BEAVERTON—Fifty-seven students were graduated from Beaverton high school Friday night. The girls wore gowns of pastel shades and corsages of sweet peas and roses. The class colors were blue and silver. Rev. Charles P. Clarke gave the invocation, Marvin Stadler, president of the class, gave the welcoming address, Margaret West, Margaret Dickman, and Kenneth Taylor gave class addresses. The music was furnished by the girls' orchestra, the girls' glee club and the girls' quartet. I. R. Metzler presented the torch honor pins, the two silver cups and the scholarship to Maryhurst college. Dr. J. R. Talbot presented the diplomas.

School Work Ends

Nineteen students were graduated from the Beaverton grade school last Thursday, after which exhibitions of the pupils work were shown in the various rooms.

was unfounded, he said. He declared that the groups were organized by professional organizers from Portland and that rumors of recall action against the county court were alleged to have come from these groups, disgruntled over failure of the court to accede to their demands.

Telegram was sent to Congressman Martin by the group demanding that he sign the petition to bring the Frazer-Lemke bill out of the committee and to bring it before congress for action during this session. A resolution approving the present tax laws and condemning efforts for re-enactment of the penalty clause on delinquent taxes was tabled through the efforts of Frank Rowell of Scholls and Henry Hag of Reedville. They contended that the lack of penalty enforcement failure to pay taxes.

Findings review of the tax league work: Let us review first the efforts to reduce the state tax. During the year 1933 the cause of considerable alarm among tax paying bodies. An analysis of the situation proved that real property represented about 25 per cent of the wealth was paying about 75 per cent of the taxes. In addition to this it was found that about one-half the additional population of the state were not even listed on the tax rolls and were not paying any direct taxes. There was considerable talk of economy and Governor Meier and several members of the legislature were elected on an economy platform. During the 1931 session of the legislature, Governor Meier recommended and secured the repeal of the two-mill market road levy, effecting a saving of $2,500,000 annually.

"During the 1931 session of the legislature a number of wealthy taxpayers from Portland and other parts of the state gathered at Baker and attempted to have laws passed that would hamstring and nullify the income tax levied by the legislature. A group of farmers mostly from Yamhill and Marion counties, however, organized themselves together in Salem in sufficient numbers and plied their cause sufficiently well to prevent the passage of these laws. They also succeeded in arousing the sympathy so that at the end of the legislative session appropriation bills amounting to $681,173 were voted. One-half million of this amount was cut from the $1,811,173 appropriation for higher education. The governor also vetoed the emergency clause which allowed the remainder of the appropriation to be referred to the people and be defeated. This group of farmers formed the nucleus of the organization that later became known as the Tax Reduction and Equalization League. During the summer and fall months of the organization were formed in almost every county in the state. In the state tax law first the repeal of the $2,500,000 market road levy resulting in $681,173 less in tax revenue to the state. The defeat of the $681,173 market road levy by the legislature was vetoed by the governor brought about an additional saving of $1,000,000 in the budget. The $1,000,000 in tax revenue was also omitted from the property tax levy for the world war veterans. All told the $1,811,173 appropriation for higher education, $1,000,000 less, was cut from the budget. From the $15,000,000 budget submitted by the various state officials for 1933 a little over $5,000,000, representing a saving of about 40 per cent. The $1,000,000 deficit which has now been reduced to $1,000,000 and the state property tax levy higher education budget has been cut to approximately $3,000,000.

In our own county the work of our league brought about a saving of one-half million in the county levy of 1933 and we should remember, in considering the savings made during the years 1932 and 1933. Ninety thousand dollars were saved from the budget in 1932 and $40,000 from the budget in 1933. In addition to this many economies were made in the county. The county tax levying bodies. Comparing the county levies of 1931 and 1933 we find in 1931 an item of $8,728 for property tax, a reduction of over $40,000 in the county general fund. In 1931 the county levied $1,200,000 for property tax, $73,000 for transportation and tuition in the territories now known as the non-taxable territory. In 1933 the county levied $1,200,000 for property tax, $73,000 for transportation and tuition in the territories now known as the non-taxable territory.
