

COUNTY ROAD WORK IS WELL ORGANIZED

County Said to Get More for Money in Road Building

27 MILES ARE COMPLETED

Jones and Scott, Market Road
Engineers, Address Rotarians Thursday

"The county is now at a stage where it gets more for its money in road building," declared Charles F. Jones, county market road engineer, in an address on Washington county road conditions before the Rotary club last Thursday. Finis Brown, prominent Laurel resident, was luncheon chairman.

Turn to Maintenance

Twenty-seven miles of standard macadam market road are now completed and the county engineers will turn their attention to maintenance. Mr. Jones said they expect to complete between 30 and 35 miles next year through the co-operation of district and county. He expects that the designated system of 202 miles will be completed within seven years.

"No piece of road is complete until it has had a winter," explained the engineer. "The valuation will increase as the road system is completed. The county court deserves a lot of credit for it is going ahead with the idea in mind of the greatest good for the greatest number."

State Market Road Engineer Scott, who was present, said that Washington county was becoming well organized in road work and that it now has a definite program.

Mr. Morrow, engineering department of Portland and Portland Rotarian, said that the roads should be put in right to start with.

Judge Ekwall and W. C. Alderson, superintendent of Multnomah county schools, also addressed the members.

That the county had purchased a Gilbert motor patrol grader for use in market road maintenance in the county, was the announcement made to the Rotarians by Engineer Jones. He also said that a complete cost keeping system would be used at the authorization of the court.

The Rotarians were taken out over the hill after the luncheon to see the kind of work that was being done.

Good Farm Management and Intensive Production Show Good Results on J. J. VanKleeck & Sons Farm at Kinton

Good farm management and intensive production have enabled J. J. VanKleeck to build up one of the finest farms in Washington county at his place on the Tualatin near Kinton. The farm is run under the name of J. J. VanKleeck and Sons.

Three representatives of the Hillsboro chamber of commerce, L. J. Merrill of the Shute Savings bank, Secretary W. W. Phillips of the chamber, and W. V. McKinney of the Hillsboro Argus, visited the VanKleeck place Friday and were considerably interested in the intensive way in which the VanKleecks have gone into the farming game.

The VanKleeck place is reached over the old river road to Kinton, where you turn to the right on the Pleasant Valley road for a short distance.

J. J. VanKleeck was born in Wisconsin, where he lived until after his marriage. The cold winters plus the advice of friends here in Oregon caused him to come to the Tualatin Valley 34 years ago. The section where he now lives was plotted off in ten-acre tracts and he purchased a small amount of land. As the owners of the other tracts became tired of their bargains he bought tract after tract until he now has 173 acres of some of the best land in Washington county. His three sons, Emory, Wayne and Fred,

Reeves, when questioned this morning by an Argus representative concerning the report from Salem that Governor Pierce is considering the appointment of the Washington county sheriff as warden of the state prison.

The funeral of Mrs. J. W. Sewell was held Sunday afternoon at the Bell chapel, Rev. H. A. Deck conducting the service. The funeral was one of the largest held here for years and was attended by friends and relatives from far and near.

SALEM HIGH ELEVEN DEFEAT HILLSBORO

Dashing Team from Capitol
Shows Superiority in the Game Last Friday

A charging bunch of Senators in football uniforms representing the Salem high school invaded Hillsboro last Friday afternoon and administered a severe whipping to a much crippled Hill eleven. When darkness settled down over the high school field and the final whistle had blown, Salem had 28 points and Hillsboro had none.

The absence of Quarterback "Chuck" Hoag from his regular position because of injuries sustained in the game was the blow that killed father. His ability to pass accurately was sorely missed.

Salem demonstrated their plugging ability in the first quarter but were unable to put across the first touchdown until the first of the second quarter.

A long pass to Captain Kent of Hillsboro was a real threat as the half ended and gave Hill fans a new lease on life. The second half had no sooner opened up, however, until Salem intercepted a pass on the 20-yard line and ran over for a touchdown. Later in the same quarter they intercepted another pass and shoved it across for the few remaining yards. The Senators last touchdown came as the result of a fumble late in the last quarter. They shoved it across and dropped-kicked for the 28th point.

A large group of Salem students were on hand to boost for their team and they showed remarkable spirit. A Salem girl fainted during the game and had to be carried into the high school for rest. Another girl was knocked down when a runner was tackled near the sidelines.

ARMISTICE DAY IS CELEBRATED HERE

"Paint War as it Really Is."
Says Prof. Hewitt

LEGION GIVES PROGRAM

Exercises in Venetian Following March of Veterans
Full of Interest

Whistles and sirens screamed yesterday morning as they did on that joyous eleventh hour of the eleventh day of the eleventh month just seven years ago when millions of soldiers were freed from further conflict. Hillsboro celebrated Armistice Day in fitting fashion when all joined forces in appreciation of the day and in the hopes that another such war would never happen.

Price of War

"The price of the World War was the sacrifice of the generations to come," declared Professor Roy R. Hewitt of the political science department of O. A. C., who was the principal speaker. He said that the flower of manhood was taken in war without regard to the future of mankind. Professor Hewitt said that because this is the price it must be abolished or outlawed and that in doing this a spirit must be developed throughout the world for arbitration and to acquiesce in the decision of a world court or league of nations. He brought out the fact that the world war cost enough to endow 40,000 universities with $5,000,000 each and to build and equip 84,000 high schools costing $100,000 each.

"Wars are not an accident, they grow up in the mind of the youth," asserted the speaker. "They grow out of the fact that veterans do not tell of the terrible side of war but rather the glamour or better side. The veteran owes it to his country to paint the true side."

The speaker then proceeded to drive his point home with a splendid picturization of the true side of war in "No Man's Land."

Honor the Veterans

"It is fitting that these men of the American Legion, who offered so much, should insist that this day be honored," declared Professor Hewitt, who lectured in England and Scotland during the war to increase the morale and who also carried a stretcher in the Meuse-Argonne. "It is a time when all America should honor those who died."

"If we must fight, fight the enemies of mankind—ignorance and waste," he urged.

The Hillsboro post of the American Legion marched from the Veterans Memorial hall at 11 o'clock to the Venetian theatre where the exercises were held. They were led by the colors and the "Big Five" drum corps of the G. A. R. Earl Haworth and Sam Nelson were the color bearers and Ray Dillon and Ivan Freeman were guards.

Sing "America"

C. T. Richardson led the audience in "America" to start the program. Rev. S. McMinis of the Baptist church gave the invocation and this was followed by one minute of silence in honor of the soldier dead. Vincent Engeldinger played taps on the organ. The Legion Armistice Day ritual parts were given by Commander McKinney, Vice-Commander Merrill, Adjutant Cull and Chaplain Fred Engeldinger. The G. A. R. drum corps then stirred the hearts of those present with several martial airs. A mixed quartet composed of Misses Mattie Case and Goldie Sewell, R. L. Tucker and Hugh Naldrett entertained delightfully with several vocal numbers. Community singing of "Star Spangled Banner" led by C. T. Richardson completed the exercises. Commander McKinney of the legion post presided. Fred Engeldinger was general chairman of the day.

The seventh annual Armistice Day ball at the auditorium ended the festivities for the day. A. W. Hoffman was dance chairman.

New Car Stolen

A brand new Chevrolet demonstrator, owned by Joe Kasper of the Tualatin Valley Motor company, was stolen from in front of the Shute Savings bank last Friday night while the owner was at the picture show. No trace of the car has been found.

The Federal grand jury will meet in Portland November 30, at 2 p. m., and the following Washington county men have been drawn to serve: C. R. Adams, Hillsboro; E. J. Lawrence, Sherwood; A. S. Sholes, Cornelius, and Charles W. Spiering, Hillsboro.

Orvil Jack of Hillsboro was hurt about the face in an automobile accident near Amity yesterday.

John Halversen of Farmington fractured his right cheek bone while stepping from a stage Sunday night before it came to a stop. He was taken to the Smith hospital.

Aviator Speaks at Forum Luncheon

R. H. Merrill Believes That Landing Field Would be Beneficial Here

Commercial aviation was the subject of an address before the forum luncheon of the chamber of commerce Monday noon by R. H. Merrill of Seward, Alaska. Mr. Merrill is the brother of L. J. Merrill, president of the Shute Savings bank, who was luncheon chairman.

He said that a landing field would prove of great benefit to Hillsboro in years to come. Mr. Merrill brot out the fact that no immediate benefits would result, however.

The trip of the seaplane to Alaska last spring was described by Mr. Merrill. It was brought out later that it was the first commercial plane to cross to Seward. The around-the-world fliers were there first.

H. M. A. Proved to be Better Swimmers

Armistice Day Game Won in Seat of Mud on Hill
Field; Score 7-6

Hill Military Academy proved themselves better swimmers yesterday afternoon in the football game against Hilli and came to shore victors by one point after the final whistle. The score: Hill, 7; Hilli, 6.

Hundreds of rain soaked and enthusiastic football fans saw the Hill eleven shove across the first touchdown in the first quarter with little difficulty. They failed on the kick. They got a break on the kickoff when a Hill back dropped the ball and Hillsboro recovered. They couldn't make the rifle, however, and Hill got the ball on downs and marched down the field to within striking distance when the quarter ended. They lunged through in the first of the second quarter and instead of kicking for the extra point ran through center for the extra point.

Hillsboro had all the best of it in the last half but didn't have the necessary punch when an aerial attack placed them within scoring distance. The game ended with the ball in midfield and in Hill's possession.

Health Nurse Is Added to Budget

The sum of $2000 for a county health nurse was put on the budget again Friday afternoon after it was slashed earlier in the week. Delegations from the Washington County Federation of Women's clubs, the Parent-Teachers association and the County Teachers association petitioned the committee and the county court to put the amount back on the budget.

Connell Seeks Injunction

J. W. Connell has instituted suit for an injunction against Clarence Hamlin to the effect that he was to pay $250 for 200 sacks of his No. 1 potatoes and if not sufficient No. 1, to fill up with No. 2. The plaintiff says in the suit that the potatoes have not been delivered and he asks that the court require defendant to deliver the potatoes and prevent him from selling them elsewhere.

Woman Injured

Mrs. Helen Davis was injured about the leg and ankle in an automobile accident near Tigard Sunday. D. A. Davis of Portland, who was driving one car, alleges in his report that W. P. Hart of Portland did not have his car under control.

Open Dairy Paving

One side of the concrete paving on the fill over Dairy creek west of the city was opened to the traveling public the last of the week. The signal lighting system at the fill is proving very efficient.

Legion Expresses Thanks

Hillsboro Post No. 6 of the American Legion wishes to express its appreciation for the patronage given them on their play last week by the people of Hillsboro and vicinity, and especially for the music donated by the James Peppard's orchestra.

Chaplin as a Maid

In "The Man on the Box," the Warner Bros. classic of the screen which is at the Venetian theatre Sunday, Monday and Tuesday, Syd Chaplin, who is being starred, impersonates a flirtatious maid in one sequence, and is said to have piled up even a higher percentage of high volume laughs than he did in his female disguise in "Charley's Aunt." Charles "Chuck" Reiser directed this picturization of the well known novel and play of Harold MacGrath.

244 TEACHERS AT COUNTY INSTITUTE

Record in Association Membership Established

JUDGE EKWALL SPEAKER

U. of O. Extension Worker
Says Community History
Should be Saved

Two hundred and forty-four teachers, comprising every instructor in the elementary and secondary schools of Washington county attended the county institute held in the Hillsboro high school Thursday and Friday of last week. A record was attained at the institute never before reached in the State of Oregon and perhaps in any county of any of the states in the United States, according to Dean E. D. Resaler of the Oregon Agricultural college, secretary of the Oregon State Teacher's association. Every teacher in the county is a member of the (1) County Teacher's association, (2) State Teachers' association and (3) National Educational association.

"The Wayward Boy"

Municipal Judge W. R. Ekwall of Portland discussed "The Wayward Boy." From his position on the bench at Portland he has the opportunity to make a thorough study of the problem. He told of the responsibility of the teachers in training the future citizens, and in moulding the minds of the nation's youth. "I think most teachers and parents and law enforcing agencies are too quick in their snap judgment in shooting boys and girls off to the state training school," he said. "Especially the teachers should be more patient. In a great many cases the individual can be saved to society."

Superintendent W. C. Alderson of the Multnomah county schools, candidate for the state post of superintendent of public instruction, also addressed the teachers.

Discuss Local History

Morelle Hair, M. A., member of the faculty of the University of Oregon extension division, discussed local history contests. "Our national history is built upon the intimate records of communities and of people," Miss Hair told the assembled pedagogues. "You understand people and events when you get into the intimate details of their life."

"The interesting and quaint old things of the community ought to be saved. The school children's contests is one means of doing it. You have a rich field here in the Tualatin valley. Many of the old pioneers are still alive."

Friday morning Miss Hair addressed the teachers on "Oregon Writers and Poets."

Professor H. F. Hopkins of Pacific university found three things wrong with the great educational machine today: (1) the short story preparation in the training of the teachers, as many of the district teachers in the southern states and the East do not even have an elementary school training; (2) too short a tenure for teachers—none of the average contracts are for more than one year; (3) the machine is out of adjustment—it isn't worth while to train for a teacher because of the poor salaries.

McGlasson Speaks

Superintendent J. P. McGlasson of Beaverton spoke on the value of the National Educational association to the teachers. As well as being a big centralizing agency in American education, he declared it stood for higher standards and higher salaries in the educational world. Mrs. Emma Bryant, superintendent for Washington county, discussed corporal punishment. She held that twice or three times a year was enough, and that the average child usually doesn't deserve any.

The Parent-Teacher's association was discussed by Mrs. George Perkins, past state president, who appealed for a better co-operation between the home and the school. President A. A. Baldwin of the county association from Metzger declared himself in favor of the need of cleaning up journalism in the country, especially the cartoons. He held that such a strong educational force

Pugh Buys in Exchange

Well Known Local Man Now
Partner of Alexander

Al E. Pugh, who has been with the local Ford dealers here for nine years, has purchased a half interest in the Used Car Exchange and is now in partnership with W. S. Alexander.

Mr. Pugh was with the Otto Erickson & Co., Ford dealers, until they sold their Hillsboro business to MacKenzie Motor company. He left the MacKenzie company the first of the month.
