

Business Men Back of Team

(By James Vickers)
Taking advantage of the temporary retirement of Jupiter Pluvius Sunday afternoon, 18 ball tossers reported for practice at the ball park and a regular-yannigan eight-inning game was held. The regulars again took the contest with a 6 to 4 score, but the second string put up a real fight.

Bryce Noleser was the star for the winners, accounting for three of their runs. Bryce poled out a pair of three-baggers, then stretched them both to home runs. Dorman Blazer, the high school football and basketball star, and former Silver-ton pitcher, took the mound for the yannigans in the last three frames striking out six batters.

Manager Ray Dillon has twenty men signed up now, and was quite pleased over Sunday's showing.

The Hillsboro merchants proved that they were behind the local team by giving prizes for the opening game, April 8. Paul Gross of the Mallbu leads the list with a box of cigars to the first man to make a home run. W. W. Boscow proves himself an ardent sport fan by giving a $2.50 shirt to the first one to make a three-base hit. Miller's will give a man's cap to the first person to rap out a two-bagger. The Corwin Hardware has promised any bat from stock to the Hillsborite who makes the first hit, while Long's Hardware will give a baseball to the man who makes the first put out. The Hillsboro Argus comes right along and will give a box of monogrammed stationery to the first lad to make an assist. Well's provides the novelty gift of a pair of tennis shoes to the first man to make a home-head play. These gifts go only to Hillsboro players. Anybody else wishing to give prizes should see Ray Dillon.

Beaverton will play a practice game with Hillsboro Sunday afternoon and there will be no gate charge.

Community Can Improve Its Health Organization and Secure Practical Returns in Life Saving and Protection

(Oregon State Board of Health)
"There are many cities and counties in Oregon that are both numerically and financially able to adopt a health program similar to the one now being carried out in Fargo, North Dakota," says Dr. J. Wallace, deputy health commissioner, who recently had the opportunity of inspecting the health program being carried out in that city of 26,000 population. "Prior to 1922, the Fargo local health department was conducted by a part-time health officer. The average annual cost to the city (1920-22) was 112 cents per capita. To many of the public spirited citizens the service and protection available was anything but satisfactory, so the committee on child health of the commonwealth fund was invited to aid in putting on a demonstration. A five-year demonstration was therefore conducted and completed its term of service the latter part of 1927.

"The services rendered by the demonstration were so evident and so beneficial that the city has taken over the work and is now providing for it by civic funds, the organization now being known as the Fargo department of health. The demonstration had so crystallized the public health aspirations and the latent desires of the people, that this civic assumption of the work became possible.

"The additional cost to provide full time efficient service meant an increase from 112 cents per capita for health work to about $1.50, over 25 per cent of this coming through the school board, but the increase in service has been quadrupled. The figure named includes the cost of upkeep for the contagious hospital, the cost of which because of the reduction in preventable disease has been cut from $20,000 per annum to about $8,000.

"Lives have been saved. The mortality figures show that annually at least 14 lives of persons under 20 years have been saved, that would have died from preventable disease, had no efficient organization come into existence. In 1927 the only case of diphtheria occurring in the city was contracted elsewhere. There were no deaths from typhoid fever or whooping cough. The one death from measles was a non-resident.

brought in for treatment and scarlet fever accounted for only two deaths.

"One of the striking impressions made upon an observer is the splendid co-operation between the medical profession, the school authorities, and the health department. A notable piece of work is being done through co-operation between the health department and the physicians in prenatal and postnatal care. Of all births taking place in Fargo, already more than 50 per cent of the mothers have prenatal care, while 100 per cent of them have postnatal nursing care and 50 per cent of them have regular postnatal medical service for mother and child, extending for 15 months or longer.

"Fargo has reason to be proud of its forwardness in providing such adequate health protection and education for the city. But what is being done is no more than any other civic minded, progressive community could or should do, and there are dozens of communities in Oregon capable of establishing a no less efficient organization."

Walnut growers may reduce pruning expense by selling available scion wood. This year many growers of seedling nuts are beginning to graft over the poorer trees to grafted Franquettes. Top grafting is the quickest method of variety change, therefore good scion wood should be easy to dispose of if the proper contacts can be made. After dipping the ends of the scion wood in hot paraffin it may be placed in wet straw or sacking to insure keeping.
