What Oregon needs is a representation in congress that will demand proper recognition, representation that is big enough and with sufficient national prestige to gain this recognition when demanded. Because we believe that Mr. Haney is the most eminently qualified man in Oregon today to meet the necessary qualifications, we are urging his election. His politics and party affiliations are not considered nor will they be by the thinking people in November.—Dufur Dispatch.

IMPRESSION OF EARLY SCHOOL DAYS GIVEN

puffing into the station we greeted it with cheers and the waving of our hands. The train made one round-trip from Portland into the Tualatin valley every day.

"J. J. Morgan was agent for a number of years. Max Crandall, the expert public accountant, assisted Mr. Morgan.

"One of the most interesting characters connected with the transportation of those days was Leander Williams. He carried mail and express between the depot and the uptown offices. So regular were his movements between the station and the center of the community that one could set his watch by them.

Even in him there is represented a significant growth in the mail and express. My first recollections are of him pushing an old two-wheeled hand cart. When the load became too heavy for this the wheels of progress next noted a change to a horse.

Comical was the sight of him riding his old away-back horse, which he is said to have purchased for $20. Soon the load became too heavy for the horse. And finally he was using a horse and wagon.

The very earliest Sunday school I attended was held upstairs in the old court house, now occupied by Emmott's meat market. The late Congressman Thomas H. Tongue was superintendent. Later the Christian and Methodist Episcopal church were erected. To meet the public's demand to patronize both churches the Christian services were held in the morning and the Methodist services in the afternoon. The two denominations avoided duplication, even in their midweek services; the Christian having Wednesday night and the Methodist Thursday night.

In my opinion there is a lesson which the present generation can get from this. A great deal of duplication could be avoided in the twentieth century churches here if there were a consolidation into a community church.

"The pioneers were able to group together in one congregation. Religiously, they were more successful than all of the churches of the community today put together. Why wouldn't a community church work here? On a small scale we have it in our summer time court yard gatherings. The Church of Canada is a nation-wide example of church consolidation. In my opinion there is a lesson for the community from the old court house Sunday school. Because it was there we found community spirit in its essence.

"School days in the old three-room structure were happy ones. We kids used to have a playground where Mayor Cady now has his garage. Trees and underbrush filled the lot. During recess time as well as the noon hour and before school we used to spend most of our time in the trees. A favorite game was that of playing house. Out of the natural growth we erected a play house and had all kinds of fun."

Among the classmates of Mrs. Olsen were Wes Boscow, Max Crandall, Mrs. Lottie Smith, Mrs. Maud Lake-Pittinger, Mrs. Edith Tongue-Reams, Grant Landesa, Rohema Prosser, Mrs. Ella Wiley-Mead, Van Mead, Mrs. Susie Cornelius, John Brown, Dr. Frank J. Bailey, Frank Mitchell, Mrs. Dora Waters, Mrs. Zula Linklater, Mrs. Minnie Barnes and Mrs. Anna Holmes. Mrs. Linklater and Mrs. Barnes, formerly the Warren girls, walked nearly two miles to school each day.

Mr. and Mrs. Olsen were married in 1885. Their two children are Carl Olsen of Falls City and Mrs. C. O. Thomas of Vernonia. Their third child is deceased.

Mr. Olsen came to Hillsboro with his wife in 1886, the year following his marriage. For a great many years he was a local contractor and painter. He was an employe in the Hillsboro post office for 16 years. Three years ago he resigned on account of his health. He has covered every rural route leading out of the community. At the present time he is filling in for the vacation season. John Ryan is among the oldtimers in the office. He broke into the government service years ago.

Over two billion smoked a month! —and for just one reason

All headed one way, for natural tobacco taste

NO doubt about it. Over two billion Chesterfields are smoked every month, and even today, after four years of record-breaking gains, Chesterfield is still America's fastest-growing cigarette.

To men who know tobacco, that means just one thing. American smokers have found what they wanted—natural tobacco taste and character. They've found it in Chesterfields only—and the shift to Chesterfield is on!

Better than Ever-

Following their traditional policy of constant improvement with no yearly models, Dodge Brothers, during the past eight months, have vastly bettered their motor cars in many vital respects.

Indeed, there has never been an equal period in Dodge Brothers history when so many refinements of a popular and fundamental nature have been made.

The public is registering its appreciation of this progressive industrial service by purchasing every motor car Dodge Brothers can build—in spite of the fact that Dodge Brothers production, during these months, has broken all previous records by an impressive margin.
