Subscription, $1.50 per annum.

Issued every Thursday by Mrs. F. C. McKinney and L. A. Long

The money which will be saved by the curtailment of naval and army expenditures will more than pay adjusted compensation to the soldiers and sailors who fought for Americanism in the world war. It is hoped that the senate will ratify the pact adopted in Washington. It is not good argument for anti-senators to say that the pact is a minor league of nations, for, while true, this should not condemn it. It is high time that statesmen support that which means cutting down expenses along lines of building ships that in a few years are obsolete, anyway.

Investigation shows that the textile industries, receiving the greatest protection of all in tariff legislation, are paying the smallest wages of any of the big industries. And our Jack Bournes are still trying to keep things in just such a channel.

Mister Bean, of Eugene, wants to be governor. It isn't our funeral, but if the people of Oregon want a real "blown-in-the-bottle" corporation sympathizer the Argus invites them to support Mister Bean in the coming primaries.

The millionaire element appears to be willing that adjusted compensation shall be passed by Congress, but they want the taxes to pay it to come from the small fellows. Quite patriotic, eh?

Percy Long is visiting his folks at Eugene this week.

J. F. Peerenboom, the Holstein breeder of Roy, was in the city yesterday.

R. P. Kerkman, of the Pheasant Farm, near Shefflin, was a city caller yesterday.

One of the most delightful occasions that has come to the people of Hillsboro in many a day, was that of an illustrated lecture at the First Methodist church one evening last week, by Mrs. May Bliss, of Los Angeles, Cal., field worker with the Women's Home Missionary Society of the M. E. church. It consisted of scenes showing a trip to Alaska and return. The pictures were of the finest kind, clear, distinct and most beautiful, showing in the vivid way that marvelous country, of which most of the American people know but little. The lecture as given along with the pictures by Mrs. Bliss was replete with fine descriptions, instructive and most entertaining.

"The Old Nest," a picture depicting the highest type of mother love, was filmed at the Liberty the first of the week, and to say that it was one of the most popular shown here for some time is putting it mildly. It is a safe bet that many a son who has not seen his mother for years wrote her after witnessing it. Elevating in every respect it is a film that makes the heart grow fonder and brings home the debt that every child owes a mother.

T. P. Goodin, of Orenco, has returned home from a trip to California, accompanied by Mrs. Goodin. Tip says he is now satisfied that old Oregon is good enough for him, as he saw lots of cold down that way. He found an Argus in Los Angeles and said that it made him feel like he should get back to the old Tualatin Plains country.

M. McDonald, of Orenco, president of the Oregon Nursery Co., has returned from an extended stay in California. He says he found it extremely cold in the South and thinks that Oregon has not suffered much this winter by climatic comparisons. Me. was a sufferer from the lagrippe while absent.

Burr Leisy, of Sweet, Idaho, is here, attending the bedside of his mother, who is seriously ill at the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. E. Long, of Portland. It has been 12 years since Burr had been in Hillsboro and he saw many changes in the old boyhood home town.

Church of Christ, corner Third and Baseline Sts.—10 a. m., Bible School, Mr. McGlasson, Supt.; 11 a. m., sermon by Brother C. E. Swander; 6:45, Junior and Intermediate Endeavor; 7:30 p. m., subject, "The Power of the Gospel."—Len B. Fishback, minister.

The Hillsboro Military Band still has an opening for two altos or French horns, and also for several clarinets. Anyone playing any of these instruments or wishing to take them up, see Dr. L. W. Hyde or Wm. Grendemer.

E. J. Sherman is arranging to start his sawmill in South Tualatin as soon as the weather settles and he can get his machinery into order. Owing to the poor market last year his mill was idle.

Dr. John H. Olsen, of Portland, was a Hillsboro visitor the last of the week, on business at the court house. Young Olsen is a brother of Fred S. Olsen, of this city, and is an optometrist with offices in Portland.

Next week watch the newspapers for the schedule of Washington County Farm Bureau meetings. There will be moving picture shows and basket lunches.

Marriage licenses have been granted Lois Ann Seeley and Geo. Reed; Oscar Miller and Nellie G. Sanders; Alfonso P. Perca and Della M. Levins.

G. W. Baker, of near Beaverton, is making some fine improvements on his five-acre tract at Sorrento, a suburb, and is making additions to his home.

Mr. and Mrs. Jos. Hunt, of Piedmont, Cal., arrived from Portland today, and are guests of Mrs. Hunt's sister, Mrs. Frank Imbrie, of Orenco.

One of the sons of Mr. Angelo, of West Hillsboro, slipped Saturday and fractured an arm. Dr. J. O. Rowan attended the injury.

Mrs. Shogren, mother of Mrs. J. E. Reeves, is convalescent from a severe illness at the home of the latter, on Sixth St.

J. E. Dickason, of Portland, was out yesterday, greeting old-time Washington county friends.

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Vannett, of Sixth and Fir, Feb. 10, 1922, a son.

Chas. Robinson was over from South Tualatin yesterday afternoon.

P. C. Samsel, the Oak Park poultry man, was in the city Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. J. T. Reed, of near Scholls, were city callers the last of the week.

F. A. Retzel, of near Farmington, was a city caller Wednesday.

AMERICAN FOOD SHIP SAVES 18,000 BABES FROM STARVATION

Heroic Yankee Women Risk Lives to Rescue Children in Service of Near East Relief

Constantinople.—How the prompt action of Charles V. Vickrey, General Secretary of the Near East Relief, and Harold C. Jaquith, representative of that American relief organization in Constantinople, saved the lives of 18,000 orphan children and seven American relief workers in Alexandropol, Armenia, is what all the representatives of the Allied nations in Constantinople are applauding today.

For five years the Near East Relief organization had built up a work of mercy throughout the former Turkish Empire and Transcaucasia, to a point where 54,600 little children were being housed, clothed, fed, given medical attendance and taught, and over 55,000 others being supplied with food. Then suddenly, on February 5, last, there came hurried cable reports of renewed fighting in Armenia and Transcaucasia, where 75,818 of these little ones were located under the protection of the Near East Relief. Consular representatives left the country. All foreigners piled onto ships and fled. War threatened to scatter the work and render vain the long, patient efforts of the Near East Relief to salvage a whole nation's children.

But the American men and women who had cared for these little ones were undismayed. They refused to leave under bombardment, with hostile armies sweeping through the streets where the Near East Relief's great orphanages had been established, with all supplies cut off and no communication with the outside world, or with that far American homeland whose representatives these heroic men and women are, they stuck to their posts. The last food from America had come in on November 6, 1920.

It was not until four months later that the new governments of the Transcaucasian states were established on a solid basis. But famine threatened. An appeal was made to American philanthropy: "Critical need for food products in Caucasus," the cable read. "No limit to need in Armenia. New government promises better facilities for relief activity than former government." A few days later, a further piteous plea followed: "Total orphans in Alexandropol 18,000. Supplies in Alexandropol allow half-rations, April 2nd to 30th. After May 1st, nothing."

But this splendid American relief organization had not waited. Food was already on the way. On April 22, Charles V. Vickrey, general secretary of the Near East Relief, cabled: "Expect ship first week in May: 1,600 tons rice; 1,000 tons wheat flour; 600 tons cornmeal, corn flour, hominy; 20 tons sugar; 500 tons beans; 5,000 cases corn syrup, from New York and New Orleans direct to Batumi. Additional 1,000 tons wheat flour from Pacific Coast June 1st."

The seven American relief workers in charge of the 18,000 little ones in Alexandropol cabled a last appeal: "No food at any price. Four days more and we are finished." But when the first relief ship, "Queen" entered the deserted harbor of Batumi on May 1, there were just ten bags of flour left. The food ship had come in time. America had saved the day—and the 18,000 little orphan children, who had suffered so much and lost so much in their short, war-clouded lives, never knew that giant hunger in the robes of death had knocked at the door of the orphanage at Alexandropol—and that America had thrust the bony hand away.

"It is the great heart of America that made this work of salvation possible," Mr. Vickrey declared. "The money that sends the bread to these children comes from ten million homes throughout the United States. It comes from the hearts of the most generous people in the world, who cannot bear to know that half a world away, little children are facing hunger and death, without helping them to life and happiness."

Mr. Vickrey is making a nationwide appeal to the people of the United States to keep this great work going. Contributions may be sent to Cleveland H. Dodge, Treasurer, Madison Avenue, New York City.

Jake Milne, of near North Plains, was in the city the last of the week.
