ment to be headed by a director to be appointed by the governor and eliminating the state treasurer and secretary of state from any jurisdiction over these institutions.

Net revenues of the state highway department for 1934 were $3,050,000 below those for the fiscal year 1930-31, according to R. H. Baldock, state highway engineer. This is due to the higher gas tax at $4,400,000 in automobile registration fees which dropped from a net of $6,219,261 to $1,876,000 from the change from the higher gas tax schedule of fees to the flat $5 fee. This loss was partially offset by an increase of $700,000 in gasoline taxes and another increase of approximately $126,000 in motor transport fees paid by bus and trucks.

Only five per cent of the revenue loss was due to a drop in automobile registration from 283,550 cars and trucks in 1930-31 to 279,000 in 1934. Ninety-five per cent of the loss was due to legislation reducing the tax on highways from 1.5 to 1.25 per cent, the fact that the burden borne by automobile owners has been reduced from an average of $47.40 in 1930-31 to $36.96 in 1934.

While revenues for the state highway purposes decreased from $10,784,201 to $7,730,000 the mileage of state highways to be maintained increased from 4260 miles of primary highways to 4750 miles of primary and 2050 miles of secondary highways in 1934. Baldock points out, "This increase in mileage of state highways transferred to the state a maintenance obligation formerly borne by the counties, amounting to approximately $500,000 a year."

At the same time revenues of the highway department were being reduced the state points out, revenues available for county roads were also being reduced by repeal of the one-mill market road tax which produced approximately $1,125,000 a year. County levies of 1.25 per cent have also been largely abandoned during the past four years still further reducing revenues for maintenance of county roads.

Local assessments as returned by the county assessors have been declining on an average of $25,000 a year for the past seven years according to a study made by the state tax commission. Valuations on local property as distinguished from utility property, reached their peak in 1927 at $93,939,946 since which time there has been a decrease each year. This year's assessments total $77,354,451, a slump of $17,585,495 in the seven-year period. Utility valuations do not reach their peak until 1931 when they totaled $186,959,976 since which year they have also been on the decline totaling only $167,649,954 this year.

Legal fees paid to attorneys by state departments during the past four years, other than the attorney general and members of his staff, total more than $150,000. Of this amount approximately $110,000 has come out of departmental funds. The remainder, amounting to more than $50,000 represents fees paid to attorneys handling bank and building and loan liquidations and has come out of the assets of these institutions.

Barnett Goldstein, Portland attorney, who handled the prosecutions against a number of building and loan officials for the corporation department under contract with James W. Mott, received $18,712 for these services. In addition, Goldstein received some $16,000 for his services in handling building and loan liquidations under the direction of the corporation department. The firm of Clark and Clark of Portland have received $7660 from the public utility commission during the past four years and still have a claim for $9750 for services in connection with the recent telephone investigation which has not yet been paid. This firm has also handled most of the work in connection with liquidation of defunct state banks in Multnomah and Columbia counties.

Other attorneys shown to have received fees from state departments or boards during the four years are H. M. Kenin, $5830.36 from the medical board and dental board; Wilbur Henderson, $1393.15 from the dental board and medical board; George H. Mary, $9020 from the game commission; Eugene March, $600 from the board of embalmers and funeral directors; L. A. Liljeqvist, $4000 from the land board and $800 from the executive department; Herzog and Kenin, $400 from the executive department; Custer Ross, $788 from the executive department; J. M. Pipes, $200 from the executive department; James R. Powers, $250 from the executive department; A. E. Clark, $18 from the hydro-electric commission.

Both the land board and the medical commission have attorneys in every county in the state who handle mortgage foreclosures and other work. Records of the land board show that the department has paid out $21,460 in fees to these attorneys during the four-year period while the bonus commission has disbursed $28,143 among some 50 attorneys, 14 of whom are located in Multnomah county.

No record is available as to the amount paid to attorneys for handling state bank liquidations during the four years, but A. A. Schramm, supervisor of banks, estimates the amount at in excess of $30,000.

Governor-elect Martin has proposed that all legal fees for the state be centered in the attorney general's department which, of course, would necessitate a material increase in the present salary of deputy attorney general. He is now assigned to the state industrial accident commission and the state highway department also employs two attorneys with the approval of the attorney general.

tors should all combine to bear out in a period of rising security prices. But because of inflationary possibilities, more legislation, and various other influences, the stock market of 1935 will be fully as selective as that of 1934. Remember that diversification is the soundest of all investment policies. In view of this, what is the outlook for various groups? Those industries catering directly to the wants of consumers, such as merchandising, amusement lines, will continue to excel gains made in 1934. Oils are temporarily disturbed but a long range outlook is still satisfactory. Automobile prospects look moderately better. Building issues will directly reflect the volume of construction.

Iron and steel operations will expand rapidly in first half second half depending on building. Chemicals should share in the coming year's business gains. Mill owners are feeling somewhat better after a very troubled year. Much farm and industrial equipment needs replacement. Railroads are due for some relief but long-pull investors will leave rail stocks alone. Rail equipment makers stand to benefit if any rail modernization program is put through congress. Politics cloud the utility outlook more than ever but power consumption is at a four-year peak so the net results may be better

The bond outlook is complicated by two diverse influences. First, any inflationary development which means a sharp rise in living costs will not help fixed income obligations. On the other hand, interest rates are being lowered all around. This forces the huge reservoir of investment funds into the bond market to obtain a higher return than now available on bank deposits or government bonds. At present writing it appears that the latter factor will continue to be the most powerful influence on bond prices in the early months of 1935. So wise investors are today not only judging against inflation but also against government bonds.

As we stand on the threshold of 1935 let us look back for a moment on the past three years. Readers will recall that 1932 marked the end of the worst depression in our history; 1933 averaged a 10 per cent gain; 1934 moved us 8 per cent nearer normal. Those of us readers whose business has yet shown little or no improvement should take heart. The outstanding development of 1934 was the broadening out of recovery into many new lines which had not shared the improvement of 1933 and 1934. We will definitely see this continued. Remember that while business is 27 per cent below normal it is 16 per cent below normal December two years ago and 9 per cent above last December. Let us all be thankful for this and for the development of 1934. We will again be on the verge of prosperity.

DEATH

Up around Third and Burnside is the Skidway. So-called because humanity up there is on the skids. Down-down-down. Fifteen cent beds, card rooms, beer joints; the band of homeless men. In the night, they look its toll of twenty-some victims in a few hours.

A picnic ticket advertisement "Dad's Place. Coffee and Do-Nuts 5 cents and Home-made Pie and Coffee 5 cents. All for a nickel you see. So it goes where humanity has mired down: stripes of hope, cheer and maybe health and clothes, with money only a memory.

Of all this there came a message of victory scrawled in red pencil on one of Dad's five-cent cards. It read, "Failure in the Christian life is impossible so long as you trust in Jesus Christ." Now some soul in the Skidway had produced him. And if it stands in the Skidway it ought to anywhere.

The Skidway started it away closer on Galilee that night, walking over the troubled waters, he shouts to the frightened disciples, "Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid." Then a word of command and the storm dies out into peaceful calm. Yes—He makes good everywhere, every day, every time. And why not? He is very God of very God.

"All things were made by him and without him was nothing made that was made."

But he will not undertake for you until the sin-question is settled. Right now, right where you are, tell God you take him as your Saviour to love, trust and obey. Then step out into 1935 looking up to him. Throw yourself on him. He waits to give himself "the friend that sticks closer than a brother." Yes—"Be of good cheer; it is I; be not afraid." George N. Taylor, Beaverton, Adv.
