HILLSBORO, OREGON, THURSDAY, MARCH 21, 1935 CAN SPRING BE FAR BEHIND?

Rev. C. Amling

Third in Series of Lenten Services Here Tonight

Local Speaker

Rev. C. Amling of Olympia, Wash, will speak at Lenten devo-tional service conducted tonight (Thursday) at the Hilhi auditorium by Lutheran churches. Pastor Amling is a member of the Ore-gon and Washington district mision board of the Lutheran Missour Synod.

Rev. E. Hinrichs of Blooming preached on "Jesus in Gethsemane" last week. Referring to a painting on the Lord's passion by the German artist Heinrich von Hofmann entitled "Not My Will But Thine Be Done," the speaker explained: "The Savior kneels upright and unsupported on the top of a huge boulder. His countenance is pale, and worn and His entire frame is restless with anguish. But from His haggard face eyes clear and unfraid look upward. They are fixed upon a chalice His outstretched hands are about to re-ceive. The chalice is reached to Him by an angel, whose face is turned away from it in terror, for it is filled with the wrath of God, that has been incurred by the sin of mankind." "'Sin' is a word too small for the vocabulary of those wise in modern philosophy and modern religion," Rev. Hinrichs continued. "They displace it by the nice-sounding phrase 'the imperfection that still clings to man in this advanced stage of development' and hesitate to designate 'good and hesitate to designate 'good citizens' and 'respectable families' as sinners. But according to the scriptures, sin is inborn in the very nature of man and manifests itself in the heart and in the life of every individual. It is rebellion against the holy laws which the Creator has ordained for the well being of the race, and by which the curse of eternal death rests upon the transgressor.

"Jesus saw in that cup all the holy curses that rested upon all sins and upon all sinners mixed together in one bitter draught and prayed that, if it were possible, the cup might pass from Him. Yet He gladly submitted to the eternal will of the Father, and in behalf of man's redemption, drained the cup to the very last drop."
