Old County Papers Found Interesting

Banks, January 17—While looking over some old papers recently, W. G. Walker found a copy of the Aurora, one of the first newspapers printed in Washington county. It was printed in Forest Grove in September, 1882. He also found a copy of the Indian Citizen, printed at Forest Grove Chemawa Indian school in 1887. This school was later moved to Salem. The latter contains an article about Mr. and Mrs. Sam Walker, who were teaching in this school. Mr. Walker taught shoemaking and his wife taught dressmaking. The following articles are from this paper:

Mrs. Minnie Walker, the seamstress, is nicely located in the girls' dormitory. Her department is neat in its appearance and the girls are tractable and, for the most part, desirous of making themselves perfect dressmakers. We hope that before long they may be able to start a dressmaking shop, and when they return to their homes they will be a credit to their people and this school.

On the evening of October 10, Old Chemawa was visited by a band of lively young revelers, who were bent on giving Mr. and Mrs. Walker, our worthy shoemaker and seamstress, a surprise.

"The cause of all this hilarity was the fact that of day being the tenth anniversary of their wedding day. The serenaders approached as stealthily as possible, trying to conceal their lanterns behind them.

After music by the band, a chorus was sung by the pigs, who were waked up for the occasion, with an accompaniment played on a tin pan. All were invited to enter and witness the renewing of the marriage vows.

The worthy groom with his blushing bride stood at one end of the room and were speedily made one, Rev. Willis performing the impressive ceremony. The broom was then produced and after much persuasion, the newly wedded pair were induced to jump the broomstick. After music by Mrs. Walker, Miss Pitt and others, refreshments were served. All indulged in and appreciated this part of the program, you may be sure. A general good time ensued, and when the time came for goodnight to be said, all wished Mr. and Mrs. Walker many happy returns of this, their wedding anniversary, and most of the ladies carried home a piece of wedding cake to dream over."

Sam Walker with his brother, W. G. Walker, and nephew, Charles Walker, are members of the Walker Brothers orchestra, old time musicians.

Dell Walker of Hood River, nephew of W. G. Walker, attended the funeral of his uncle, Robert Walker, Sunday, and remained for a visit with his uncle, W. G. Walker.

THE END OF THE YEAR

The year is finished and you close its book and dream a while: Each page records the path you trod—each tear and smile—The joy you knew, the sorrow and the care met on the way, The love that guided you, the light that guided you from day to day.

The year is finished, gone beyond recall, each thought and deed, And only memories that bless and burn remain as need From which shall grow the flower you yet must know, Before the last milestone is reached and you, too, must go.

The year is finished, and the year book closed of loss and gain—Which is the largest item in this book of joy and pain? A new year dawns, a new book opens wide, your needs must write, God grant that only blessings fill its pages white, That you may live and love and be loved all the way, And know the peace which this world neither gives nor takes away.

Plantings Affected By The Yellow Rust

As high as 40 per cent loss in red raspberry plantings from breakage of canes as they are trellised up is reported to the experiment station from several sections of the state. This loss, according to Dr. S. M. Zeller, plant pathologist, is caused by the yellow rust of raspberries.

The breakage is caused by lesions which form around the base of the canes, making them extremely brittle. Similar breakage is also caused by the work of the raspberry cane borer, but the two may be distinguished by casual examination. Where the damage is caused by the cane borer, the hollow center of the cane where broken is filled with the brown frass left by the borer.

Lesions caused by the rust are seldom serious until the second year, by which time, if numerous, they hinder the rise of sap, causing easy breakage and depriving the canes of sufficient sap to carry the fruit to maturity.

No satisfactory control measures have been found for this yellow raspberry rust, states Dr. Zeller in writing on the subject, but careful sanitation by removing and burning all old canes, fallen leaves and refuse as soon after the harvest as possible will usually prevent the disease from becoming serious. While such measures do not eliminate the possibility of infection from lesions on the new canes, such infection, in most seasons, is practically negligible.

In seasons when the spring rains continue late, the yellow rust often develops to such an extent in the Pacific northwest as to cause partial defoliation in badly infected plantings. Although the actual loss of crop due to this disease is hard to determine, any appreciable amount of leaf loss must have some devastating influence on the affected plants, believes Dr. Zeller.

Years ago, the Chevrolet Motor Company designed and built its first experimental six-cylinder motor. This far-sighted step was taken because Chevrolet engineers knew that the six-cylinder motor is inherently the most perfectly balanced motor—the ideal power plant to meet the growing public demand for greater reserve power, faster get-away and, above all—smooth, quiet performance.

During the last four years, over a hundred six-cylinder motors were built by Chevrolet engineers and tested on the General Motors Proving Ground.

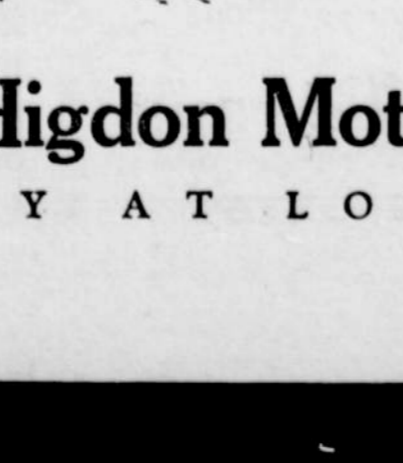

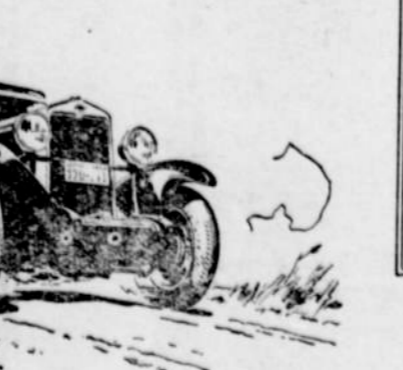

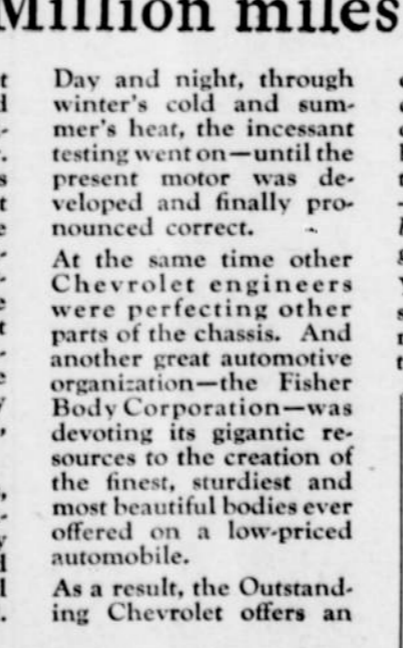

Day and night, through winter's cold and summer's heat, the incessant testing went on—until the present motor was developed and finally pronounced correct.

At the same time other Chevrolet engineers were perfecting other parts of the chassis. And another great automotive organization—the Fisher Body Corporation—was devoting its gigantic resources to the creation of the finest, sturdiest and most beautiful bodies ever offered on a low-priced automobile.

As a result, the Outstanding Chevrolet offers an order of well-balanced excellence—a combination of performance, comfort, beauty and handling ease that is truly remarkable—with a fuel-economy of better than 20 miles to the gallon of gasoline.
