Roads to Romance With Jack and Ethyl

Being the Original Letters of a Young Wife on Her Honeymoon Over the Pacific Coast to the Girl Friend Back Home.

Dear Marion and Jim:

We have been having a week of surprises as we have driven slowly down the coast from Aberdeen and Hoquiam in the delightful Grays Harbor country to Astoria on the Columbia river. It has been a week of surprises because there has been so much to see and enjoy that we never dreamed existed along here.

Here is a smooth highway through a land where "sea and forest and sandy beach has made a vacation-land supreme," as the guide-books say and yet so few tourists have found it yet that it's almost like visiting an entirely new region.

And here in Astoria we have been thoroughly charmed in visiting places be held by the white men for the first time way back in the 18th century. It has a romantic history that is fascinating to say the least.

The early British and Spanish mariners used to tell tales of a mighty river of the west for which they had searched but failed to find.

Then the British sent out an expedition under Captain Vancouver and his ships found the mouth of the river. He didn't dare enter the river, nor was this done until an American, Captain Robert Gray, did it in 1792.

When Jefferson was president, he, being much impressed with the possibilities of the Northwest, sent Lewis and Clark west. They toiled up the eastern slopes of the Rockies, came down the Snake river, and gaily floated down the Columbia.

In the fall of 1805 they built Fort Clatsop on the site of Astoria's present business district.

From the top of the highest hill here we were able to see all over the countryside which is so steeped with this romantic history. Here a monument was built by Vincent As-

August Wenzel has been making some changes in the interior of his barn. Alfred Wenzel, his son, from Portland, did the carpenter work.

Mr. and Mrs. E. L. Cox spent Sunday evening with Mr. and Mrs. W. P. Brooks of the Hazeldale district.

Correction—The item last week saying Emery VanKleeck was the owner of a new Ford sedan should have read Wayne VanKleeck as the owner.

Mr. and Mrs. Floyd Bierly and family were guests Sunday at a birthday dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. C. W. Young. The event was in honor of Mrs. Young's birthday.

Glenn Snider of Lake Grove has been hauling wood for Floyd Bierly during the past week.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Cutting spent Sunday with Mrs. Cutting's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Brown, in North Plains.

Finger Marks Affect Lights

Motorists who suspect that their headlights are not functioning to their full ability should bear in mind that often slight finger marks on the bulbs will cause a marked difference in the efficiency of one's road illuminating equipment, says A. E. Shearer, head of the touring department of the Oregon State Motor association. The warning not to leave marks on the bulbs should be applied to the reflectors themselves as well. Try it and note the improvement.
