Poor Richard's Almanack

To get the fullest pleasure and greatest benefit out of the Ben Franklin Quiz Game, we suggest you get a copy of Poor Richard's Almanack at the business office of The OREGONIAN, or have it mailed to you.

The SUNDAY OREGONIAN'S revival edition of Poor Richard's Almanack, in which all sayings for the series of pictographs will be found, contains 670 selected sayings of Benjamin Franklin with a brief sketch of his life. You will treasure it. The judges will use this edition of the Almanack in selecting the most appropriate or "best" sayings for the pictographs, which will decide the winners of $1500 in cash.

Poor Richard's Almanack will be supplied to Quiz players for 15 cents. Poor Richard's Almanack may also be secured by mail; send 18 cents in stamps and address your letter to the BEN FRANKLIN QUIZ, THE SUNDAY OREGONIAN, Portland, Or.

Rules Covering the Ben Franklin Quiz

- The Ben Franklin Quiz is open to everybody in the Pacific northwest, except employees of The OREGONIAN and their relatives. Entrants will not be required to solicit subscriptions in order to qualify for any of the prizes, which total $1,500.00.
- The Ben Franklin Quiz game consists in the reading of sixty pictographs which will be published in the SUNDAY OREGONIAN, beginning on Sunday, March 10, 1935. Each pictograph will be found to express pictorially a saying or sayings of Benjamin Franklin, such sayings being contained in the OREGONIAN'S Revival Edition of Poor Richard's Almanack, each saying being preceded by a number which represents it. Entrants are to choose the most appropriate saying for the sixty pictographs, and in the space provided on the answer blank printed beneath each pictograph write down the number which represents the selected saying.
- Pictographs and answers are to be submitted at one time after the close of the Ben Franklin Quiz Game. The game starts with the publication of the first pictograph Sunday, March 10, 1935, and eight pictographs will be published each Sunday thereafter until the final four pictographs are published on Sunday, April 28. Participants will be allowed two weeks to prepare their sets of answers and all answers to qualify for the judging for the award must be posted in the main office of The OREGONIAN by 12 midnight, May 11, 1935. Participants are permitted to mail answers, and all answers submitted by mail will be accepted by The OREGONIAN, providing the letters bear a post mark not later than midnight May 4, 1935, and sufficient postage. The SUNDAY OREGONIAN will not be responsible for any delays, loss or non-delivery of sets of answers in mail or otherwise. All answers, if mailed, should be addressed to "The Ben Franklin Quiz, The OREGONIAN, Portland, Oregon."
- The OREGONIAN will award 129 cash prizes, totaling $1,500, to the persons who are the most successful in giving the best answers to the pictographs. In accordance with these rules, Entrants do not necessarily have to solve each of the sixty pictographs to win. Prizes will be paid to those whose answers rank highest.

- Judgment of the answers submitted for the pictographs and selection of those deserving of awards will be made by a committee of official judges. Participants enter with this understanding. The judges will select from the sets of answers submitted the saying which they deem most appropriate or "best" for each pictograph. All sets of answers will then be judged accordingly from this list of "best" sayings.
- The list of cash prizes announced in the SUNDAY OREGONIAN will be awarded in order to the highest-ranking participant on the following basis: Those participants will be judged to have achieved winning results who supply most appropriate or "best" sayings for the pictographs. The person submitting the highest number of such sayings will be awarded the first prize, the person submitting the next highest list of such sayings will be awarded the second prize, and so on. If there should be an equality between two or more participants, then the decision will be given according to superiority in the following requirements, each being necessary only in case there is an equality on the preceding point: (a) The least number of incorrect (the sayings which are not "best") answers; (b) the highest rate position of the participant's complete set of answers, as when three answers are given for each pictograph, or one pictograph, the correct answer is given in position as first choice rather than in the second or third position; (c) neatness, attractiveness and the manner of presentation of the answers; (d) the ultimate tie, each tied participant will receive the full prize tied for.
- Beneath each of the sixty pictographs will be found a ruled space for the number which represents the answer to the pictograph and a space for the entrant's name and address. Entrants may, if they wish, submit answers for each pictograph on a sheet of paper on which may be drawn or traced in pen and ink or pencil a facsimile of the pictograph and the ruled space with its printed contents. Copies of The OREGONIAN are on file at libraries where they may be examined without charge.
- The OREGONIAN has published a special edition of Poor Richard's Almanack, containing 670 selected sayings of Benjamin Franklin with a brief sketch of his life, and all sayings for the series of pictographs must be found in it. The Almanack may be consulted free of charge at the office of The SUNDAY OREGONIAN, or an entrant may ask the authorities of any regularly constituted public library to obtain a copy. One copy of Poor Richard's Almanack will be mailed free to any public library in each city and town within the territory prescribed in these rules. Poor Richard's Almanack may also be secured at The OREGONIAN business office for 15 cents, or it will be mailed upon receipt of 15 cents.

- A person may submit one or more, not more than three, sets of answers. Each set of answers submitted must contain at least one answer for each of the sixty pictographs in the series in order to be judged and eligible for a prize. An entrant may give one or as many as three choices of sayings for each pictograph, and if the "best" one is among them, it counts. Only one prize will be awarded to any household, family or group, whether two or more persons have worked together. An entire family can play the game, however, and each member of the family can submit sets of answers. In the event more than one set of answers is of winning quality, the prize will be awarded to the best set submitted by that family, household or group. All sets of answers sent to The OREGONIAN and cannot be returned. The SUNDAY OREGONIAN reserves the right to disqualify any entry not submitted in accordance with these rules. The SUNDAY OREGONIAN reserves the right to correct any typographical errors that may appear inadvertently in any announcement of winners of the Ben Franklin Quiz Game. The SUNDAY OREGONIAN'S decision with regard to all questions relating to the Ben Franklin Quiz Game, whether before or after the award of prizes, will be absolutely final and binding. The names of the final winners and prizes won, together with the list of most appropriate or "best" sayings as selected by the judges, will be published in the SUNDAY OREGONIAN as soon as possible after the committee of judges completes its report.
