

COUNCIL AND BAILEY FAIL TO COMPROMISE
Next Move is up to Contractor of Pavilion
SEVERAL BLOCKS TO PAVE
Bitulibic Will be Laid on West Baseline

L. R. Bailey, the contractor who started the pavilion at Shute Park and was enjoined from work after a foundation had been started, was before the council Tuesday, accompanied by his attorney. The council and Mr. Bailey had quite a conference and could come to no agreement. After commencing for a long time Councilman J. H. Garrett moved that $250 be paid. Before it received a second the attorney for Bailey apprised the council that this would not be accepted, so the matter will be threshed out in the courts, suit having been filed a long time ago, asking for $2500. It is stated that Mr. Bailey has agreed to take a thousand dollars in settlement. The council holds that the city was really damaged but they would probably pay a nominal sum to get the matter adjusted.

The council passed an ordinance to pave Fifth from Baseline to Oak, and also passed resolution to pave First Street two blocks, north from Lincoln; and to pave from North Range to the city limits, on Baseline, 75 per cent of the property owners having signed a petition asking for the improvement.

VETERANS IN SESSION

The G. A. R. Veterans, members of the Washington Co. Veteran Ass'n, and the ladies of the W. R. C. are in session today at Veterans Hall. The life and drum corps was here and the way they played Yankee Doodle and Dixie on the streets this morning was a revelation. Comrades John Baldwin and Butler, of Forest Grove, and J. L. Crow, of Hillsboro, furnished the martial music.

There was a big community dinner at the hall at noon and L. A. Long represented the mayor in a welcome, the Mayor being unable to be in attendance because of a prior engagement.

The old boys and their ladies had a jolly time and officers are being installed this afternoon for the ensuing year. When one looks at the gleam in the eyes of the old vets he can hardly believe that sixty years ago they were fighting the first real fight for the perpetuity of a republic.

The Southern Pacific Company has ordered that beginning with the present week all cars running in and out of the city shall take the north track on Main, between Second and Third, and this reduces the congestion considerable when trains are taking on and discharging passengers. This leaves the street open to the south of the trains and one way traffic is possible at all times, and when cars are not parked automobiles can travel either way. It is reported that the company is soon to establish bells at North Range and Baseline, and on Baseline, at Sixth, to eliminate as much as possible dangers of traffic.

OREGON TRAIL IS ON FOR THREE NIGHTS

Starts This Evening at Moose Hall Under Auspices Legion Post

CLOSES SATURDAY NIGHT

Three Frontier Nights for Benefit of American Legion Boys

Tonight the three evenings program of the Oregon Trail and Frontier Nights opens at Moose Hall under the auspices of the American Legion Post No. 6 of this city, the net proceeds to go into the Legion treasury. It will be three evenings of olden days as they were in Oregon in pioneer mining camps, and there will be all kinds of fun.

Be sure and get out and give the boys a glad hand. They need your financial help and you need to have the meriment that goes with the big three nights of program. There will be more real glee in these three nights entertainment than has been staged in Hillsboro since "Hector was a pup," and you shouldn't miss a single engagement.

Those selected for the characters are well known for their proclivities to produce real sport. Take the three nights off and enjoy yourself. It will be worth while. Drive the gloom-bug into his retreat. It will help your temper, help your digestion and make new men and women out of you. "Let's Go."

The characters assigned for the three nights are:
 Mayor—A. C. Shute, who will be loaded for everybody.
 Judge—W. N. Harris, who has a fine sense of justice, tempered with a few nickels for the boys.
 Bankers—President, A. W. Hoffman; vice president, Fred Engeldinger; cashier, ladies from the Auxiliary—and they will need a Burroughs adding machine to count the shekels.
 Meat Market—C. G. Reiter and Wilber Dillon, who know how the choicest cuts are carved.
 Bartender—A. H. Morgan, Post Commander, and a regular "mixer."

Hot Dog Hotel—Lady Annie, who assures you of the best dining menu in pioneer history.
 Si Perkins Dance—Guy Edson, manager, who shoots the first man who doesn't "swing them around" to his taste.
 One Lung Laundry—Glen Powers, who has seen how washing is really done over in "Frawnce."
 Sheriff—F. Grenbemer, who will be armed with his false teeth.
 Deputy Sheriffs—who, with their chief, will nose out all the moonshiners—L. C. Allen, "Two-gun Andy"; "Eat-em-up Jack, A. W. Wilcox; Light-foot Dick, E. Nichodmus; 3-fingered Joe; William Gray; Sure-shot Jim, M. Sussbauer; Dead-eye Pete, Theo. Pitman.

Sonora Pete's Gaming Joint—Vaden Boge, Manager, who divides his winnings with the city council and the churches.
 Sonora Pete—F. Losh, a real sport.

Handsome Jim—O. VanSickle.
 Panhandle Pete—C. Dessinger.
 Bonfire Ike—G. Stipe, who proposes to be "lit up" only on state occasions.
 Overland Red—Wayne Vaught, a real "hold-up."

Wild Bill—F. Henske, who is wild enough for anybody.
 Trump Card Bill—H. D. Fuller, who "knows the game."
 Slick-finger Joe—C. Peterson, who is champion dealer.
 Black Jack Johnnie—O. Carlson.
 Chuckluck Mike—Enoch Dillon.
 Jack Pot Joe—Walter Robinson.

If this assortment of characters can't pry you loose from a hard-boiled "grouch" then you are not even half-human.

Dates—tonight, Friday night and Saturday night.

OH, SUSANNAH STAGED BY SENIOR STUDENTS

At Liberty Theatre to a Capacity Audience Last Night

REPEAT THIS EVENING

Farce Comedy Well Received—Youngsters Do Nicely

"Oh, Susannah!" a farce comedy, was rendered by the Senior Class of Hillsboro High at the Liberty Theatre last evening to a capacity house. The playlet was well received and the cast did nicely. Edward Wall, as Dr. John Shepherd, a young M. D. without funds or patients, and secretly married, had more troubles than the Allies in their peace negotiations, and he carried the major part to a nicety. Belle Taggart, as his bride, displayed enough jealousy to make her part interesting and then some, and she was a credit to the character.

Archie Pitman, as Mr. Plant, the widower father of "two jewels," characters assumed by Flosie Schiedel and Geraldine Cokerel, was A1 and the trio furnished much amusement through the parent's desire they should wed and in this the daughters were good supports. Arthur Rollins, as Lt. Merry, the Dr.'s friend, took the part of the practical joker and he nearly upsets Dr. Shepherd's promise of financial support from an aunt. Only the aunt's affection for the new bride, who appears on the scene, saves the day, and when Lt. Merry discloses how he tricked the doctor the aunt's heart warms to the impetuous medico and all is well.

Oscar Hagg, as Buttons, the Dr.'s man, was good. Oscar Humbert, as Lt. Merry's friend, the bashful lover, was a good foil to the Merry Andrew, and Rosy Jossie, as Aunt Susannah, was the real thing when affairs were straightened out. Marie Rushlow, as the Irish landlady, was some collector of apartment rents, but she tried to keep the place going—and she did.

Violet Webber, as Aurora, the maid, was the center of interest and the way she loved the Doctor was typhoonesque. When she found that he was married she immediately proclaimed herself a widow. She was more than good in her portrayal.

Miss McNeill directed the play and she is to be congratulated on the success of the affair. The play will be repeated this evening.

The High School orchestra furnished the music, and their numbers were given appreciative applause. Their instrumentation: Violins, Ruth Helms, Margaret Buerner, Deborah Wismer, Neva Cooley and Gerald Barr; guitar, Chas. Wells; cornet, Warren Barnes; saxophone, Kenneth Linklater; pianist, Lenora Bryant. Prof. Francis directed.
