Takes Exception

Herbert Hoover's statement made in Portland recently that NRA (as it then existed) was ruinous to small business was fittingly challenged by Roy O. Burnett, troubles. president of Roy Burnett Motors. From all reports and by vote of the great majority it has been shown that the code as it affected automobile dealers was one of the most successful and was a great factor in stabilizing the business.

The Burnett statement clearly points out the value to the people as a whole of the auto code:

"Cutthroat competition was ruining the automobile business." Burnett said. "Unless you gave away all your profits it was impossible to do any business. Then the code came along and offered us the opportunity of putting the automobile business on a firm footing. For the past 18 months I have given half of the time which ordinarily should belong to my business to working as a code official. The automobile code means a square deal for the dealer, the public and the employe.

"Take this organization for example. Before the time of the NRA we had 14 employes. We now have 41 on our payroll and are paying 50 per cent better wages. If the NRA is through and no other code of fair trade practices is substituted we will have to lay off one-third of our help and cut salaries on the rest. And the same situation will be true in other automobile establishments and doubtless in other lines of trade.

"Absolutely the reverse of Mr. Hoover's statement is true in the automobile business. Most emphatically the NRA has aided the small dealer. Take ode and all profit now made by the small ciealer will be gone.

"I also want to mention that the NRA has cleared up to a great degree the evils formerly prevalent in the used car market, and that it has given the small town dealer a chance to be a busi-ness man and make a living. In former years the small town dealer had no chance to sell a new car in competition with the city distributor. Now that unfair angle of the business is gone, because prices on both new and used cars have been stablized. The small town dealer now is able to the people residing in his community the same terms

While state officials are busy looking for a suitable site for the capitol building we opine that they will look a long time without finding a more suitable place than the location of the old building. More a -larger capitol, but having all state buildings within a small radius would be a decided advantage. It would also permit a much larger sum being expended on the building, and no doubt with some close figuring more space could be arranged for the structure. The capitol grounds have always been the admiration of visitors to Salem.

Oregon Fortunate

Oregon is fortunate in having a man like Charles H. Martin as governor in these strenuous times. His decisive action in the recent disturbances and riots above Forest Grove in backing up local enforcement officers changed a serious looking situation into one of peace, where those who wanted to work were not subject to beat-up gangs. With Martin as governor conditions are not likely to degenerate to the deplorable state of a year ago in the longshoremen's strike when there was much bloodshed.

Governor Martin, naturally and rightly, states that men should have the right to peaceful picketing and should be guaranteed the right of collective bargaining. However, these rights do not extend to mob rule and the beat-up tactics that kept Oregon in a state of turmoil for weeks last year.

May the time come when labor troubles can be amicably settled through proper court or othewise impartial channels so that use of force will be a thing of the past. The public should do everything possible to bring such a condition about for it is the big loser in such Strong public officials, who do their duty with courage and impartiality, will make for happier conditions.

Albert J. Hartrampf has been a very capable member of the Hillsboro school board and the people of the district should gladly take advantage of his willingness to serve another term as a director.

One cannot help but wonder sometimes what would have been the reaction of some people if the NRA had been proposed and enacted under a republican administration instead of a democratic administration.

Most political opportunists are a whole lot more interested in political power than they are in the popular issues on which
