An Independent Newspaper, Whose Services and Policies are Based on the Principle of the Golden Rula.—"And as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise."—Matthew 7:12.

Congratulations, General

This newspaper, which supported General Charles H. Martin in his candidacy for governor, is happy to offer congratulations and best wishes for a successful administration of Oregon affairs. He is well qualified and with a favorable legislature should do much to give Oregon a New Deal with legislation that will tie in with the new federal recovery statutes.

Protects Small Business

Some of the most logical, broadminded and humanitarian editorial expression comes in the pages of the Hood River News, edited by Hugh Ball, president of the Oregon State Editorial association. This newspaper, normally republican, has been one of the staunchest supporters of the Roosevelt administration and the "New Deal" because of the humanitarian policies adopted and the plans for spreading a better living among the great masses.

The following Hood River News editorial is an excellent exposition of the price plan as seen by one who has been connected with the proper working out of the code plan for one of the most important industries. It expresses the belief that this newspaper has held and maintained that small business has not been hurt, but rather has received some degree of protection from big interests that if continued under trends up to the beginning of the Roosevelt administration would perhaps have eliminated the small business institution entirely and still further increased the concentration of wealth. PRICE DETERMINATION

It should be obvious to all that if there is any virtue in that section of the codes which applies to price determination, it should be upheld even by court action. And, by a like token, if this section of the codes is without value, it should be revoked.

To our way of thinking-and we have the advantage of having been for many months closely associated with the operation of one of the major codes—there is much virtue in price determination and, contrary to the views expressed by some who, obviously, have not given the matter much thought except from the personal and sometimes selfish standpoint, we hold to the opinion that price determination is of much benefit to the smlaler mer-chant and operator. Before codes were in vogue, many of the smaller merchants and industrial operators were forced into bankruptcy, mainly because they were unable to compete with the larger operators, who, because of immense buying capacity, could easily undersell the smaller man and yet, collectively, make a profit.

Today, with price determination, permitted to sell merchandise at a loss, and at the ame time, other codes make it very difficult for the larger operators to exploit the producer, as in former days, when the big merchants were able to buy below the producer's cost and thus sell at prices which the small merchant could not possibly meet.

Today we find one group of lumbermen of the Pacific Northwest using every effort to eliminate price determination and, apparently, enlisting some public sympathy. Yet it is a foregone conclusion that if this provision of the code is eliminated, it is going to work a severe hardship on the smaller lumber operators, who will find it almost impossible to remain in business if price-cutting is again resorted to by the big operators.

Of course, we have no sympathy with unfair price fixing, which would penalize the consumer But the consumer would quickly retaliate by refusing to buy if the price was raised to a level not justified by conditions. As between the ruthless and merciless competition of the past ten years and price determination as specified in the codes, every rea-sonable man and woman who know the facts will readily choose the latter, because it provides for a fair deal for all, the merchant, the producer, the employe and the consumer.-Hood River News.

Such an editorial is refreshing after an occasional reading of one in which facts are distorted and once in awhile go facts are distorted and once in awhile go very last thing one should do is to agree to stay so far as to absolutely forget the truth.

Armistice

Armistice day will be observed throughout the United States on Monday because November 11 falls on Sunday. It will be celebrated in many different ways and the business houses will be closed in some places and open in others. Local business will be closed Monday.

Business firms in Hillsboro have remained closed for the day every year since that glorious November 11 back in 1918 when the armed forces of many nations ceased their warfare. The spirit of the local business houses has been appreciated by the veterans and their families. As memory fades, however, business firms in the larger cities have remained open to the loss and discomfiture of store owners in the smaller communities, who have shown their patriotic spirit by closing. Portland Chamber of Commerce has voted for the stores to remain open Armistice day over the protests of the veteran groups of the Rose City and surrounding towns. It is not fair that they should remain open and draw people away from the smaller cities.

Armistice day means as much or more to a greater percentage of American citizens than any other day in the year. More than 4,000,000 men were under arms by November 11, 1918, and millions of homes were affected. Many millions more of fathers, mothers, sisters and brothers were directly affected. They keenly feel the importance of this day which brought relief and new hope to them and other millions of people throughout the world.

These patriotic American citizens feel that too much stress canont be placed on true Americanism, and that this day should be a national holiday with its lessons to every resident of America.

Remodel, Repair Now

Building or remodeling at this time is made easy through the provisions of the National Housing Act and action by many at this time will stimulate employment in the building trades and aid the lumber Hillsboro's new band is entitled to all the support possible from local people. A band is a real community asset.

The prophets are sadder, but wiser today. Well it makes life more interesting at least. It is one of the joys of a democracy.

What Other Editors Say

Results in Reduction

Place the $8500 cut in the city budget beside the amount paid for the publication of the city budget and it will be found that the expenditure would not pay the interest on the saving even for a short time. The public information which stimulated the move for a request for the saving was obtained at a comparatively small expense.

At this point we do not care to discuss the merits of the savings approved by the city council after reviewing the amount allowed by the budget committee. The significant fact for the present moment is that with the information provided through publication of the budget there was suffi-cient public sentiment created by the general knowledge of a proposed increase in taxation over last year to bring about a move for a return to the low standard set last year. Without publication the pub-lic would have been uninformed until they started to pay their taxes, which would have been too late for any effective action.

We simply wish to point the moral that the relatively small expense for public information in publishing acts of government is always justified. Forest Grove News-Times.

Don't Stay Buried

This story isn't ours, but nevertheless it is a

A farmer had an old blind horse which had outlived his usefulness. One day he fell into an old well. The farmer looked in and saw him standing deep in the water. There seemed to be no way to get him out, as he was quite useless, and the well abandoned and dangerous, the farmer ordered his men tof ill up the well and leave the horse buried in it.

The men began to shovel dirt into the well. But horse was not willing to be buried. When the dirt began to pour in upon him he began to shake it off and tread it under foot. As the well was filled up the horse came nearer and nearer to the surface, and when the men finished their task the horse walked out into the pasture.

The very things which conspire to bury the lionhearted these days, are used by them to lift themselves out of difficulties and into the light. The
