The Willard-Firpo bout takes place in the East tonight, and at six o'clock this evening the returns will begin to come. Willard appears to be the favorite here with boxing fans, and many want to see him win that he may later get a chance to try conclusions with Dempsey, still undefeated champion.
A writer in the Oregonian tells the public that the Portland-Salem stage drivers put pretty girls in the front seat and this distracts the attention of the stage man, and he is liable to wreck a load of passengers. Here on the Hillsboro-Portland run the boys who handle the wheel have a penchant for putting the "grannies" in the front seat.

Investigation shows that the farmer is selling his product lower and lower, while he pays a higher price for that which he must buy. Atop of this we find there is dissension in farmers' organizations, and talk of dissolution because things are not coming smoothly and reforms are not perfected in a day or a week. Time and again the Argus has pointed out that the farmer brings his product to the market and asks "what will you give me?" He takes his payment and then, when he starts out to buy, says, "How much must I pay?" Only successful organizations can make conditions that will mean a fifty-fifty break for the producer, so that at least he can fix the price of what he has to sell, and the farmer appears, as a whole, to have an especial aversion to organization—the only thing that will spell a solution of the other fellow fixing the farmers' selling price, as well as his buying price.

JAPANESE EPIC

Hiyeda, the Japanese who has been eleven years on the John Dennis place, has sub-leased the place to an American, and in his advertisement in this issue tells why, in his quaint way, that he is going to sell his stock and not be a part of the "Japanese" problem. Hiyeda comes as near being 100 per cent American as any of them, and has life membership in the American Red Cross for himself, his wife, and his children.

The Argus prints his advertisement as Mr. Hiyeda writes it in good chirography, and it is worth while reading.

GLORIA SWANSON

Gloria Swanson, starring in a new Sam Wood production, "Prodigal Daughters," will be on the screen at the Liberty, Sunday, Monday and Tuesday. Gloria's gowns are more superb than ever and the role in "Prodigal Daughters" gives her a fine vehicle in which to stage her talents. It is a Paramount picture—and that is sufficient to movie fans. Chas. Clary, who was in "The Connecticut Yankee," appears in this picture—and old Theodore Roberts, who always fits into a character like he was the character himself, is in the photoplay. With Swanson and Roberts both in the offering—what more is wanted?

AT THE LIBERTY

Alice Brady, the new screen star, in "The Snow Bride," will be the Liberty program Friday and Saturday. This is one of the Northern pictures that carries such splendid photography that in a July evening you see breath frost in the audience—and Miss Brady scored a knockout when this offering was given theatre patrons. The entire cast is brilliant and this upper Canada play will please. Usual matinee Saturday afternoon.

GRANGE NOTICE

All members are invited to be present at the meeting Saturday, July 14—an important program. State Lecturer will be present.

Nels Larson, of below Minter Bridge, was up to the county seat Tuesday.

I. V. Trullinger, oldtime Hillsboro resident, spent the last of the week in the city.

N. P. Larson, working at Brighton, was greeting friends here Saturday, having been over holiday week.

Deputy Edw. C. Luce returned from his vacation just in time to take care of the July rush for marriage licenses—July so far is giving June a close race for honors.

Raymond Gray, who has been at Seaside for several weeks, returned home the last of the week. He reports Alvin Johnson, of this city, as doing well in a refreshment stand at that resort.

A. J. Manley, florist for the Clarkes, below the city park, was operated on for acute appendicitis by Dr. E. H. Smith, the other day, and Miss Lillian Peters, of Bonners Ferry, Idaho, a guest at the Prah home, underwent an operation for a like affliction, and is at the Smith hospital.

JAIL BREAK FOILED

J. H. Kruger, who was convicted of wife beating, and Garland Brooks, charged with stealing W. H. French's auto, were foiled in an attempted jail break Tuesday night, shortly after midnight. The boys had worked out the brick and were ready to hop off when Pete Siehoff and A. Wallace, prisoners on liquor charge sentences, discovered the work on the wall. Pete, who has been a trusty for some time, told the two to quit work, but they persisted. Wallace dragged the officers, it is said by waving a handkerchief, and they soon had the two culprits back in limbo. Pete says that Kruger told him they would cut his insides out if he interfered, and he told them they would wallop them over the head with a club if they widened a hole in the wall. Kruger got in bad with the court, who was inclined to parole him, and yesterday the would be escapee was taken into court and given six months—so there is a sorrowful harbinger in the county jail. Young Brooks will be tried on the auto theft later. He is a son of the man, Brooks, who was killed by an S. P. train he was trying to board on Main street, several years ago. Pete will probably get a parole today, as he has served six or seven months and he will probably pay some money and take his exit.

The constant rains for a couple of days after the Fourth played havoc with the cherry crop, splitting many of the Royal Anns, which were in demand for canning. Logans also suffered from the moisture, and by the time the kies had cleared the berries were so soft for commercial pack.

Such hay was damaged, as a great many farms had cut the first of the week. Hundreds of acres of grain were partially flattened, and the loss will not be severe at all, for it went down in "swirls," saving much of it standing. The weather god has been playing havoc with every harvest so far—first the clover hay, then the berries, and then the grain—and still here will be a fine harvest yet, unless Jupiter gets that old springing can at work again.
