MRS. ELIZABETH GRAF

Mrs. Elizabeth Graf died in Portland, Oregon, August 13, 1927, at the age of 95 years, 10 months, 16 days. She was born in Switzerland September 28, 1831, and on June 2, 1852, was married to John Graf, a man of God who did much for the cause of Christ in Switzerland. This happy union of 51 years duration was blessed with five children. The oldest boy died in infancy. A daughter and three sons, 10 grandchildren, 18 great-grandchildren, and one great-great-grandchild survive.

In 1876 Mrs. Graf came with her family to this country and settled in Bethany, where she did her full part and more to change the virgin forest into a fertile farm and maintain a real family home.

Mr. Graf died suddenly August

7, 1903, after a most unselfish and useful life. His wife expected to go to her heavenly home soon also. But 24 years longer lasted her pilgrimage, in which time she suffered many ailments, but still retained a wonderful vitality and made herself useful in many ways. For the last years of her life she made her home with her oldest son, John F. Graf, of Portland, and her daughter, Mrs. John Bachmann, of Altadena, Cal., came to take care of her mother. The other sons, Samuel E. Graf of Portland and William Graf of Bethany also tried to make their mother's heart glad. Since the first of May, 1904, Mrs. Graf was a member of the Bethany Baptist church.

THE Hudson Super-Six

This new Super-Six motor is now presented. It will be found to perform with all the efficiency of the highest compression engines, yet to be extraordinarily smooth. It gets away and runs, in fact, with the velvety action of a steam motor. At the same time, it has been found possible to improve economy, because this motor converts hitherto wasted fuel and heat into useful power.

A NEW DESIGN

High compression is obtained by a new arrangement of valves. The intake valve is located in the head of the motor, so that it overlaps in part the exhaust valve below it. This arrangement allows the use of a small combustion chamber, which brings about high compression. The spark plug is located at the remotest part of this special chamber. When the plug fires, therefore, the first combustion takes place at a considerable distance from the piston head. By the time the flame has carried across to that part of the combustion chamber above the piston, its first severity has passed and the piston is pushed rather than struck a blow. A motor even smoother than the old low-compression types is thus obtained, and yet the power output is far greater than in any previous Hudson.

The arrangement of the valves results in economy because as the fuel mixture comes in from carburetor and manifold it passes very close to the exhaust valve, which becomes hot almost with the first impulse of the motor. The "heavy" or semi-liquid part of the mixture actually drops, from gravity, directly onto the exhaust valve. There it is immediately vaporized and converted into an ideal condition for firing. The exhaust valve is, in effect, a hot spot within the motor. Fuel formerly wasted is used for power. No raw gas enters the motor to drain down the cylinder walls and dilute the lubricant. As the Super-Six principle utilized hitherto destructive vibration forces, this invention turns waste heat into power, and obtains superior efficiency, economy and long life.
