LESTER IRELAND & CO.

The value of any test depends upon its completeness . . . and upon who makes the test.

No single test will prove the over-all excellence of a refrigerator. To prove operating economy, it must be considered in relation to dependable performance. To prove ice-making capacity, freezing time and current consumption must be taken into account. To prove adequate shelf capacity demands consideration of individual home requirements. If there is any single factor more important to you than any other, it is the surplus power necessary to chill foods and freeze ice no matter how hot your kitchen may be.

Norge challenges comparison on every point. Norge invites you to make the tests in your own home. Norge says, "If you do not find that Norge is everything we claim—will do everything we say it will—we'll take it back and refund your money."

(This sensational offer applies to Norge ranges and washers as well as refrigerators.)
