An Independent Newspaper, whose services and policies are based on the principle of the Golden Rule—"And as ye would that men should do to you, do ye also to them likewise."—Matthew 7:12.

Welcome, Newcomers!

Another of the new settlers' meetings will be held in the chamber of commerce rooms Saturday afternoon. The response of those present at the first meeting would indicate that such gatherings for discussion of local conditions are beneficial and enjoyable.

Washington county has been selected as the new home of many families that have come here from the drought-stricken mid-west. In our opinion they could not have picked a finer place in which to make their homes.

We hope that these newcomers will like it here and they will always find a hearty welcome in the county seat. Hillsboro is happy to have these new citizens and the chamber of commerce is grateful for the opportunity of acting as their hosts.

Local business men, if they attend the meeting, will meet some mighty fine people and at the same time learn a lot about their home county that they never knew before themselves.

While in town at any time we would be glad to have them visit the Argus office and inspect the plant.

Universal finger-printing in this country would be a great forward step in crime prevention and would protect the good citizenship of the country.

Keep the Balance

With the war clouds becoming threatening in Europe let us hope that this country is able to keep its balance. We paid a pretty price for the lesson of 1917, 1918 and 1919. Millions of us still remember and do not want this nation plunged into another such excess.

In the meantime all thought should be given to national co-operation with the Roosevelt program in bringing this country and its people back to the highest possible level from the low of depression. No one can be allowed to starve, but the country should not be taken advantage of by the undeserving. Rules should be clear and impartially administered. We believe that when this country gets back on its feet again these debts will be paid off again as were those of the World War. And doesn't it seem a lot more logical to spend for reconstruction than for destruction as was the case back in war days.

It is also a very fitting time for congress to take action that will eliminate the profit from war. Munition makers should not profit while the flower of American youth is being snuffed out with the latest contraptions of war. The American Legion and other veteran groups have sought for universal draft in time of war. If such were brought about conflicts would not come as often.

Stand Clearly Stated

Stand of the World war veterans on the adjusted service compensation was clearly stated here last week by Harold Warner, national vice-commander of the American Legion. He showed where it was a recognized debt of the government pointed out where others had been paid sums to restore them to their position before the war, that it should be paid and taken out of politics and that it most assuredly was not a question of being paid for patriotism.

When some of these war profiteers that made millions out of war criticize the veteran for asking for something that he is justly entitled to and has been so recognized it just about makes one's blood boil. Twenty-two thousand new millionaires were created during the war, a number almost equal to the number of American grave crosses to be found in France.

Good Judgment

Governor Martin used good judgment in vetoing the bill to remit penalties and interest on delinquent taxes for 1931-32. The governor in his veto said that all but about 22 per cent of the taxes for the two years have been paid and that those urging the measure represented large property owners and corporations as contrasted with the plea of proponents that it would relieve many small home owners. Continuation of tax leniency as written into the law by the 1933 legislature is unfair to the thousands of taxpayers, who conscientiously scrape and sacrifice to meet their tax bills. Tax bills should be enforced equally upon all. Leniency piles up the bill on all, those who pay and those who are delinquent.

Good Barometer

No better indication of improved conditions throughout the country can be found than the increase in income tax payments to the federal and state governments. Expressions have even been made in Washington to the effect that the increased payments may eliminate the necessity for new levies to defray the costs of the national security program. James Maloney, collector of internal revenue for Oregon, reports that income tax collections for Oregon during the first 15 days of March were $396,097.60 as compared with $285,925.01 for the same period a year ago.

Great Event for Community

Annual Hillsboro Fourth of July celebration has been placed in the hands of a commission of five well known and able local citizens. The thought that should be kept uppermost in their minds is that this event is a traditional affair of great value to Hillsboro and the surrounding community. It is a time of enjoyable homecoming looked forward to each year by scores of former residents and a day of play and reunion for local people. Let us all join in making it even a more worthwhile local event.

Worthwhile

Dairy herds of the county are giving other members of the Yamhill-Washington County Herd Improvement association something to shoot at in the way of records. These associations, in our opinion, are extremely worthwhile and will eventually result in putting the dairy industry on a higher plane.

Cow County Editor Holds Post Mortem

If you believe in democracy you will believe in the legislative branch of democracy, which functions just as well as the judicial branch of a democracy and better than the administrative or executive departments.

The house of representatives at Salem, composed of 60 members, was a cross section of the men and women who are in the last analysis the busy marts of the state. They bring into legislative halls your ideas, your notions, your likes and dislikes, your prejudices, your interests and selfish interests, false reasoning, good intentions, parliamentary trickery, cunning, lobbying with the commercial clubs and all of the organizations and varied interests that make up the life of the state. They bring to the senate where it goes through the same course of public hearings, committees, and then out into the senate and amended again.

When we think of the lobby, we think of the boys who infest the legislative halls—lots of them, but yet not so many, compared with the folks back home; for remember, when the Oregon legislature meets, all of Oregon is a lobby. If a member lacks the courage, lacks the intelligence, lacks the tact, lacks the ability to withstand this state-wide lobby, he has no place in legislative halls. One must do his own thing, and be able to value and interpret the demands, the interests, the ways, the means and the methods of the lobby which meets one in the halls of the state capital and extends out into the county seats and to the commercial clubs at home, and to the farmers, the soldiers, the rich, the poor man, beggar man and Indian chief, for each and all, a group any that group wants to whisper in the legislator's ear. And we say that the legislature does not do anything, or that it does too much, and it ought to go home and do its own business, but bless your heart, it has no business of its own, and the 1000 bills that pass in parade come from the people with the hundreds of groups demanding that they do pass.

But we love humanity; we believe in men and in him is our faith, and upon this faith we base democracy with its blundering, stumbling, groping, and groping, whose life impulse is to restrain the strong and protect the weak. Don't take your legislative bodies too lightly for when you accept them as an evil or a joke, you are indicting yourselves, and you are confessing that you are incapable of self-government and that you are by nature, a slave, seeking some master, whom you would adorn with the jewels of the symbol of sovereignty. You are kind and the legislature is your fingers and toes.

In this post mortem we shall not attempt to analyze any of the 1000 bills that passed into legislative review. But we will show you how royalty still aspires and how the fundamentals of a democracy are in constant danger from sinister, cunning and clever influences that lie dormant, slumbering in the legend of petit princes and bejeweled grand dames ever eager to ascend the dais of a royal throne. In this session there was an attempt to place qualifications upon the voter. Make property rights a qualification. That strikes at democracy. The jury system was attacked, and the sound logic that the best way to reduce a bill is to amend it as often as one can.—Newberg Scribe.

Governor Martin has made more enemies in the two months he has been in office than probably any governor for many years. What does that prove? It proves simply that he is going ahead with a determined program for better government, unafraid of carping minorities who are used to pushing and shoving officeholders to their own advantage through political threats. Governor Martin has a program for increasing the business efficiency of the state. He will fight for that program without fear of his political future. That kind of governor deserves approval and praise from the state's voters and taxpayers.—Grants Pass Bulletin.
