Rival Gubernatorial Camps Optimistic on Campaigns

ALEM - From nine campaign headquarters this past week have come optimistic reports of the procress of their respective candid in the preliminary run-off of the gubernatorial marathon. All nine of the entrants—seven republicans two democrats-have it "i the bag" so to speak, according their own claims and those of their campaign managers. All of these is, however, must be taken with a liberal quantity of salt. They are, in fact, nothing more nor less than the usual pre-election propaganda broadcast for the special benefit of the indifferent voter—and this plomas, honors and awards during year his name is agion who does the eighth annual commencement of care particularly about any of exercises at the Hillsboro union h

McAlexander to Talk Here Monday at Chamber

Oregon needs a leader with character, honesty, knowledge and in-centive as governor to lead the state out of the existing critical condi-tion and General Martin is just such a leader, declared Bert Haney of Portland in promoting the candidacy of Major General Charles H. Martin, Democratic gubernatorial spirant, at the chamber of com-nerce Monday. Poor leadership and lack of planning has placed the state in its present position, he stated and urged the election of a solid, substantial, thinking man as governor A governor must be a leader, he cannot be a leader unless the people have confidence in him, and the people cannot have confidence in him unless they know him, Haney contended. He pointed out that General Martin had been an Oregon taxpayer for 42 years and had a record of accomplishment as as a leader who has the confidence of the people and who will not waste public money.

Platform Cited Martin makes few promises but will make good on everything he promises, Haney assured his audience, Haney scored candidates who promised tax reduction and free power from the Bonneville dam, declaring that taxes could not be reduced and that congress alone
