Swearing in at the polls is a thing of the past. Have you registered? If not, do so now. The books close October 6. There are many reasons why you will want to use your ballot November 6.

An inspection of the new court house reveals a structure of which every citizen of the county may be justly proud. A housewarming and dedication in a couple of months would surely be appropriate. The new structure is so arranged that it will expedite the conduct of county business for many decades. Americans consume six million pounds of pickles in a single year. It seems that even if we do have prohibition in America, we are badly pickled.

"I have not refused definitely," he said. "I must think it over in all its bearings. In the end there is little doubt but I shall have to decide against you. I wish it had not happened. I am unsettled." Suddenly he held out his hand to the man who was willing to do the magnificent thing and make the sacrifice gladly. "I must add to my strong personal liking for you an increased respect. Not many would do as you have done. Come and see me about this before breakfast tomorrow."

Fleming Bradley was smoking a last pipe when Malet entered his room. The physician was relaxed and happy. His domestic duties had been a strain, and he was now concerned with the growing of his beard.

"Fleming," Malet began, "do you like Nita?"

"Like her?" Bradley said warmly. "She is the most delightful girl I have ever met or hope to meet. She is the only woman who has ever made me wish I was as young and good looking as Robin McKimber. If she were my daughter, I should think fortune had made up for everything else."

"You must have noticed she was looking rather unhappy?"

"I taxed her with it. It's the strain she's been living under. She will soon pick up."

"She'll never be really happy again. Fleming, if her father wins, she loses. Our victory is won at the cost of parting her from the man she loves, the man who loves her well enough to risk losing his fortune."

Malet told Bradley in almost the same words what he had just told Peter Milman. The first rush of sympathy which Bradley felt for the lovers was tempered on reflection when he considered what the effect of yielding to it would mean. The work he believed he had to accomplish in the world would not be done. Again he would be compelled to seek some uncongenial position. He said as much to his friend.

"But if you admit I'm putting you in an unfavorable light, it is evident you think you are choosing the wrong thing," Malet retorted.

"I'm choosing to enjoy the rewards of an adventure which might have landed me in jail—and may yet. I'm very sorry about Nita, but she is young. Life is before her, whereas I'm past middle age. Floyd, you are intoxicating yourself, not with sentiment, but with sentimentality. It's a symptom of a generous nature, but it yields before a logical examination. I am not going to throw away what we have gained. You must not ask it of me. My God! Floyd, do you suppose I am content to go back to my job at the refinery again when there's a chance to escape?"

"I suppose not," Malet said quite wearily. "The way of sacrifice is too hard."

Bradley frowned. He did not rest easily on the imputation that he was choosing the selfish way.

"At least, I have Peter Milman with me," he said.

"I'm not so sure. Will you line up with him, whichever way he decides?"

"I shall be with him in any case, but I don't think that will help you much."

Neeland Barnes was stretched at length on a chaise longue in his room. He looked up with a smile. "What brings you here, Viscount?"

"I thought I'd drop in and have a cigarette. What are you doing?" Barnes had a notebook and pencil in his hand.

"Planning my ranch in California. I shall keep it. I'll get one for you with a nice easy gain."

"I had a curious adventure with a horse once," Malet said. "It must have been almost thirty years ago. I went with some friends into Mexico to do some sketching. Naturally there was a revolution on, and we got into the middle of it. We were all mounted. I remember when my horse was allotted to me, I felt distinctly disappointed. He lacked the graceful curves of the smaller horses. He was tall, long, thin, elderly, and a pessimist. It was only when we were being chased by the guerrillas that I saw he was different. Whereas my friends were captured, my aged beast raced clear away and I was the only one who hadn't to pay a considerable ransom."

"Ah," cried Barnes, his eyes lighting up, "that tall, long beast you were on was thoroughbred, or I'll take to water drinking."

"It was," Malet said. "He was a broken-down steppeler which had been brought out to Mexico City by an English mining magnate."

"What happened to him?"

"He ran until he dropped dead," Malet returned. "I'm not a horse man. I had no idea how far or fast a horse could run."

"That's the thoroughbred strain," Barnes said. He passed into a disquisition on feats of thoroughbred horses and dogs. It was a hobby with him.

"Is there a thoroughbred strain in men, too?" Malet asked.

"You bet there is," Barnes said promptly. "Put the thoroughbred to the test, and, whether he be man, horse or hound, he'll respond."

"Barnes," Malet began, when the subject was exhausted, "haven't you yet found out that Nita is in love with young McKimber?"

"Impertinent puppy," Barnes stormed. "If I'd been in your place instead of being cast for a d—d flunky, this would never have happened. I'm not sure but you could have stopped it if you'd tried."

"Stopped it?" Malet returned. "You talk like a fool. I could just as easily have stretched out a hand and damned the Colorado river in flood. Robin McKimber's been a better man than you have. What have you done for me all your days but loaf until you were so scared of the sight of Lippsky you took those long hikes which put you in condition? Don't scowl at me. I know you could lick me easily, but that won't make you worthy of your daughter, will it?"

Barnes listened to the story that had been told Milman and Bradley. "You have the good of telling me this?" Barnes asked. "Do you suppose I want to go back to Peeks-kill?"

"You won't have to. You are six hundred dollars to the good, your wardrobe is enlarged, and you've Nita. Milman admits that what we have done leaves us less clean than we were."

"It won't hurt me," said Barnes. "You wouldn't notice it on my hide."

"I'm not approaching you from that angle," Malet said craftily. "I'm reminding you that you are winning success at Nita's expense. I'm not in the least doubtful about you. With Bradley and Milman there was a much greater chance of defeat."

Industrial Exhibits at County Fair Colorful materials and supplies and kitchen cabinets.

A clever fish pond made with a Congoleum rug was the attractive feature of the Lester Ireland & Co. display. The majestic electric radio was also on display.

Against a background of pink and blue the C. C. store showed selections from their line of wall paper, shoes and merchandise.

A bower of autumn leaves and harmonizing draperies and two modern fall coats with matching hats completed the Well's Department store booth, which attracted much attention.

A miniature dairy farm against an arrangement of red and white crepe paper and a display of Carnation milk attracted the children especially to the Carnation Products booth.

A display of everything that can be printed by the Argus furnished the background for a comfortable davenport and chair for whomsoever cared to stop and chat or rest.

A line of modern McCormick-Deering farm machinery was demonstrated by the Hillsboro Feed company. The feed company also occupied a booth decorated with orange and blue in which they displayed their merchandise.

The Farmers' Feed and Supply company of Forest Grove placed in their booth several fine specimens of poultry and rabbits, one display being a pair of ducks, a breed which never before had been displayed in this county.

Against a rich background of orange and black the Hillsboro Radio and Electric company placed their line of Pads and Long radios.

A modern bathroom placed in a blue room, and a sheet metal furnace were displayed by the Norman Ames Plumbing and Heating company of Forest Grove.

Schultz Insurance agency had a booth equipped to give all information on Security and Continental Life insurance and the Mutual Benefit insurance.

A smart living room set, including the davenport, chair, lamps, rugs and tables was placed in the Selfridge Bros.' booth, in which rugs in harmonizing gray tones furnished the background.

The Singer Sewing Machine company displayed its wares in a booth of orange and black.

The green painted hen placed in the booth of the Imperial Feed & Grain company attracted all passers-by. A line of feed for poultry and stock and seeds were also on display.

A cleverly arranged background of shrubbery made an attractive booth which housed the Scholls Nursery company.

In a second booth Lester Ireland & Co. displayed the Montag stove. The R. A. C. Radiola sold by the Webb Electric Service company was attractive in its green setting.

Harness, saddles and bridles and other leather goods were placed in Spicker's harness shop booth.

Contrasting the convenience of the modern laundry with the back-breaking wash tub and board, Munger's laundry displayed a completed laundry and an old-fashioned wash tub in a booth made of yellow and black.

A cozy dining room, made of green and white print, with an attractively set dinner table, and a little waitress dressed in green, made up the Imperial Cafe booth, which received so much favorable comment.

Teve's Radio shop displayed the Stewart-Warner radio sets.

A gay restroom of red and yellow, with all the favorite movie stars' pictures on the wall, was furnished by the Venetian theater.

A black background brightened with print flowers in red, yellow and orange tones, made an attractive background for two taffeta evening gowns in pastel shades and a black coat and hat, which were displayed by the Miller Mercantile company.

The Higdon Motor company showed a complete line of new Chevrolet cars, including the coupe, coach, sedan, touring and truck.

The twins registered from Portland were children of former Washington county people.

The judges in the twin contest were Mrs. A. E. Owen of McMinnville, Mrs. Elizabeth Vincent of Tigard, and Charles Young of Sherwood.

Herbold Grapes Shown

Especially noticeable in the horticultural exhibit was the display of Louis Herbold's seedless grapes. In explanation it was stated that the grapes were the result of years of experimentation and research to adapt foreign grapes to the Oregon climate based on a comprehensive study of grape culture by Mr. Herbold during many years spent in Palestine and southern Europe.

An American flag made of tating in the domestic art division caught the eye of the writer. It showed much tedious and clever work.

Competition in the Oregon State Horseshoe Pitching tournament was keen and the championship was not decided until late on the last day of the fair. Henry McGrew, 21-year-old Woodburn youth, won the state championship, which was held by W. H. Hayden of Portland. The event was won by McGrew in a two-out of three match after having been tied with Joe Francisco of Portland.

Comments on the purpose and value of fairs was the keynote to the opening program of the Washington county fair in the Auditorium Thursday morning. Manager F. L. Brown, chairman, introduced the members of the fair board, Robert Banks, C. H. Minton, H. T. Hesse and Mrs. Bryant; L. J. Allen, acting state club leader, and Mrs. Emma Bryant, county school superintendent, who presented Miss Helen Cowgill, assistant state club leader.

The Forest Grove, Hillsboro and Cornelius boys' and girls' clubs gave a group of songs, yells and stunts. Campbell's American band furnished the music.

Grange booths were graded as follows: Hillsboro, 91 points; Washington, 91; Scholls, 85; Leedy, 84; Sherwood, 84, and Tigard, 81. Selfridge Brothers' Furniture company furnished the furniture for the grange rest room.

There were boys' and girls' club exhibits from the following schools: Cornelius, Forest Grove, Hillsboro, Durham, Hill, Cipole, Gales Creek, Tigard, Garden Home, Timber, Laurel, Cooper Mountain, Aloha-Huber, Mountaineer and Kinton.

The free vaudeville program in the auditorium each night attracted many people. The Cornucopians, Hillsboro's greeter club, assisted in taking care of the crowds.

Nothing but set pieces could be used in the fireworks display on account of the danger of fire.

Local Happenings

Miss Bertha Jones and Mrs. Paul Skelton of Portland, niece and cousin of Frank Barr, were dinner guests Sunday at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Barr. Others present were Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Barr of Medford, Francis Barr of Coquille, and Mr. and Mrs. Verne McKinney and little son, Mrs. Ann Sigler, host and hostess and children, Jack and Dorothy. Mr. and Mrs. Gerald Barr left Sunday for home, accompanied by Mrs. Barr's mother, Mrs. Fred Wilmet, of Medford.

Rev. and Mrs. E. B. Lockhart have announced the engagement of their daughter, Beatrice Meredith Lockhart, to Mr. David Egbert Thompson of Portland.

son is a son of Dr. D. A. Thompson, superintendent of Presbyterian Missions of Oregon, and is a student at the State college, Ames, Iowa. Miss Lockhart is a senior at Willamette university, Salem.

A card party was given at St. Matthews school hall Wednesday night, with about 60 persons in attendance. Mrs. J. Albert of Portland won first prize and Mrs. J. Kummer of Gaston won second. Gentlemen's first prize was to Ed Klink and Ted Phal won second. Mesdames J. H. Etzel, C. C. DeFrees and F. Walbel were on the committee.

Robert Jones returned Saturday from Los Angeles, where he has been attending the reserve officers' training school. He will return to O. S. C. this fall. He made the trip both ways as a pedestrian.

Bible School Probable

At a meeting of the representatives from the Methodist, Christian, Baptist and Congregational churches held Tuesday evening reports showed that funds were being obtained for a week-day Bible school to be started in Hillsboro this year.

Gibbons Raises 5½ Tons Prunes

Mr. and Mrs. G. E. Gibbons have raised 5½ tons of prunes this year off of less than 100 trees, in spite of the fact that this was considered a bad prune year. The variety was the Improved Oregon and the prunes were large and well flavored.

Auxiliary Meets Tuesday Evening

The Auxiliary to the American Legion will meet at Veterans' hall, Tuesday evening, and all members are urged to attend as plans for the bazaar will be discussed. Mrs. Emma Dierdorff, Mrs. H. E. Sushauer and Mrs. J. B. Dinmore will be the hostesses for the evening.

City Attorney Returns

City Attorney Barton Bowman returned Tuesday night from Santa Rosa, Cal., where he visited at the home of his daughter, Mrs. William Vallandigham, for several weeks. Mr. Bowman says that he visited the California Knights of Pythias home, which is located on a 1200-acre place.

Mrs. Dailey Honored

Mrs. Rose Prickett entertained Tuesday afternoon in honor of the birthday anniversary of Mrs. Mary Dailey, who makes her home with Mrs. Prickett. Every guest present was over 80 years of age.

Dailey's age was 86 years; Mrs. M. A. Powell, 88; Mrs. Margaret McKinney, 86; Mrs. M. M. Brierly, 85; Mrs. Elizabeth Smith, 82; Mrs. Elizabeth Crandall, 81, and Mrs. Ellen Seelye of Independence, 81.

Mrs. M. Cave and Mrs. Mary Elliott, pioneers, were unable to attend. The afternoon was spent in reminiscing about early days, and refreshments of ice cream and cake were served.

Miss Drake Weds Mr. Clark

Miss Edna Mae Drake of Molalla made the bride of Mr. Oliver S. Clark of Myrtle Point at a wedding Monday at 12:30 in the Methodist church of that city. Rev. S. G. Drake, father of the bride, performed the ceremony in the presence of a large assembly of relatives and friends. Immediately after the ceremony the bride and groom left by airplane for a trip to San Francisco, and upon their return will be at home at Myrtle Point. The bride is well known here, having taught in the Hillsboro schools last year. She is a graduate of Oregon Normal school, and the groom is a student of Stanford university. Miss Rose Cave of this city attended the wedding.

Miss Stranahan Celebrates Birthday

Miss Elizabeth Stranahan entertained last Saturday evening with a birthday party. A delightful time was spent in dancing at the pavilion, after which refreshments were served at the home of Mr. and Mrs. L. P. Stranahan. Those present were Mr. and Mrs. Alvin Batchelar, the Misses Evelyn Sewell, Velma Merrill, Esther Perkins and Marie Stranahan; Lloyd Anderson, Roy Sprague, David Schindler and Neil Stangel.

Miss Thekla Scheidt Is Bride Sunday

The marriage of Miss Thekla Scheidt, daughter of Rev. E. J. Scheidt, and Louis Zurcher, son of Mr. and Mrs. Peter Zurcher, was solemnized last Sunday evening at the Phillips Reformed church. Rev. Scheidt performed the ring service and read Philippians 2:2-5 from a short address on the same.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white silk crepe. Her veil was caught with orange blossoms, which her mother wore at her wedding. She carried a bouquet
