

TAKES ELEVEN INNINGS TO WIN GAME SUNDAY

Ironworkers Walk Away With Long End of 10 to 9 Score

EXCITING TIME FOR FANS

After Seventh Inning Crowd Was on Toes for Four Rounds

The contest between the Hillsboro American Legion nine and the Portland Ironworkers last Sunday went eleven innings before the Ironworkers finally walked away with the game, score 10 to 9. Hillsboro started off in good shape and up to the fifth inning led by three to a goose egg. In the fifth came through a bunch of errors bunched together the Ironworkers ran across four runs from a one hit inning. They rolled in three more in the ninth, leaving the score 7 to 3, when Hillsboro went to bat supposedly for the last time.

In this frame Hillsboro beat out the dope sheet by a batting rally, and when the smoke cleared they had tied the score, and the fans were holding a war dance. In the tenth inning the I. W.'s put across two more tallies and Hillsboro followed with a duo, again tying the game.

In the eleventh the I. W.'s with two down, made a run and Hillsboro failed for a touch down. It was a game with frills, although ragged in places and no one complained at not getting his money's worth.

The battery for Hillsboro—Brown, Green, Schulmerich and Cota; for Portland, Keel and Murphy. Brown, who was pitching good ball up to the fifth, wrenched his side and was forced to retire.

Sherwood, soon a contender against Hillsboro on the local grounds, beat the Multnomah Guards, Sunday, 17 to 5, and on Sunday, August 29, they will arrive here to play the Legion men. Sherwood expects to take another fall out of the county seater.

Notice is hereby given that the and is coming with a big crowd of fans, and a bunch of rabbits feet.

William Schulmerich had a new experience in auto tires, over on Second St., Monday. Bill has had many a blowout and many a puncture—but he had his first blowout to occur while he was putting on a tire. He was just about putting the finishing touches, tightening up the tire on the rear wheel—it had just been mended and filled with air—when she "banged" and Schulmerich was set back on his haunches several feet. When the smoke subsided and it was seen that Schulmerich was not hurt one of the bystanders laughed—but William saw nothing "funny."

Mrs. Belle Hardesty and daughter, Miss Florence Hardesty, arrived from Concordia, Kansas, and are guests of the J. W. Goodins. She has been county treasurer of her home county for a number of years. Mother and daughter will visit here and with the J. H. McNamers, of Forest Grove.

Speaking of Sam Stoy, the deceased insurance chief, well known in Portland and in this county, where he owned property interests some years ago, John Vandervert, recently deceased, Stoy was a man whom the greatest dependence could be placed. He was 100 per cent man, and his word was as good as his bond. I handled the insurance of his company under him for years, and he was the first to advise immediate adjustment of losses. Stoy was transferred to San Francisco and it was a regret when our partnership in insurance and farm holdings came to a close.

MICKLE STANDS WITH OREGON DAIRY LEAGUE

Tells Judge McCourt That He Stands With Co-operative Idea

HARRY WEST ON STAND

Tigard Dairyman Says He Talked Without Consulting

J. D. Mickle, state food and dairy commissioner, went on record before Circuit Judge McCourt yesterday afternoon as a firm believer in the principle of co-operative marketing, in the course of hearing for an injunction restraining Portland milk distributors and the Nestles Food Products company from inducing members of the Oregon Dairymen's Co-operative league to violate their contracts with the organization.

"Co-operative marketing," declared Mr. Mickle, "has for its ultimate purpose the shortening of the road between the producer and the consumer. It has a tendency to stabilize prices of the product. It will bring better prices to the producer, or more nearly cost of production, and through a more economical method of marketing at the same time cause no higher prices to the consumer. Collective bargaining is aimed at the unnecessary expense which occurs in the spread between what the producer gets and what the consumer pays."

Mr. Mickle asserted that at the present time, according to the best information he had, dairy business in Oregon was decreasing on the whole, the reason being that the dairymen of certain sections were not getting cost of production for their milk. He said that at the present time in the Willamette Valley, due to the fact that practically the entire hay crop had been lost, dairymen were finding it impossible to produce milk at a profit and pay the high price asked for milk feed.

The witness told of investigating conditions at Bandon and McMinnville last winter, in which two places the Nestles Food Products company had opened condenseries and was paying more than its smaller competitors for milk. Attorney Flegel, representing the Nestles company, asked the speaker if it was not a fact that this was caused by the exceptionally high price that condensed milk was bringing at that time, and that a subsequent drop in the price paid by the Nestles company was due to a drop in the market price of condensed milk rather than the fact that competitors had been put out of business. Mr. Mickle responded that he did not believe the drop in market price was the cause of the lowering of the price paid by the Nestles company to the producer.

Harry West, proprietor of the Red Rock creamery near Tigard, was tripped up by Dan J. Maloney, attorney representing the dairymen, in his testimony concerning the meeting which he called at Hillsboro, during which he addressed members of the league present and told them that Swift & Co., the Nestles Food Products company and big milk dealers would back any of the league members that broke their contracts with their organization. Mr. West averred he made the statement without having consulted any of the firms mentioned, and on the assumption that they would do so.

Witness Denies Conversation—

He stated positively that he had not communicated with any of the Portland milk distributors or representatives of the Nestles Food Products company or Swift & Co. prior to the meeting.

A little later in his testimony he inadvertently admitted that he had called on A. M. Work, general manager of the Portland-Damascus Milk company, in connection with the fight against the league several days before the meeting.

R. B. Denny, of Beaverton, director of the league, testified concerning the meeting called by Mr. West in which Mr. West referred to the officers of the league as promoters and not active dairymen, and told the members that they had no voice in the operation of their league.

Mr. Denny, under questioning by Attorney Flegel, said that in his belief the reason for the formation of a by-products corporation by the league was the fact that it was unlawful for the league to manufacture and sell products outside of the state. He admitted that stock was held by league members and that the directors and officers were the same in the corporation as the league.

Martin Thompson, dairyman near McMinnville, testified that the Nestles company left his milk by the roadside because he refused to repudiate the dairymen's league.

Milk Wagons Block Street—

Fred Strucken, of Beaverton, Jacob Zwingli, of Fairview; Joe Andregg, of Fairview, and Jacob Luscher, of Fairview, all members of the league, testified to their satisfaction with the operation of the league and with its present officials.—Today's Oregonian.

Assessor Boley is of the opinion that the 1920 tax roll will not be as great in valuation as in 1919, owing to the fact that the auto tax is now collected by the state and motor valuations do not go on the county rolls. This will mean the loss of perhaps a half million dollars and there is no rise in realty valuations to offset this, except a little raise here and there where the advent of the highway has caused a raise in values. The total tax roll will not be known until after the board of equalization passes on complaint next month.

Drivers of machines sending in application for licenses under the new law get a neat little card which they must carry with them when running an automobile. Licenses which were sent for as late as June 25 are just getting in by mail, conclusive evidence that there is some congestion at the Secretary of State's office. Over seventy thousand have been issued, and there are many more yet to send.

John Vanderwal and wife returned Monday from a ten days' stay at Shipperd Springs, very much benefited. Mr. Vanderwal received the news the first of the week of the death of Sam B. Stoy, of San Francisco. Mr. Stoy was well known in Portland, and owns a ranch down near Elmonica.

H. J. Luck and wife, of above Mountandale, write from Russell, Kansas, that they expect to arrive in Hillsboro about Saturday evening, and that they will be glad to get back to Oregon, after an absence of about 60 days. Mr. Luck says Oregon seems better to him every day of his visit.
