Courageous

No matter how one may consider certain parts of the inflationary bonus bill vetoed by the president, it must be conceded that the veto message was one of the most courageous political documents ever delivered. In view of the great demand and the strong veteran vote it took real courage and leadership to say no.

This paper has leaned toward the passage of the bonus measure as a recovery step and also as the payment of a debt due the veteran, but no one can deny that many logical arguments were presented by the nation's leader. The Patman bill was confounded from the first with the provision for inflation in the printing of the required sum of money and many of its proponents were more interested in inflation than the ex-service man. The Vinson measure, backed by the American Legion, was a straight statement of the bonus and did not carry the inflationary provision.

Even the most conservative veteran, however, feels that the president is rubbing it in unnecessarily in statements wherein he is credited with saying that the veteran who returned in good health was not entitled to any more consideration than any other citizen.

Cannery Unit Planned Here

Relief Groups Contemplate New Plants in County

Plans for operation of relief cannery units in Hillsboro, Forest Grove, Tigard and Beaverton or Aloha this summer were discussed by the county relief committee Tuesday evening. E. H. Wiegand, state supervisor of relief canneries, and Mrs. Clara V. Thompson of the rural rehabilitation division were present for the conference.

Cannery work was conducted at Tigard last summer and additional units are needed this year to handle fruits and vegetables grown by clients in relief gardens, according to R. W. Weil, chairman. The county court has agreed to contribute toward the establishment of the units provided the several communities will co-operate. Assistance has already been promised by the Hillsboro chamber of commerce.

The government will provide cans, sugar and other supplies, while the SERRA will provide supervision. Members of the county committee include James Lewis, county commissioner, W. C. Schuler, Forest Grove and W. G. Ide of Hillsboro.

That all employable persons on relief will be required to avail themselves of seasonal employment as soon as it is offered was the decision reached by the committee. To this end all such persons are requested to register with the local branch of the state employment service immediately. Persons have already been brought out from Portland to work in the berry fields, Weil stated.

Bert Hagen of Tigard has resigned from the relief committee due to the press of other business and J. S. Barber, also of Tigard, was named as his successor. Mrs. Christine Howler, home economics instructor, has also been added to the rural rehabilitation staff.

Hulet appealed the case to the circuit court. Jurors included Herbert W. Ficken, Ralph C. Oglesby, Mabel McLeod, Eleanor Mundorf, William H. Jones, Henry W. Scott, Rudolf Nelson, Anna Neumann, R. F. Pomeroy, Carl H. Johnson, Fred Amacher, and William H. Jones.

The trial continued during Friday, and was postponed until June 3. Jurors drawn included Rudolf Nelson, William G. Hesse, Grace G. Wahl, Carl H. Johnson, Margaret S. Weed, Eleanor Mundorf, R. F. Must Fill Gap

National Recovery and its codes and the Frazier-Lemke farm mortgage moratorium act have been declared unconstitutional by the supreme court. This is likely to result in some confusion but it is hoped that the congress will soon enact a substitute measure for the NRA that will eliminate features objectionable to the court.

The NRA, contrary to the political blasts in Washington and elsewhere, was a protection to most small and independent business institutions. It curbed the spread of mergers and consolidations that were concentrating the wealth of this country in a few hands. If some protective measure is not taken by congress the small independent business and business man will be a thing of the past.

President Roosevelt clearly stated the case when he said: "I don't think the great majority want to go back to the old system. This structure that business says is good and labor wants should be retained. We have got to salvage the thing from the wreckage."

The president of the United States Chamber of Commerce has called upon business to keep the spirit of NRA and not make any immediate changes in hour or wage schedules. He declares that now is the time for the American business man to show his good faith. A spirit of co-operation is being expressed in every section. Most business firms in industries, where the act has proved beneficial to all, will want to continue on in the spirit of NRA, but it is a question as to how long they may withstand the onslaughts of the "chiseler," whose rotten activities eat into the vitals of the country's prosperity.

Let us all fervently hope that the era of ruthless price-cutting does not set in to carry everyone—labor, agriculture and business—down with it.

What Other Editors Say

Reinstate the Toziers

The Capitol Press at Salem which feels that anything Rufus Holman does must be right, comments thusly on the Toziers at Champeo park. "Mr. Tozier and Mrs. Weathered were not deposed for failure to manage the park properly but for political alliances and activities," and then adds the hope that the park will not become a "mere amusement park."

That editor should spend a day some time getting acquainted with both Champeo park and the former caretakers who live nearby, then ponder for a time on which sounds the more ridiculous—depicting the elderly brother and sister as arch political manipulators or fearing that the park, boasting nothing more than two rustic buildings, a boat landing, some benches, tables and a few water faucets, may degenerate into a carnival center.

The Toziers, as we here know them, were deposed because Rufus wasn't properly kow-towed to a blustering inspection visit and retaliated by making good his threat of "I'll show you who's boss."

However, we are glad to note the Capitol Press has added its voice, even though hesitatingly and querulously, to the chorus urging reinstatement of the caretakers.—Newberg Scribe.

Lumber Strike Area Peaceful This Week

Made between Sheriff J. W. Connel and Hall for the continuance of the strike. The point where the Stimson spur line crosses the highway.

Adjutant General George A. White, head of the Oregon National Guard, Colonel H. C. Brumbaugh and Captain Charles E. Fitch, national guard officers from Portland, came to the mill during the morning. Otto Hartwig, state industrial accident commissioner, and C. H. Turner, labor commissioner, were conferred with Hall a short time before he urged the pickets to disperse.

Settlement of the Northwest lumber strike and immediate action by the part of employees in allied industries leading toward settlement of their disputes seemed certain today, according to Portland advisers.

Turning point in the strike was seen in the late afternoon. I more than 1000 workers a strike Wednesday night on the Muir plan. As a result of this acclamation, workers in Long-Bell and Meyerhaver camps and mill will return to work immediately.

Same basis of settlement as that accomplished at Longview is to go before employes at other mills immediately. It provides for an increase in pay of 5 cents an hour for the first week, high scale pay in the northwest and a 40-hour week.

Labor troubles, which have centered near the Stimson mill during the past few weeks, threatened to spread to other parts of the strike in Washington county Friday. On that day 19 men from the T. Shigeno field at Gales Creek were reported to have appeared at the Stimson mill near Banks and had attempted to incite a strike. Threats to beat up pickers who failed to strike were made, according to word received here. Sheriff Connell and his deputies were immediately to the field but the threatened violence did not develop.

Thieves who punched the Sealy Mattress company safe at Tigard Monday night got only eight cents for their trouble, according to a report to Sheriff Connell. The same evening the Tigard Lumber company was broken into and approximately $150 taken from the safe and cash drawer.

Entrance to the mattress company was gained by breaking a window in the rear of the building. A rear door was jimmied at the back of the office.

Frank Bonondo and Dorothy Foster, both of Portland, were arrested Friday evening by state police near the junction of the Stimson mill road and the Tillamook Valley highway. They were booked on disorderly conduct charges.

Search was started this week for a crocker, 16, who disappeared from her home in Hillsboro May 3. The girl was wearing a yellow silk dress, white shoes and anklets and a navy blue coat, according to her younger sister. She was believed to have hitchhiked from Hillsboro to Portland.

Out of the Red

It would appear that the Mothers' organization of the state university in passing resolutions asking for the abolition of the office of chancellor, has only intensified the anti-Kerr feud. No organization, college or any other, is entirely dependent for success upon its head. The going of Chancellor Kerr can not in any manner promote the development of the university. To say that "the University of Oregon has not progressed comparably with other institutions of like nature in other states," is a trite statement. The same criticism could be placed on many other state organizations. For instance, it is doubtful if Oregon's highway system compares with Washington's. It is doubtful if our fruit and nut industries have progressed as far as California's. It is also a question if Oregon is making the utmost of its unrivaled scenic beauty. This seems to be an age for resolving. Everybody's doing it, seemingly. It leads one to believe that the mothers of students at the state university have listened to some one somewhere who wants another fuss.—The McMinnville News-Reporter.

Lyda Family Home Destroyed by Fire

Family home of the pioneer Lyda family at Gales Creek was destroyed by fire last Wednesday. Damage estimated at $4500 was caused by the blaze which was believed to have started from sparks falling on the dry roof. The structure had been in the Lyda family for 45 years.

The residence, most of its contents, a tool shed and barn were destroyed while a woodshed and garage were saved. The Forest Grove fire department was prevented from answering the alarm by a call at the same time from McCormick hall on the Pacific university campus. The alarm from the campus proved false.

As to Progress

The Hillsboro Argus says that there isn't much argument about conditions being better in Washington county than a couple of years ago. The county warrants were pretty plentiful and the discount rate was going up. Local businessmen sponsored scrip to be issued against county warrants, continues the Argus to aid the situation, while today they are just ready to go on a cash basis.

While there was never any scrip issued in Yamhill county, warrants had to be resorted to. The fact is that we forgot too easy! A couple of years ago they were dragging judges off the bench and tarring and feathering them for doing only that which the law made it mandatory for them to do. Today farmers for the most part like the counties and municipalities, are on a cash basis.—Sheridan Sun.

Vernon Burlingham of Forest Grove was selected as vice-chairman of the county planning board.

Discovery Wild Ducks Interests

G. C. Ruecker, living at South Fifth avenue and East Walnut may have a real one for Ripley's "Believe It or Not" column. The find is by Ruecker of the same date the ducks while signing a check in the basement Tuesday has provoked many conjectures as to their origin.

He first noticed them "peeping" from near the sewer drain, giving rise to the thought by some that they might have come up from the river. While highly improbable, inquiry around at the neighbors fails to reveal anyone owning any wild ducks.

Ruecker gave the baby ducks to Bob Corrier at the service garage Tuesday night, where they and their story created much interest.
