Great Percentage Accounts Insured

WASHINGTON, D. C.--In more than twelve thousand insured commercial banks in the United States almost one hundred per cent of accounts are protected from loss in the event of bank failure, it is shown by a report just released by the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation.

The report points out that even in the largest insured banks, those with total deposits of over fifty million dollars, less than three accounts out of one hundred exceed the insurance maximum of five thousand dollars. It also shows that in the majority of insured banks where deposits amount to more than two million dollars less than two accounts out of every hundred do not come within the limit of complete protection.
All but a small fraction of one per cent of both time and demand depositors in the group of the smallest banks are fully insured, the report indicates. The figures also reveal the fact that in all banks with total deposits ranging up to two million dollars the Federal Deposit Insurance Corporation entirely protects more than ninety-nine out of a hundred depositors. There are 12,241 insured banks in this group representing better than eighty-seven per cent of insured banks.

Fr all the insured banks in the country the percentage of fully insured accounts is 98.39. The ratio of insured deposits as compared with total deposits is not as high as that for insured accounts, it being 44.44 for the entire country.

However, the ratio of insured deposits shades off from over 91 per cent in the smallest banks to almost 26 per cent in the largest, the report shows, with more than seventy per cent of total deposits insured in the vast majority of banks. It is pointed out that the balance representing deposits in amounts exceeding the insurance limit, consists largely of deposits of public funds, deposits of institutions and corporations and the deposits of one bank in another, a good part of which are secured by pledges of assets and therefore not needing the protection of deposit insurance.

by Paying Them On or Before

THE TOTAL POSSIBLE SAVINGS UNDER THE PRESENT TAX LAW ARE VERY LARGE

For Example -- In Washington county alone, 3% of the tax roll represents the sum of almost $30,000. You, as a taxpayer, can share in further benefits to be derived from prompt payment of taxes. Among such benefits are decreased warrant indebtedness, and corresponding decrease in interest paid on outstanding warrants. The present law which allows this 3% discount is therefore of direct interest to taxpayers as individuals as well as to the communities in which they reside.
