ROTARY A GROWING POWER

When, during a period of worldwide depression, more than 5000 representative men from all parts of the world will travel many thousands of miles in the pursuit of an ideal, there must be real merit in this ideal. And it is because they believe in the Rotary ideal that more than 5000 Rotarians met at Seattle last week in convention. Few of us who live in American communities can fully understand the great value of Rotary in other countries of the world as a medium for exchange of ideas and as a common ground on which people can meet and converse entirely without any thought of racial and national prejudices. After all, much of the trouble between nations is the direct result of narrow prejudice and misunderstanding, failure to realize that the desire to live in comfort and happiness is common to all human hearts, irrespective of color or nationality.

Today, the German is welcomed in the Rotary clubs of France, the Peruvian is at home in the Rotary club of Chile, there is a welcome for the Chinese who wears the cap of the Wheel in the Japanese Rotary club in Tokyo, for all have well learned those principles which bind Rotarians to one common cause—Fellowship.

Rotary is a growing power, and its strength, so evident in these times when other groups are falling like ripe corn before the mow, lies in the adherence of its members to its famous slogan, "Service Above Self."—Hood River News.
