Tillamook is considering an ordinance to compel the pumper to stay in the city for any purpose or any occasion. Supporters of the ordinance contend that there is danger in taking this equipment from the city, both in case of a fire at that time in the city, and from a possible breakdown along the county roads or highways. #### Discusses Sunday Liberty

Editor Hillsboro Argus:

Our legislative records, both state and federal, are filled with enactments that encroach on personal liberty. Why, I may not even drive my car which side of the road I prefer, to mention one thing among a million. Only yesterday, coming out from Hillsboro, I was confronted with a sign at a crossing on which was the word "Stop, Personal liberty is for the man in the moon or Robinson Crusoe.

Say, Mr. Tolson, have you been going to Sunday school lately, or are you failing in your personal support of the very finest institution in the land, next the home?

If you were among those present, just what do you think of those very interesting studies of the kingdoms of Israel and Judah during the lives and times of Amos, Hosea, and Micah?

Did you notice how the prosperity, the happiness, even the very existence as nations of these peoples, whose indelible marks on the history of their day have come down tingent on the observance of Sun- street, Portland, November 22. day's golden text: "He hath shewed thee, O man, what is good, and what doth Jehovah require of thee, Swisher, Hillsboro route 1, Novembut to do justly, and to love kind- ber 28. ness, and to walk humbly with thy

When she was ready, and still with his new gir of businesslike concentration on the job in hand, he adjusted the linen ropes, and after a preliminary survey of the grounds, led her through the window and out on the veranda roof. Here he briefly told her what to do, suiting action to words with entire efficiency, and assuming her unquestioning obedience as a matter of course.

The lowering was not the simule exercise he had expected any more than the upward climb had been. Light as she was, it was clear that her unsupported weight would be a heavy drag upon a body resting insecurely on a slippery roof with nothing more substantial than snow and lee to cling to. But eventually she was down, a little shaken but unhurt, and he was beside her. "Now, let's see how fast you can run," he suggested; and for the first time his whispered voice held a ring of youth she knew. "Shaw's watchers may suddenly begin to watch, or even to see something." She responded to his changed tone with an uncontrollable gasp of relief, which he attributed to excitement. "Don't worry. All right now, 1 think," he said, with an immediate return to curtness. It steadled her as no other attitude on his part could have done. "Can you drive a Pierce Arrow?"

he asked, as they plunged ahead through the snowdrifts. "Yes."

"That's fine. That's great, I was afraid you couldn't." This was Laurie again. He went on urgently. "If we're stopped or separated, do exactly as say. Don't lose an instant. Rush to my car. It's over there, among the See?-over there at the right. It's turned toward the road." He indicated the spot. "Get in, go to the left at the first turn, drive full speed to a garage a quarter of a mile down the main road. No matter what happens, don't stop till you reach it. Go into the garage, and wait half an hour for me. If I'm not there then, drive on to New York and go to this address." He gave her a penciled slip he had prepared. "Mrs. Ordway is a good friend of mine. She'll take you in and look after you. Will you do that?"

"Yes." The word was so low that he had to bend his head to catch it. His voice softened still more.

"Don't worry. It will be all right, Only, some way, I can't believe that Shaw is letting us off as easily as this."
