

Teacher Hire "Aint What it Used to be"

The hiring of a teacher in the present day and age "ain't what it used to be" back in 1814, according to a story in the Journal of National Education association, which was given to the Argus recently by M. N. Bonham, who has taught school in this county for many years.

The agreement, which was reproduced, was made by an association of parents who employed a teacher and agreed to give him "the whole and sole management of the school." Moreover they would give him authoritative support in case of need. The parents agree to furnish all the necessary supplies, including wood to the door of the school. The salary was $1000 per year, $500 at the beginning of school and $500 at the end of the term. The agreement said that they are bound to make the $1000 as near as can be, by scholars at $30 per year.

Judging from this salary of 1814 the teaching wages haven't increased much in the 113 years that have elapsed since that time.

How to Play BRIDGE A new series of lessons by Wynne Ferguson Author of "PRACTICAL AUCTION BRIDGE"

ARTICLE No. 10 One thing that players should always strive to retain, is an open mind on all questions. Don't allow yourself to be come so sure of your own skill that you aren't willing to consider a good suggestion from another. On the other hand, don't be too willing to follow another's lead. Learn to consider both points of view, your own and the other fellow's, and then draw your own conclusions. An open mind is a great asset, as valuable at the auction table as everywhere else. The point was well illustrated the other night and by the following hand:

Hearts—9, 4 Clubs—9, 8, 7, 3, 2 Diamonds—7 Spades—Q, J, 9, 5, 2

Hearts—K, J, 7, 6, 2 Clubs—A, Q, 4 Diamonds—K, J, 10, 8, 5 Spades—none

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one spade and A doubled. Y then bid four clubs to the king. It is a pretty example of deciding which hand should be in the lead to accomplish a given result. When playing with the dummy, take your time and figure out carefully in advance which hand you want in the lead and why.

Answer to Problem No. 12 Hearts—A, 3, 2 Clubs—10, 9, 4 Diamonds—K, Q, 10, 9, 6, 3 Spades—J

No score, rubber game. Z dealt and bid one club. A one spade, Y two diamonds and B passed. A opened the deuce of diamonds and Z won the trick with the ace. He now led the four of hearts and allowed B to win the trick with the nine of hearts. B now led the seven of diamonds. What should Z play and how should he plan the play of the hand? Z should discard a club for A's diamond lead in a marked singleton. A will be forced to trump and now no matter what he leads, Z is in a strong position provided A has the ace of spades which his bid indicates probably is in his hand. If he leads the spade ace, Z must win the next trick, no matter what he leads. Z's play of this hand is to drop the remaining hearts by lead of his ace and then set up dummy's diamonds. He must keep his spades so that if the hearts do drop, he can trump a spade in dummy and thus have a re-entry for his diamond suit. Note that the discard of a spade at trick three, instead of a club, will enable AB to save game if A will lead the ace of spades and a low spade after trumping the diamond. Play this out for practice. This hand is an excellent example of figuring out which hand you want in the lead and then providing means for obtaining that result. A's hand was as follows:

Hearts—Q, 10, 8 Clubs—K, J, 8 Diamonds—2 Spades—A, 10, 9, 8, 4, 2

Will we get that bicycle path—six miles long—from Hillsboro to Forest Grove. Subscription books are now open and building looks favorable. It is now quite probable that there will be built a bicycle path between Hillsboro and Forest Grove. For several months there has been some talk of such an improvement, and last week the promoters started out with considerable success. F. G. Mitchell is looking out for Hillsboro and he reports that the business men generally are subscribing quite liberally. This place, with such help as it can get along the line, will build to Cornelius, the college town to build the rest. Benjamin Scholfield has stated that he will furnish sufficient lumber to plank along his farm and the rest should be easy. It is proposed to put three 2-inch planks lengthwise with stringers at a distance of every six feet.

Having sold my jewelry business to Mr. L. M. Hoyt, it will be imperative that all persons having articles left with me for repair shall call within the next ten days and settle for same.—L. V. Berckmoes.
