TO STOP ACCIDENTS

To stop fatalities the next legislature will be asked to pass a law making an extreme penalty for an auto driver to cross a railroad track before first coming to a full stop. Four accidents, death ensuing in all four cases, occurred within one week on the Southern Pacific lines in Oregon. Almost any day one can witness machines being driven across railway tracks at a speed of from 25 to 30 miles per hour.

Report has it that a big radio company wishes to locate along the Tualatin River, near Hillsboro, for the purpose of installing a big wireless plant. The tract must be more or less isolated, and it is wanted along the lowlands. A tower 650 feet high will be one of the necessities, and the company wishes to get away from Portland so as to lessen possible disturbances. The radio station is to operate to San Francisco, and will require a big investment as it is to take commercial work. Proximity to Portland is one of the desires because easy communication with the Oregon metropolis is wanted as much of the business will come from there.

William D. Bennett, of Portland, running on the democratic ticket for public service commissioner for this district, was in the city Monday and Tuesday. Mr. Bennett was supervisor of the census and was in answer to the criticisms that Congress appropriated insufficient money to conduct a decent census and that the funds were not adequate to hire enough census takers. Mr. Bennett is making a spirited campaign for public service commissioner and says that if the P. R. L. & P. would just squeeze the water out of their stock, they could make a good dividend on a six cent fare.

What to look for in buying a Phonograph

Whether or not a phonograph is attractive in design and finish is a matter for each individual to decide, for your personal taste enters very largely into the decision.

The cabinet, however, should be well finished—the back as well as the front.

Carelessness in finishing the back of an instrument may mean carelessness in other points of manufacture which are not open to inspection after the instrument has been finished.

The best way to decide on a Phonograph is to hear the different makes of machines and then hear the Brunswick, and we know what the verdict will be.

Two big earload tanks of gasoline arrived in for the associated garages Monday and there was gas galore for everybody. Every available tank was filled, and there was a stream of cars at all the filling stations. From a shortage that was painful to a big supply was necessarily a matter of gratification. The two tankers came in with a special train to Portland, and arrived there the last of the week.
