

GOVERNOR PIERCE VISITS COUNTY SEAT

Speaks to Pomona Grange and to Public in Court Square

STATE MASTER SPENCE TOO

Congressman McArthur Unable to be in Attendance

Governor Walter Pierce visited Hillsboro Wednesday as a guest of the Washington County Pomona Grange and delivered an address in the court house square in the afternoon, talking on tax matters and affairs of state.

That the governor is under "urge" to make good as governor goes without saying and he is amply able to take care of himself in any atmosphere.

Another good talker of the program was State Master E. C. Spence, who under the new law is state market agent, and Spence is a man who always is fighting for his ideals and the ideals of the patrons of husbandry.

Mr. Besse, who is in charge of the co-operative marketing department of O. A. C. told of what the college and other adherents of state marketing from a cooperative standpoint are doing and his address showed that he is master of his subject.

There was a big attendance of Grangers at the Pomona meeting and the session was stellar in all respects.

BORERS KILL TREES

Thousands of young fruit trees, planted last spring, were killed during the summer by attacks of borers, says A. L. Lovett, chief in entomology at Oregon Experiment Station. This large loss was sustained in spite of the fact that borers may successfully attack only unthrifty, poorly growing trees.

Two methods of preventing borers from attacking the trees are suggested by Mr. Lovett. The placing of a barrel stave, or similar shield on the southwest side of the tree to cast a shadow on the trunk is one method. This prevents sun scald of the bark which attracts borer attacks.

A good whitewash is also a protection against attacks of boring insects. One of the most successful receipts for making whitewash is eight pounds of quick lime, one-half pound of glue or casein (powdered) one-fourth pound of copper sulphate, and one pound of flaked naphthaline, with enough water to make a whitewash about the consistency of paint.

MOVING COUNTY DEAD RECALLS 1894 MURDER

Body of Gus Wachline Among Those Exhumed at Newton Plat

KILLED OLD J. D. LEDRICK

Was Hanged for the Crime on February 4, 1898, in Court Yard

The exhuming of the bodies in the county poor farm plat this week for re-burial in the local cemetery recalls that among those taken up is that of Gus Wachline, who was hanged in the Hillsboro court yard on February 4, 1898, after conviction of the murder of John D. Ledrick, near Blooming, in April, 1894. Wachline killed the aged farmer, buried the body in a pile of compost at the rear of the barn, took the old man's team to Portland and sold it and was in Eastern Oregon for over three years, when he was apprehended in Morrow county and brought back to Hillsboro for trial.

It is popularly supposed that the murderer stole what ready money the old man had at the house.

Wachline put up a stiff defense but was convicted. He entered a plea of not guilty Nov. 24, 1897 and the jury found him guilty on Dec. 11, 1897. Judge McBride, who heard the case, sentenced him on Dec. 18 following.

The late Capt. A. M. Collins built the scaffold and on Feb. 4, 1898, Wachline expired his crime on the gallows. The death mask was adjusted by the late Sheriff Wm. D. Bradford and the drop was sprung at 12:10 p. m.

Drs. F. A. Bailey, S. T. Linklater and J. P. Tamsie, the physicians in attendance, announced that life was extinct 14 minutes later. Wachline was a man of powerful frame and his heart was a long time stopping its beat.

The judge who pronounced the death sentence is now on the Supreme bench, but the sheriff who executed Wachline has long since been gathered to his fathers. Strange it is that both the executed and the executioner were buried in the same plat and are now being removed to a final resting place. Of the sheriff's jury a number have passed away. The jurors who attached the death certificate to the final court proceedings in accordance with law were:

R. H. Greer, Hillsboro; G. W. Stitt, Beaverton; J. H. Dilberger, then of Laurel; Ole Olson, of below Beaverton; H. Wehrung, J. J. Palmater, Conrad Schulmerich, G. N. Hale, Hillsboro; T. W. Thompson, Gaston; L. F. Carstens, Banks; A. K. Watson, then of North Plains, and S. A. D. Meek, of near Mountaineale.

As a stroke of journalism then new in Hillsboro the Argus and Independent published extras which were on the street an hour after the execution.

METHODIST CHURCH

Dr. Smith's Radio broadcasted the Epworth League Devotional Service last Sunday between five and six o'clock. We thank him for his help. The hour is 6:30 p. m., and friends will be cordially welcome.

Please mark the 2nd Sunday in May as Mother's Day. The Sunshine Girls are arranging to remember the Mothers at a beautiful service during the Junior Church hour.

Now is the time of year to teach your auto to go to church that the habit may cling all summer. There is large opportunity in the five services of each Sunday.—M. E. Pastor.

PUNISHING CHILDREN

To punish a child with defective eyesight that is falling behind in school work is just as cruel as it is to beat one who has a club foot, because he limps. Most all children that fall behind in the junior grades have defective eyes and should be carefully examined. Consult Dr. Lutzar, at Anderson's Jewelry Store, Hillsboro, on Saturdays. 8-9
