

Helvetia Ladies' Aid Bazaar Very Profitable Event

Helvetia, Dec. 8.—Proceeds from the Ladies' Aid bazaar which was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Abe Youngen, netted over $80. The ladies disposed of all their articles. Mrs. Marie Christner and Mrs. John Geller entertained with Swiss yodeling.

The sun condescended to shine on Saturday afternoon when the Sunshine club held their bazaar. The ladies had an unusually large assortment of articles offered for sale and sold nearly all of them. Mr. Wharton auctioned off the articles and $150 was taken in. A concert was also given. E. H. Burnham furnished coffee for the lunch. Mrs. H. E. Schran is visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Davidson. Abe Hager has moved to the Webster house near the station. Mrs. Heller returned to Portland last week after an extended visit with her daughter, Mrs. Dapp. Mrs. Helen Skibbe motored to Salem last week to visit her husband, who is very ill. Pete Lulich had to have a piece of bone removed from his cheek last week, as a result of having his face frozen while in Alaska.

Motorist Has to Observe Lanes of Motoring Traffic

Traffic lanes are new, novel and interesting, as well as being slightly intricate. The Hoover conference recommended them, the traffic departments of many cities are strong for them and the Oregon State Motor association, in conjunction with the other groups forming the Oregon Automotive conference, brought them to the attention of the last session of the legislature of Oregon.

The legislature passed the following law on the subject: "8 (a) Except as otherwise provided in this section, the driver of a vehicle intending to turn to the right at an intersection shall approach such intersection in the lane for traffic nearest to the right-hand side of the highway, and in turning shall keep as closely as practicable to the right-hand curb or edge of the highway, and when intending to turn to the left shall approach such intersection in the lane for traffic to the right and nearest to the center line of the highway, and in turning shall pass beyond the center of the intersection, passing as closely as practicable to the right thereof before turning such vehicle to the left."

In other words, when one approaches a corner intending either to turn to the left or right, the vehicle is guided into the lane of traffic on the side which one desires to turn. By this means traffic can be speeded up as double lines of traffic can be run along the street without the usual corner congestion which results when the man on the right-

Another advantage of this rule is that the man turning to the left is out of the way quicker, thus permitting through traffic to go ahead in the left lane of the street into which the turn has been made.

The illustration accompanying this article shows the exception referred to in paragraph 8(a) rather than the rule there laid down. The exception, paragraph 8 (b) of the rules of the road, provides that local authorities may modify the rule requiring vehicles in the left lane to travel to the right of the center of the intersection by clearly indicating by markers (the circles in the illustration) the course to be followed by vehicles turning thereat. These markers are to be placed as near the center line of the street where it meets a prolongation of the property line as possible.

Actual tests have shown that where a vehicle is driven beyond one of these property line markers and turned obliquely so that it will pass beyond a similarly set marker on the street into which a turn is being made, such turning can be made with greater speed and safety to all concerned than if the vehicle is compelled to pass beyond the center of the intersection.

The provision of green feed in laying houses in Oregon is important as some of the birds in the flock will not go outside for it.

Indisputable Answer

The word halitosis lay buried in the widely "read" dictionary of the English language scores of years, until set in ordinary type in an advertisement, it became a by-word of the millions.

As a result, a product forty years on the market with moderate sales, became a world leader. Bad breath became almost a fashion.

On the other hand, yeast was merely to make bread with — until Fleischmann advertisements said otherwise. Now we gain fair skins, robust health, cure ourselves of many of the common ills of mankind, and even look forward hopefully to eternal youth because of it.

All this has been brought about by advertising, and it must be regarded as Simon-pure advertising.

All advertising has its basic selling stories, not in the headlines, but in the text of the ads, and readers have to read that text to be "sold." This stands as an indisputable answer to the question, "Is Advertising Read?"

Stock will require feed containing a higher Carbohydrate content, if proper production is to be maintained. CORN furnishes this highly desirable food element, so more of it can be fed to good advantage.

Both our DAIRY and POULTRY FEEDS are milled to furnish PROTEIN and CARBOHYDRATES in proper proportion. That's why scores of feeders are getting highly satisfactory results.

Don't buy feeds just because they are cheap! To build FOOD VALUE into feed requires certain ingredients. Get the kind of a blend you want and then buy as cheaply as consistent with prevailing markets. It pays in the long run.

We mill a feed for every feeding purpose and they cost no more than most of the ordinary mixtures—because—we buy our raw materials right, therefore can sell right.
