As Dog Show Actors 'Emote'

Historical Facts on Fords Wanted

Historical facts, photographs and clippings to show the part played by the Ford automobile in the development of the west are wanted by H. L. MacKenzie of the MacKenzie Motor company of Hillsboro. The material will be used for the Ford exhibit at the California Pacific International exposition at San Diego.

There may be photographs of the principal street of the town "then and now" which shows Fords in use. Perhaps a local doctor owned a Ford and made his calls into the county with it. There may be other stories of how this car replaced the horse-and-buggy day fire engines, school wagons, stages, or how the trucks were used in clearing land and building roads. At any rate MacKenzie would like to get hold of any information or pictures available.
