However, results have not been all that is desired. The berry situation wherein tons of strawberries rot in the fields is most regrettable. Solution of such problems are necessary to the welfare of the nation.

Signs calling for help in the berry fields, posted at the headquarters of the SERA, bring little response. No one can be allowed to suffer from hunger and want in this country and the relief programs were undoubtedly necessary. It may be possible, however, that some details were in error when pleas for workers get little

Two excellent nominations for the two vacancies on the Hillsbord school board have been made in the placing of Richard E. Wiley and Carl Russell on the ballot. Both are outstanding citizens of high character and are interested in children and school affairs. Their election will be an asset to the district.

Literary Digest poll on the Roosevelt policies seems to indicate pretty clearly where the great mass of American people stand. Business, and it includes small firms, see in provisions of the new deal a new hope for the future.

England is crowing about being so well off, but has made no provisions for paying the just debts contracted with the United States during the war. Uncle Sam was a beloved cousin 17 and 18 years ago when we went into the war with the allies against Germany.

A Good Policy

Endorsement policy of the chamber of commerce has saved the business people of Hillsboro thousands of dollars over a period of several years and was one of the most worthwhile activities of the organization. At one time Hillsboro was the mecca of most every fly-by-night proposition that existed and lots of money was taken out of the community to never return. With the adoption of the endorsement policy this picture was changed. This program should be maintained and all work together in the common interest.

Dunne's Support Speaks

The Morning Oregonian, in Portland, has announced editorially that it will support Joe Dunne for governor of Oregon against General Charles H. Martin, in the fall elections. The Oregonian went to great lengths to explain why it was going to support Dunne, without men-tioning any of Dunne's qualifications,

This will throw the Julius Meier, Henry Hanzen and Charles M. Thomas forces behind Dunne, along with the Oregonian, because the Salem crowd has already been given credit for starting the swing to

It will be interesting to see how the combination works out, because the Oregonian has said cruel things about the republican crowd in Salem these past few years. So have the voters at large, and it all augurs well for General Martin, the democratic nominee.—The Medford News.

Cost Too Great

Under the present system it costs too much to run for office, and the overhead expected from an official in the form of donations is too great. Some we will have a county manager or similar form government, when county officials will be hired as they are hired in private business—strictly on the basis of efficiency and fitness, without expensive campaigns, and without political alignments or considerations whatever. Some day there may be a government without politics, made necessary for relief from an intolerable tax burden.—Bee, DeQueen,

Questions of Necessity

President Roosevelt is criticized because, with the sanction of congress, he is pursuing policies which apparently are unauthorized by the constitution of the United States, but so was President Lincoln criticized for similar procedure, when without other authority than his own will he issued his emancipation proclamation, declaring it "warranted by the constitution under military necessity" and it cannot be reasonably denied that there is now pressing "economic necessity" for unusual measures.

Oregon Mutual Fortieth Anniversary

Forty years ago a few progressive McMinnville business men decided to start a mutual fire insurance company. Charles Grissen, O. H. Irvine and F. J. Martin, from the old records, seem to have been the active promoters of the scheme. None of these three men lived to see the fortieth anniversary of the great company they started Little did they realize that their mutual plan would be so effective as to save the people of Oregon many millions of dollars during the first forty years of its history, and at the same time develop into the second largest mutual on the Pacific coast.
