

ARGUS COOKING CLASSES WILL END TODAY

How often you have been asked, yes, begged to go along. Much as you wanted to, you couldn't because you had to get dinner. They are growing up for the first and last time and how you would love to spend hours with them. You realize the pleasure it would give and the need of the influence of your companionship, but your sense of duty keeps you tied to your cook stove. Meals must be prepared. If you had someone to attend to your cooking and watch your baking while you swept, dusted, made beds and washed dishes, one who cooked your dinner all ready to go onto the table when you arrived with your family at meal time, you could then give your boy and girl the time they so want and need.

"You have probably read lengthy articles on the advantages of the thermostatically controlled oven. It sounded complicated, and with the part of your brain that wasn't planning tomorrow's work, you thought

Mrs. Rose Bartlett

It would be nice if you had the time to run it. A thermostatically controlled oven, in plain English, is an oven with a wheel on the side with numbers ranging from 250 to 550 degrees, the entire range of cooking temperatures. After the wheel is set according to a proven temperature, given on a chart, the oven is lighted, the regulator automatically brings the heat of the oven to the desired temperature and maintains that temperature exactly until the gas is shut off.

Many baking and cooking failures are due to the overheating or underheating of the baking of the food for too short or too long a time. Temperature cannot be guessed at, and even if a thermometer be used, an exact temperature cannot be maintained, unless one is willing to stand alongside the stove and constantly adjust the heat. The heat regulator does this automatically.

Also the heat regulator, by maintaining the heat of the oven at a very low temperature, makes it possible to cook a whole meal, broil soups and vegetables, roast meats, and bake desserts in the oven, all at one time, while you are miles away with your boy and girl. That means dinner ready when you return. The heat regulator maintains an even temperature for baking, making oven peeping unnecessary. Simply place your baking in the oven, go ahead with your other work and when it is baked, return to your kitchen and remove it from the oven.

In canning season, fill your jars with fruit and syrup, place them in the oven to sterilize, return to your kitchen to remove them from the oven and tighten the lids. And such fruit! Not cooked until it falls in pieces, but as firm as when you placed it in the jar.

"The heat regulator saves food, gas, time and labor. In fact, it is the greatest contribution ever made to the comfort, happiness and health of the housewife. It give her time to spend with her boys and girls that is now spent in oven peeping and pot watching, and every housewife knows how many hours of freedom and happiness this could give her."

Besides the two cakes given as door prizes, three grand prizes will be given. The grand prizes will be:

- 1—One enamel Hawkeye time control clock.
- 2—One Vulcan waffle iron.
- 3—One pancake griddle.

These prizes are all of good quality and the person drawing them will indeed be fortunate. The last class convenes at 2:30 p. m. today.

The Argus wishes to thank the ladies of Hillsboro and vicinity for their attendance at these classes and hopes that all have profited thereby.

NO TAX LEVY IN U. H. S. UNTIL VOTED

district which would be taken into consideration in the budget of the union high school district as anticipated receipts, and of course, would to that extent have a bearing upon the tax levy made for the purpose of operating the union high school.

The persons who have so strenuously opposed the formation of a union high school district and who by their various statements caused numerous persons to remove their names from petitions circulated for that purpose, have insisted that the patrons of school district No. 7 would control the entire union high school district because a greater population is within school district No. 7 than in any of the other districts. Under the law, the board of directors of the union high school district, when organized, will be five in number, only one of whom may be a resident of school district No. 7. If the voters of the territory outside of school district No. 7 by their vote should refuse to elect a member of this board from school district No. 7, then school district No. 7 will have no representative whatsoever on the board, and the people living within the district outside of Hillsboro will have full charge of the school.

It is believed by those interested in the welfare of the high school, whether or not it be a high school in school district No. 7 or a union high school district composed of school district No. 7 and surrounding community, that the residents of the districts outside of Hillsboro are just as loyal and as interested in the welfare of the high school as those who live within school district No. 7. It is true that the people outside of school district No. 7 are separated therefrom by the boundary lines of the various school districts, but as a matter of fact, the territory proposed to be included within the union high school district is as much a part of Hillsboro itself as a great portion of the territory lying within school district No. 7, and the taxpayers in school district No. 7 have no fear whatsoever from this source.

It is argued by the opposition that taxes in the union high school district at Banks, in this county, are extremely high. If an investigation of the tax roll at the sheriff's office is made, it will be found that each year the taxes are less than they were the year before. That is to say, taxes for union high school purposes in Banks have been growing less each year. If the present proposed union high school district is organized with a valuation of approximately five million dollars, it will be seen that the district will have approximately one-fifth of the total valuation of Washington county, and in my mind, when the first unit is organized, others will want to come in on account of the large valuation.

SPECIAL ELECTION REFUSED BY BOARD

could do except submit the bond question as required by the school law. We did hold them off at first until the circuit court had passed upon the legality of the district."

On the grounds that the district boundary board was no place to carry on arguments of the two opposing sides, Hamilton moved that the discussion be discontinued at this point. Hamilton declared Tigard was large enough to outvote the other districts—Metzger, Bend and Durham. He said if the bonds were issued his own community of Metzger would be bonded to 25 per cent of its assessed valuation when the elementary school bond issue was added to the sum. He made the point that it is cheaper to pay the county high school tuition tax and send the high school students from Metzger to Portland, where they can get a broadened curriculum.

It was pointed out by Archie Bryant, assistant superintendent, that it would take probably 41 days before the special election could be called. This would be only a few weeks before the annual election, the time already set by the board for submitting the question of dissolution. Preparing the notices would require 10 days work of typing and other details in the superintendent's office. Then by granting the clerks of the district school boards a reasonable length of time it would take another 10 days before the notices could be posted. Notices must hang for 20 days after the first day of posting.

The Greatest Month

More commercial firms took deliveries of Graham Brothers Trucks in March than in any month in the Company's history.

January set a record, February brought another—and March surpassed them both.

When you realize that Graham Brothers are the largest exclusive truck manufacturers in the world this statement becomes a business message of genuine importance.

Record sales under such circumstances are the best possible confirmation of superior service.
