Wheat slid downward ten cents the other day—the cereal must have been reading Harding's dollar wheat speech.

Of course it is only natural that the big profiteering corporations should be for Harding and Coolidge—for Mr. Harding thinks we are taxing the big fellows too much under the income tax law.

We have the most flexible currency system we have ever known, the product of the administration. Yet, Mr. Harding is not in accord with the Federal Reserve system, which has been a splendid buffer against panics. Mr. Harding is also opposed to the land loan system of the Federal Reserve legislation. Those who believe in a system that has meant so much to the country can not understand why anyone interested in the welfare of the country should want to undo this effective legislation.

The camp this year was the largest in the history of Fairdom, and the association will try to get added conveniences. It is estimated that 5,000 campers were there this year.
