

Capital and Industry --- Keep Out

WOULD YOU, AS A PATRIOTIC CITIZEN OF OREGON, PLACE SUCH A SIGN ON THE BORDERS OF THE STATE?

That is exactly what you will help to do if you do nothing to prevent the passage of measure No. 314 and 315 on the November ballot entitled, "Constitutional Amendment Fixing Legal Rate of Interest in Oregon."

This measure proposes to limit the rate of interest in Oregon to 5 per cent. You can, by law, fix the rate of interest in Oregon, but you cannot, by law, force the loaning of money in this state, when a much higher rate can be secured elsewhere. The passage of this measure would force the withdrawal of the millions of foreign capital which today loaned on factories, business and real estate in the state and send your local money owners outside of the state to better investments.

Passage of this measure would mean foreclosure of thousands of mortgages; would result in financial paralysis, and would mean widespread unemployment.

You, no doubt, understand the viciousness of this measure, but have you talked to your neighbors and friends about it? We urge you to do everything you can to defeat this measure. Oregon's reputation as a sound state for investments requires that this measure be overwhelmingly defeated.

MANY YEARS IN ASYLUM

M. Gunter, committed from this county to the asylum on August 1, 1881, died at Salem October 16, 1920. He has been in the asylum over 39 years. Gunter formerly resided on Gales Creek, where he had a small ranch. A. H. Garrison and P. M. Dennis were to the insanity complaint, and Judge Wm. E. Smith was the presiding judge. Dr. F. A. Bailey was the examining physician, and P. M. Dennis was made the guardian of the person and estate of the committed man. Gunter was then 28 years of age, and he suffered all of those quoted above as being connected with the case. At that time the estates of insane paid the state for keep of the insane where there was no family involved, and Gunter had no relatives here. G. N. Hale was the sheriff who delivered the insane man to the asylum in East Portland, where a doctor had a contract with the state for the care and keep of the insanity cases. Mr. Hale is alive and resides in East Portland. Thirty-nine years is a long time for a man to inhabit an asylum, and although Gunter lived to three score and ten and then seven years more, his mind never improved. His bodily health must have been something wonderful. The estate, which was in 1881 valued at about $500, was expended in paying for his keep, and Deputy Luce found the final settlement where the receipts and expenditures balanced to a nicety. A. W. Lueling was the county clerk who wrote up Gunter's commitment and the late J. W. Morgan was his deputy.

OREGON EGGS IN N. Y.

Washington County poultry raisers will be interested in knowing that eggs produced in this state now occupy a position on the New York market, second only to the well known Petaluma eggs. Since New York is the highest market in the country and takes about one-fourth of the country's eggs, Oregon poultrymen should feel well satisfied with the recognition they have gained.

Oregon eggs were established on the New York market by the Oregon Poultry Producers' Association, an organization to improve marketing conditions and to eliminate speculation and waste in getting their product to the consumer. Their object is not to raise prices, but to place their eggs on the best market. Poultry flocks in Oregon are rapidly increasing and if our poultrymen are to continue in business at anything like fair returns for their work, they must ship to the market that wants their product at fair prices.

U. L. Upson, general manager of the Association, returned recently from a trip to New York to investigate market conditions, and says: "Quality and uniformity are the two things which the New York market demands—and for which it is willing to pay. At the time I was in New York there was a difference of 12 cents per dozen between the Petaluma extra fancy grade and the best grades of Iowa and middle Western stock. When Petaluma extra fancies were selling at 72 cents, Oregon No. 1s were bringing 68 cents; Seattle standards 64 cents, Los Angeles fancies 62 cents, and Iowa and Nebraska fancies selling at 60 cents. The greater part of the difference in price was due to faulty grading in allowing a very small number of inferior eggs to slip into a case of otherwise first-class stock."

"The question may be asked: How about the outlet in New York; is there any likelihood of the Coast over-supplying that market? I talked with perhaps fifty egg dealers in New York, and not one of them seemed to feel that there was the remotest possibility of such an exigency. In 1919 approximately one car per week of coast eggs were arriving in New York during August. This August the Petaluma Association had nine cars reaching there, week ending August 21, and this volume nowhere near filled the demand. Every dealer with whom I spoke, expressed the opinion that the "Pacific Coast Whites," as this grade is known in New York, would become increasingly popular, and that the supply would never equal the demand, provided the two essential factors (uniformity and quality) were maintained.

"The net result of my trip has been the conviction that the possibilities of the New York market for Pacific Coast eggs have hardly been touched, as yet, and that the Pacific Northwest, by reason of its natural advantages in the production of high quality eggs in all seasons, has a very real advantage over any other section, which it should not neglect. The only limit to the prosperity of the poultry industry in the Northwest will be the limit which the poultry producers themselves place upon the industry by their neglect or failure to cooperatively market their product and thus retain for themselves the profits which have heretofore been absorbed by the speculators."

APPRECIATED

A short time ago the ladies of the American Legion Post Auxiliary sent a shipment of chickens to the Matson-Pierce Tuberculosis Sanitarium where many ex-service men are being treated. The following letter from Mrs. P. Bartholmey, of 147 Blandan St., tells of the appreciation:

"Dear Mrs. Rollins: In behalf of our auxiliary and the boys at the hospital, I wish to thank you for the splendid treat you and your auxiliary sent to our boys. When I told them it was fried chicken for them that day they were surely well pleased. I explained to them that it was through the kindness of Hillsboro Auxiliary that we were able to serve it to them and they requested me to let you know how deeply they appreciated same. It surely would have made you all very happy could you have seen how thoroughly they enjoyed it.

They are all only grown-up boys and it cheers them to know that some other boy's more fortunate mother is taking an interest in them. We have them from 19 years of age up at the hospital. Thanking you, I am, Cordially yours."
