Psychologist Talks Before B. P. Club

Integrity of personality, or personality development, was stressed as the most important phase of the life of an individual by Edwin Milton Belles, noted Portland psychologist, in a talk before Hillsboro Businake and Professional Women's club life of an individual by Edwin Milton Belles, noted Portland psychologist, in a talk before Hillsboro Business and Professional Women's club Friday evening. The present educational system was questioned in that children receive training in memory work and mathematics, but are not taught ways of solving problems of life. He stated that people should recognize their personality assets and liabilities, and correct them. Training and fear were named as two large factors in forming inferiority complexes. His advice was summarized in the quotation, "Know what is wrong and what is right, then do the right and live simply."

mig inferiority complexes. His advice was summarized in the quotation. "Know what is wrong and what is right, then do the right and live simply."

Scholarship Loan Fund committee, with Mrs. A. W. Hoffman as chairman, served the dinner, and the Legislative committee, with Mrs. Z. J. Riggs as chairman, arranged the program. Singing of club songs were interspersed during the evening. Table decorations were carried out in club colors with daffodils, ivy, and green and gold candles. The colonial motif was carried out in club colors with daffodils, ivy, and green and gold candides. The colonial motif was carried out in decorating the birthday table and colonial corsages were presented to the honor guests. Members having birthdays in February were Mesdames Lester Mooberry. S. E. Fayram, Herman Schoen, and Miss Ina Pearl Allen. Each gave a short talk on her birthplace.

Several historical articles were exhibited, including a U. S. flag made by pioneer women of Oregon City in Civil War days, one of which was Mrs. Marianne Dierdoff, sister of J. C. Ainsworth of early day steamboat fame. The flag flew for years over the court house at Oregon City. It is now the property of William Dierdorff of Hillsboro, a grandson of the late Mrs. Marianne Dierdoff, An old-time picture of George Washington and family was also shown.

Mrs. Zola Morgan reported on the council meeting and district conference held at Gresham in January. National Business Woman's Week, March 17-23, was discussed and tenative plans were made for three events—attendance at church March 17, an afternoon tea, cardparty and style show, and the public relations dinner on March 21. Definite plans will be announced later.

Health Work of County Told by Miss M. Dixon

Work accomplished during the last year was given by Miss Mar-garet Dixon, county nurse, in her "High Lights of 1934," a report of her activities before the Parent-Teacher county council at Hills-boro.

will be at the Manory Avenue Christian church, Portland, beginning Dixon lists a thorough physical examination of all children in the Glenwood school district, with immunization against smallpox and tuberculin testing. She supervised the nursing help provided by the CWA with a total of 101 home visits; reports 657 school children as having had physicians' examinations, 470 children vaccinated for smallpox and 540 protected against diptheria, She explained that this encouraging report would have been impossible without the unselfish assistance of the physicians of the county, each of whom has given generously of his time.

To complicate the work of the county nurse, such diseases as scargiet fever, whooping cough, numps, German measles, chicken pox, itch and impetigo have been prevalent, and in some communittes have reached the proportions of an epidemic.
