TRIES TO CASH CHECK

Jake Weil Frustrates Attempt of Alleged Forger

That Jake Weil should be sent to Paris next year as a sprinter on the American Olympic team is contended by many who saw him running down the street after an unknown person who is said to have tried to cash a forged check on the Weil Department Store last Friday night.

The alleged forger was unable to remember his own name when asked by Mr. Weil, who was suspicious of the unknown's actions. The name of John Walters was used on the check and it was payable to John Fulton. The sheriff was notified, but was unable to locate the alleged forger.

Amount Required to Operate Hillsboro is $34,578. Park Is Self-Supporting

The total levy for Hillsboro of $24,533 for 1924 has been approved by the tax commission and the city council passed an ordinance Monday night providing for the levy. The budget allows for $4,417 for the payment of interest on bonds. The street department is allowed $4300 and this is taken care of by a county road district levy. There is no levy for the park as it is taken care of from the receipts of the dances.

UNION HIGH SCHOOL FINDS OPPOSITION

Will Make Another Effort to Secure Signers

CHAMBER OPPOSES BRIDGE

J. D. Mickle Here to Urge Poultry Producers to Join State Association

That difficulty has been encountered in securing signatures to the union high petitions in the vicinity of Reedville and that on account of this the work of the committee was being held up, was the announcement made by C. E. Wells of the committee at the meeting of the Hillsboro chamber of commerce Thursday night. Another endeavor will be made to get signers to the petitions in that vicinity.

Oppose Bridge

The construction of a bridge between Longview, Wash., and Rainier was not viewed with favor by the chamber, and a resolution was passed asking the federal authorities to refuse permission to build the bridge. This follows the action taken by other chambers in the state.

The fruit-growers from Cornelius and Hillsboro will meet in committee room of the chamber Saturday night and it is thought that the Cornelius growers will join the Washington county association at this time. Efforts are expected to be made later to bring the Scholls and other districts into the association.

Mickle Here

The chamber of commerce has been asked by J. D. Mickle, state dairy and food commissioner, to urge the poultry producers to join the poultry association. Mr. Mickle, who was a chamber visitor Monday, says that members are still needed to secure the number of eggs necessary to carry on effective work. Mr. Mickle was here as a representative of the agricultural committee of the Portland chamber of commerce and was endeavoring to get the bankers' association, the chamber of commerce and other organizations to support the drive for members in the poultry association.

Mr. Mickle will be asked to speak before the chamber some time in January.

Hillsboro has had the worst of it in measles, says the doctor. Forest Grove seems to be relatively free of the epidemic and Gaston, Tigard, Sherwood and Tualatin have only a few scattering cases.

Elmer E. Nickersen of Banks and Olive M. Deakins of Portland were married in Portland yesterday.

Frank Doohar of Minneapolis, Minnesota, is in Hillsboro visiting friends and relatives. He has been visiting his uncle T. J. McParland of Buxton for several weeks. Hilhi Meets Beaverton Tomorrow In First Game

The 1924 basketball season will be opened in the new high school gymnasium Friday night, when the local quintet locks horns with Coach "Mike" Metzler's five from Beaverton. The girls' teams will also play.

The new gymnasium enables the high school to take care of larger crowds at the basketball games and it is hoped that the townspeople give the team the same support in basketball that they gave in football. Prospects are bright for a winning team and Coach "Goody" Goodman is out to make a record in basketball.

LLOYD COMEDIES NOT MADE TO PATTERN

Each Distinctive in Type. "Why Worry" is Pure Farce

Motion picture stars frequently fall into the rut, because they persistently follow the same line of story, and the same type of characterization. They never deviate because they feel that the public demands them in a certain type of picture.

Harold Lloyd has proven the fallacy of this belief. Lloyd has gone ahead all the time because he has never established himself in any certain type of picture. Because his audiences never know what to expect from him, and don't worry because they know he always gives them something that is worth while.

In "Why Worry?" his latest Pathcomedy entry in the race for popular plaudits, and the feature attraction at the Liberty Theater January 2, 3 and 4, Lloyd again pursues his own theory that to mix them up is to serve the public best. Because one likes roast beef is no reason why it should be served him for every meal. And for the same motive, there is no reason why a star should enact a certain type of picture continuously because he happened to achieve a great success in one of them.

"Why Worry?" is as unlike any picture Harold Lloyd has made before, as any two things could be. It is a South American story, strong in farce but with an ever present vein of satire that should prove delightful to the American audience which does not like its entertainment too serious.

It is the biggest picture in Lloyd's category, from the point of production. Big sets, huge crowds, and much fighting add to its production values. Yet above all these stands out the character of Lloyd, as the boy who has naught to worry him but imaginary ills. Another outstanding figure is John Aasen. Eight feet, nine and a quarter inches of Aasen stands out on the screen. He is the world's biggest man.

Offered in conjunction with "Why Worry," William Duncan, in the much-heralded Universal chapter-play, "The Steel Trail," adds one of the biggest triumphs of his career to his long line of successes when the new picture opens at the Liberty Theater January 2, 3 and 4. The play is one of the greatest stories Duncan has ever had; a virile story of ultra-modern days, with a construction engineer battling man-made plots and the elements to push his line of steel rails into the wilderness.

Spectacular phases of the construction of a great railroad form the basis of the thrilling play. Plot and counterplot, narrow escapes and other thrills mark every exciting foot of the rapidly-moving story. It is unique among chapter plays in that every angle of the story is modern—the problems of the engineer of today, the methods of the builders of today, and the financial influence behind the day are all mirrored in this epic of the railroad.

The cast is ideal, including such well known players as Harry Carter, Ralph Fee McCullough, Mabel Randall, John Cossar, Frank Whitson, Harry Woods and Cathleen Calhoun.

Guisepp Lorenzini withdrew his plea of not guilty and Judge Bagley fined him $3000 on indictment number one and a year in the county jail. He was also given $3000 on the second indictment and the same jail sentence. If he pays $1000 of his fine on the first indictment he will be paroled on indictment number two and the jail sentences.

Joseph Panmenka was paroled on condition that he report every month to the court. In the cases of the State versus A. Wallace he was paroled on good behavior. Those against William W. Muir, John H. Thomas, William G. Clark and Mabel Nelson were dismissed.
