Duty of Citizens

American Legion leaders at Astoria clearly pointed out that it was the duty of every American citizen to see that the constitution of the United States is preserved against the insidious propaganda of radical elements seeking to destroy law and order.

National Commander Hayes said that the legion "does recognize a very definite communistic movement in the United States, and in making war upon the radical teachings that exist, the legion is taking the leadership in the thing for which it was organized, and is a bulwark of protection to America against the communistic menace."

"Communism, fascism, nazism and kindred doctrines have no proper place in the hearts of truly patriotic Americans," declared Harold J. Warner, state legion commander. Pointing out that the legion had always opposed Russian recognition, he called upon the administration to recall our diplomatic representatives from Russia and continue a severed relation to and until such time as we have positive assurance that the Russians will cease to propagandize this country in the cause of communism. He properly called upon national authorities to deport immediately all aliens found guilty of fomenting communism and other doctrines subversive to the governmental ideals written into our constitution.

The legionnaires fought for their country during the world war and will continue to give patriotic service in preserving the principles of justice, freedom and democracy.

Too Many Cats

Residents near town have reported that people bring cats to their farm and drop them right at their mail box. Several ladies living east of Hillsboro report that this practice has been going on for some time, until their place would look like a cat ranch if they kept all of them, and naturally they are getting mighty tired of the proceedings. "Do unto others as you would have others do unto you." How would you like to get up some morning to find a drove of cats around your door crying for something to eat? Farmers have enough to do without taking time to get rid of a bunch of "meows" every few days. Chloroform is cheap, so if you are too tender-hearted (?) to get rid of them any other way, try the chloroform route, but at least "have a heart" when it comes to dumping them onto a couple of farmerettes who are running a man-sized ranch.

Interesting

An experience that should make people sit up and take notice has been reported to the Argus. A woman wanted to send a post card of Oregon scenery to a friend in Michigan, but a call at local stores was in vain. Oregonians, living in the garden spot of the world, are too prone to take things for granted. Let us take on more of an aggressive spirit and really tell the world about the wonders of Oregon. This is the second time the attention of the Argus has been called to this condition.

Elks to war on Reds.—Headline. Go to 'em Bill.

THE GREAT AMERICAN HOME

Labor

All over the United States Monday people will observe Labor Day and fitting tributes will be paid to the nation's workers.

Labor has made many gains under the Roosevelt administration and has much for which to be thankful. It has earned the right of collective bargaining and four million workers have gone back on jobs as the result of NRA. Codes have given labor wage protections that are a far cry from the exploitations that existed in some centers of selfishness. These codes have given some protection to employers who have wished to be fair to labor.

Efforts will be made to put millions more back on productive enterprise. It has been predicted and probably rightly so that the hours of labor must be still further reduced in order to take up the slack in employment. A step in that direction has been made by the president, who has ordered cuts in the cotton garment industry cut from 40 to 36.

Most fair-minded people approve and want decent wage and working conditions for labor. They feel that any self-respecting, patriotic American citizen who is willing to work should be given that opportunity.

However, labor should remember that public opinion must be won, and that strikes that tie up business agriculture, industry and commerce will never rebound to their credit. Conditions in Oregon for nearly three months were sorely trying to people that were striving to make the best of improving business conditions. Thousands suffered and were thrown out of work and millions were lost because of a fight that came about through no fault of the public. Provisions should be made to iron out these industrial differences in a fair way to labor and employer alike without the public having to suffer.

American labor has always been better off than in other countries and the best assurance of better conditions lies in the maintenance of American principles and institutions.

President Roosevelt is a truly great leader, who is endeavoring to give the great mass of American people a "more abundant life." Support of him, his policies and those pledged to support him is the best insurance for the future.

Best Man Wanted

Politics are off to an early start for the general election this year. Candidates are buzzing around over the state giving their individual slants on questions of the day and their partisans are "Johnny on the spot" to give them a big welcome. Increased interest in governmental affairs is a good thing for the country. Let us hope that in spite of all the political "hokey" and pet ideas spread that the man best qualified will be in the governor's chair in January. Oregon is entitled to a good administration. A man riding in on appeal to prejudice will not give the state the sincere and strong administration that the state needs.

Stress Patriotism

School authorities should put more stress on patriotism in school activities. A resolution before the American Legion in California suggests that the pledge of allegiance to the flag "be resurrected from the inglorious discard into which it has been cast" and made part of the daily curriculum of every school of the nation. The principles upon which this country were founded are something of which every true American should be proud.

Milk control board is considering an increase of milk prices to the consumer in Portland of one cent a quart. The additional money is to go to the dairymen of the milkshed, who have been furnishing Portland with quality milk at less than cost. Their price has been increasing and we sincerely hope and trust that the milk board will grant the request.

Farmers working together and sticking together on fair prices and trade practices for their products, like the prune growers are doing, will improve their lot.

Local Business Man Weds Portland Girl

Miss Esther Elizabeth Stevens and Mr. Edward Glen Paine were married Saturday, August 11, at the home of Mrs. C. E. Stevens, in Portland. After a short honeymoon trip to the beaches they are making their home in Hillsboro at 1445 Jackson street.

"A Little Fellow" from Chicago writes: "We just want to add our compliments to the thousands that you have undoubtedly received with reference to the good NRA is doing industry. In our own little company, NRA has really worked miracles and we are very grateful to you for the benefits they are deriving. Not only were we able to pay on additional help but we are able to pay them a white man's salary."

"NO SMALL BUSINESS SUFFERS BECAUSE ITS OWNER WORKS HARD"

"There is talk about the hardships imposed upon small business concerns by codes. So far as the retail code is concerned, most of the complaints from small business concerns have been that the rules were not stringent enough. I know the trials and tribulations of the small merchant. In only one respect does retail code impose a hardship on him.

"He does have to work longer hours than he formerly did as his employees may not work as long as they once did. But I have never known a business to suffer because its owner was forced to work long and hard. Thousands who have attained success have worked longer and harder than any code will ever require.

"The retail code may take some business men off the golf course, or away from other distracting diversions, but the time may come when they will count these seeming hardships as blessings."—From a recent radio broadcast by Rivers Peterson, chairman, retail code authority.
