commerce. This action was taken at a meeting of officers and directors of the Portland Chamber of Commerce and the State Chamber held at the Hotel Benson.

Representing the Portland Chamber were H. B. VanDuser, president; A. J. Bale, vice; Max S. Hirsch, secy.; W. D. B. Dodson, executive secy.; and Roy T. Bishop, E. G. Crawford, Peter Kerr and F. H. Strong, directors. Representing the State Chamber were Charles Hall, president, of Marshfield; J. L. Etheridge and C. C. Chapman, of Portland; George H. McMorran, of Eugene, and E. E. Brodie, of Oregon City.

Executive Secretary Dodson, of the Portland Chamber, was authorized by the Portland Chamber representatives to assist in the work of organization for Portland's participation in the movement. This followed a general discussion of the expansion movement in which it was explained that it has been launched for the purpose of enlarging the scope of activities and strengthening the State Chamber to become a more effective agency of state-wide development.

President Hall of the State Chamber declared the movement will enlist state-wide support from industries, firms and individuals "who are thinking of Oregon in terms of the future."

Wm. Meierjergen, of near Oreno, was the best guesser in the presidential contest between Johnson and Wood. He said the county would go 300 for Johnson, and he missed it by one vote. He predicted that Johnson would carry the state by over a thousand, and he was some guesser at that.

A PHILIPPINE TRAVELOGUE

THE ROMANTIC ISLANDS OF THE FAR EAST. PICTURES OF THEIR NATURAL BEAUTY AND HISTORIC SPOTS—BEING A MECCA FOR TOURISTS AND A POPULAR WINTER RESORT.

The Zigzag on the Way to Baguio, Summer Capital of the Philippines.

All aboard! Let's go! We're starting from Manila, the great picturesque, Americanized Oriental city, and will travel by automobile 200 miles to the north to Baguio, the summer capital of the Philippines. The trip can also be made by train.

We have ahead of us one of the most scenic, spectacular and thrilling automobile trips in the world. We will have excellent roads all the way. The Philippines are, in fact, a paradise for autoists, possessing 3,500 miles of fine macadamized roads.

The first part of the trip is through typical small towns and then across the central plain of Luzon and through several rich and fertile provinces, where tropical vegetation is seen at its best. Here one is impressed with the great agricultural wealth of the Philippines, which represents one of the East's greatest producing areas, with the advantage of immense natural resources for the development of further production. It is regrettably true that even in the United States there is far from any real understanding of the potentialities of the islands.

At some points rice fields, looking in the distance like the greenest of green lawns, stretch away as far as the eye can see. If you want color, if you want to feel the romance and mystery of an Oriental twilight, pass this way as the red-eyed sun at the end of the dying day is slowly sinking behind the unending expanse of green fields. At first you cry out in ecstasy at the gorgeous scene. But as you ride along, your eyes fastened on the panorama of tints and colors, and with the impenetrably black Oriental night coming on fast, you become enthralled. You no longer try to express your feelings. You cannot. You realize that those now fast changing, colorful masterpieces in the heavens and on the landscape are pictures that no man can adequately describe nor human hands duplicate. So what's the use of trying!

True, these are but impressions, but the traveler considers himself justified in mentioning them, for they are a part of the trip to Baguio and return. Indeed, the gorgeous sunsets in all parts of the Philippines leave an impression on the mind of the tourist that is everlasting.

We leave the palms and tropical foliage and enter the zone of ringed pine. We pass from the soft, incense laden air of the warm lowlands to the crisp, invigorating ozone of the temperate zone, all within a few hours' time.

For mile after mile the road now follows the tortuous course of a river, the road lying in the bottom or on the rocky sides of a granite canyon.

The Philippines are rich in hydro electric possibilities. This power is the cheapest power on earth. And it is everlasting. Your traveler is neither a prophet nor the son of a prophet, but he predicts that one day there will be innumerable Philippine government owned hydro-electric plants in this canyon we are now passing through. Think of the possibilities of such a project! Today the trip from Manila to Baguio is too expensive for the average Manila worker and his family, many of whom may live and die without beholding the wondrous beauties of their own island of Luzon. Think of what a blessing it would be to Filipino mothers and children to feel upon their fevered brows, the cool, invigorating breezes of the mountain tops now so near and yet so far! With the Philippine government owning its own electric railways and hydro-electric plants it would be possible to bring the trip to Baguio within the means of hundreds of thousands of Filipinos. Not only is there sufficient power in this river to electrify a line from Manila to Baguio, but to operate the street railways of Manila, light the city and furnish power for manufacturing concerns.

But we have now arrived at Camp One. From this point the scenery rapidly changes as the elevation increases. We are traveling over the famous Benguet road, the construction of which through the mountains is a most remarkable engineering triumph. At places the road is blasted out of the solid granite. Riding on the edge of a 100 foot precipice makes one feel like he is on the rim of the world. Some of the turns are so sharp it is impossible to see 20 feet ahead, and we seem to be perilously near the jumping off place. We wonder if it is safe to lean out and peer into the canyon far below, and when we do we are perfectly satisfied we are flirting with death. Yet the trip is a safe one, providing our driver has better nerves than our own.

"At times we seemed perilously near the jumping off place."

All too soon we reach the outskirts of Baguio, a city among the clouds, and are rather surprised at the modern city we find it to be. In ten years Baguio has grown from a village of huts to the now justly famed mountain resort of the Philippines, sometimes called the Philippine Straits. It is undoubtedly destined some day to become a large city.

Baguio ranges in elevation from 4,500 to 5,500 feet and is surrounded practically on all sides by high mountain ridges and "hachbacks" towering into the skies at a height of almost 8,000 feet.

Aside from the scenery, which is noteworthy, the great blessing of Baguio is its temperate climate, which is indeed a godsend to those impoverished by the tropical temperatures of the lowlands. Not only is the mountain air rich in ozone, but it has been demonstrated to be extraordinarily free from germs of all kinds.

Each year during the hot season the school teachers of the entire archipelago are enabled by the government to spend a month at the teachers' camp in Baguio for recreation and conference on school work. American army officers and their families also go to Baguio for the hot months.

And now that your traveler has you in Baguio, he believes he will leave you there, for there are many interesting side trips to take, and besides, Baguio is the most delightful place for a vacation in the entire Orient.

Sam Sipp and wife, of Mountaine, were down to the city the first of the week.
