Pig Co-operates Corn-Hog Plans

Reducing litter production under the federal corn-hog program is one thing, but reducing production without decreasing the number of mouths to be fed on surplus corn is quite another.

Economists and agricultural experts might study over the problem until doomsday with-out reaching a solution but a white sow at the John Gottlieb place north of Hillsboro turned the trick last week, She farrowed a small pig with one body and two complete heads that appeared destined to solve the problem. However, the little pig died before the feasibility of such a solution could be determined. Needless to mention, the animal will be preserved as a monument to co-operation with a capital C.
