Timely Horticultural Notes For March Listed For Farmers

By O. T. McWhorter, County Agent.

Less than 1 per cent heart rot infection in the case of apples and less than 1 1/4 per cent in the case of pears was the report made by Dr. S. M. Zeller, of the Oregon State College Experiment Station after making a survey of many well and consistently sprayed apple and pear orchards in Western Oregon. In uncared for orchards 11 1/2 per cent of pruning wounds were found to be infected with heart rot. The difference here is probably due to the bordeaux spray which applied to pear orchards in Western Oregon receive annually for anthracnose and European canker control. It is a question whether orchards receiving this annual bordeaux spray should have pruning wounds receive any other attention. In orchards not receiving this annual bordeaux spray, the larger wounds, probably 2 inches in diameter and larger, should, by all means, receive a wound dressing. A dressing made by mixing dry bordeaux and raw linseed oil to the consistency of seed oil to the consistency of paint has proved as satisfactory as any. Other good commercial wound paints upon the market are proving satisfactory.

Red Spider Mite—The red spider mites are doing considerable damage in practically all of the tree fruit producing districts of the Northwest. Two of these mites, the brown mite and the European fruit mite, are rather successfully controlled by a dormant lime sulfur or oil spray. The other red spider mite, the common red spider, is not affected by these dormant sprays as they do not spend the winter in the egg state on the trees as the former two mites.

The Green and Rosy Aphids—These two aphids are partially controlled by the addition of 1 pint of sulphate of nicotine to 100 gallons of the dormant lime sulfur or oil spray, providing the dormant spray is delayed to the late delayed dormant time. However, if these aphids are particularly bad the most effective spray would be sulfate or nicotine 1 pint to 100 gallons applied as soon as the blossom buds are separating from each other.

Bud Moth—This chocolate brown worm is rather serious on prunes and cherries in the state, but is rather easily controlled by the addition of 3 pounds of arsenate of lead per 100 gallons of whatever spray is applied for the delayed dormant or pre-blossom spray.

Syneta Beetle—This insect is probably doing as much or more damage to the cherry industry of Western Oregon than any other insect pest. Control measures for this insect are still in the experimental stage, but fair control has been secured by the application of 4 pounds of arsenate of lead plus 4 pounds of lime and 100 gallons of water at the pre-blossom and as most of the petals are off periods. This arsenic and lime may very well be combined with the first and third sprays recommended in last month's notes for the control of blossom blight. Where aphids are prevalent, sulfate of nicotine at the rate of 1 pound to 100 gallons may very well be added to the pre-blossom spray, controlling all of these pests with the combined application.

Gooseberry and Currant Troubles—Gooseberry mildew attacks both the gooseberry and to a lesser extent the currant. It is very satisfactorily controlled by lime sulfur 1 part to 30 parts water applied as the leaf cluster first began to open and followed by another lime sulfur 1 part to 40 parts water just before blooming. This very satisfactorily controls the mildew and does not affect the canning quality of the gooseberries. The aphids which are so serious on the currant and often present on the gooseberry are very satisfactorily controlled by the addition of 1 pint of sulfate of nicotine to 100 gallons of the early lime sulfur spray recommended above for the mildew. Anthracnose of currants and gooseberries will be fairly well held in check by the two lime sulfur sprays recommended above for mildew. Where this trouble is serious, a thorough bordeaux spray 4-4-50 should be applied immediately after the fruit is harvested.

Fine Record Made By Grade Holstein

A grade Holstein, aged five years, gave 8485.3 pounds of milk in 120 days since she freshened, according to Charles Roseman, the owner, of Jacktown, who was a Hillsboro visitor Friday. The daily average was 70.7. The butterfat production in that period, he said, was 254.5 pounds.

Mr. Roseman explained that the milk production was kept up during the cold weather by giving the cows warm water. The cow is milked and fed three times daily. A herd of four was averaging 54 pounds a day before a heifer took sick, Mr. Roseman said.
