Local Girls Take Part In Program

Belle Taggart and Irene Buckley in Interpretative Dancing Program

University of Oregon, Eugene, Feb. 28.—(Special)—Irene Buckley and Belle Taggart of Hillsboro participated in the recent program of interpretative dances given by twenty-five girls in the Woman's building of the University of Oregon. These girls are members of Orchestus, the advanced dancing organization that sponsored the program.

The dances were given for the benefit of the Orchestus scholarship fund. The society, which is one of a number of similar groups in other universities, sends each year one Oregon student to the University of Wisconsin for a summer of study in interpretative dancing. Last year the scholarship was won by Neva Service of Baker, Oregon.

Thomas J. Nault of near Beaverton was in town Friday.

The Epworth League boys entertained the girls at a waffle dinner at the Methodist Episcopal church last Saturday. Perhaps it is enough to say that it was a happy and satisfying evening.
