Holman's Idea Good

State Treasurer Holman hits the nail on the head when he says that Oregon should retaliate against states which discriminate against firms of this state in placing orders for materials and equipment. California, he points out, refuses to entertain any bids from out-of-state firms for state supplies.

If California finds this to be good business it should prove the smart thing for Oregon. We can easily agree with the state treasurer when he expresses himself as favoring greater protection to Oregon industries, products and labor against outside competition.

It is the local concern that helps with the payments that keep the wheels of government and industry moving at home. It should always have every possible consideration from public groups and individuals. Remember that the dollar shipped away seldom returns to circulate in your own community, but that the one spent at home goes through many hands to increase the opportunities for all.

A Governor for All

Governor Martin is a governor of all the people and no particular set of minorities. A governor like that with courage will give this state a good administration. Any recall vote will prove surprising to discontented groups or individuals for Governor Martin will be sustained by those interested in good government and those thousands in Oregon who still believe thoroughly in law and order and constituted government.

Promises made and not fulfilled are a blot on the record of the one who made the promises. Treatment of children in this manner may make its mark on them boys with a promise to pay so much and when payoff time comes actual payment made is less than half of what was promised it may do something to these boys that even time will have difficulty in erasing. A promise made should be carried out in good faith.

Righto! Much criticism is being made that it will cut too deep, but many of us would like to have an opportunity to live on what they will have left.

Congratulations are due our own Dr. R. J. Nicol for being elected president of the Oregon State Veterinary association at the meeting of the northwest group in Victoria, B. C., last week. Dr. Nicol is highly regarded as a citizen and friend in this community and he brings it honor by this election.

A Good Citizen Passes

The death of Judge J. W. Goodin ended an active public career of a man, who probably had as much to do with the building and development of this county as it ever falls to the lot of any individual man. He served his community and country well and through his public service and personal qualities made hosts of friends throughout the county, who mourn

Judge Goodin was a pioneer in the good roads movement and is credited with having much to do with developing the present system of graveled roads. A feature writer in the Argus of March 11, 1926, has the following to say in this respect: "On the road question Judge Goodin has always been progressive enough to keep a mere pace or so ahead of the development. In all probability this farsightedness is at least partially responsible for the present system of good roads in Washington county. Continually he used every ounce of influence his office and personality bore to impress the need of better roads on the taxpayer. He says himself, that back in 1906 he saw the day when the horse-drawn vehicle would practically disappear from the roads. And in its place would come the automobile, which would mean a hard surfaced or macadam road."

What Other Editors Say

OAAA Unconstitutional

It was a foregone conclusion that, with the United States supreme court declaring the NRA in iolation of the principles of the constitution, judges of minor courts in various states would refer to the upreme court decision for guidance if and when tate Agricultural Adjustment Acts were challenged or all of the principles contained therein. Thereit is not surprising that an Oregon circuit idge has given an adverse decision against our tate AAA, and, if upheld by the supreme court, it vill invalidate eleven marketing agreements which, t is conceded by all except violators and others not willing to conform to them, have been productive of much good, especially to farmers, dairymen

It is not to be accepted as a mere coincidence that the decision of this circuit court judge follows, in its interpretation, the wording of the recent NRA decision of the U.S. supreme court, nor is it mere coincidence that the cause, in which the challenge to the state AAA is outlined, bears much similarity, as to code violation, to that which fially brought the supreme court decision. In the Oregon case, a well-known cut rate merchant sold-ice cream at 29 cents, 11 cents per quart below the agreed code price, and when an injunction was takagainst him, his attorneys countered with a de-arrer, which the circuit court has upheld. The main object in view in the adoption of the plane Thursday from San Fran-A. J. Manley. the farmer and dairyman, who had been ruthlessly chants who were willing to sell produce at cost or even less, in an effort to attract business. As always, the loss was passed on to the farmer, be-cause, also as always, he is at the far end of the line. While many of Oregon merchants were per-fectly willing to abide by the AAA codes, which assured both themselves and the producer of a fair return, there were a relative few who ran true to form and would not conform to code requirements. If the recent Oregon circuit court decision is for life. For instance if a person hires upheld in the higher court of this state, it may be possible to continue to afford some degree of proof this state, voluntary conformance to codes, such as is now being arranged in California. To our way of thinking there is dire need for a Golden Rule, based on fair play for all, instead of profit for a few.-Hood River News.

They Ask for It

The propaganda of preparation for the presi-The average man's idea of comfortable dent's tax on great wealth, gifts and inheritances, fortunes and parasitic in-laws. Their conduct has asked for it, both for the salvation of the worth-less scions and scionesses of great fortune and the welfare of the nation. They have successfully served missionaries for the soaking the rich program. Westbrook Pegler in the New York World Telegram summarizes their frivolities:

Park avenue, Reno and Palm Beach, Saratoga, Belmont and Louisville, ashore in the night clubs and pubs, afloat in big fat boats, racing stables of thoroughbred plugs which feed on finger-picked oats while babies pick at parbage cans. A polo string for Prince Mdivani, plus a palace in Venice and a racing cruiser, while the Canadian manager of the five-and-ten chain is explaining to a parliamentary commission why it was that he reduced by ten per cent the wages of the girls who were making from $7 to $10.80 a week and the stock of the firm was returning a profit of 20 per cent. He reduced wages because the girls in the United States stores had been similarly reduced. An offer of a thousand dollars a month to the fourth wife of Mr. Manville, who never did a lick of work in all his days—"the same," he explains, "as I offered all my wives."

The idle offspring of the multi-millionaires have grown up, frivoled, married, begotten more off-spring and "died in the luxury of kings at the expense of the people," many of them cynically ab-horring their country save as a source of income. They are the perfect fruit of the flower of plu-

Granting that the man who creates a real fortune or monopoly confers a boon on the people, how many generations after he is dead must the workers of America keep on paying his heirs for having cornered the stock market, built a railroad or watered and unloaded securities on investors? There should be an end to the debt some time, especially as repudiation is the fashion of nations.

Of them all Barbara Hutton has been the most cessful propagandist, for, as Pegler says, her income and name are associated with female drudgery
—under hard conditions, long hours, low wages, nickels and dimes and merchandise made by foreign labor, principally Japanese, which unjobs American labor. And she squanders the money thus made in buying and swapping foreign noblemen and living abroad and at sea in the lap of luxury.—Salem Capital Journal

The Public Friend

We have heard much of late about the Public Enemies. The United States government is pursuing certain conspicuous characters whom it declares to be Public Enemies, and it has disposed of several conspicuous figures in that class. There is a whole army of Public Enemies with whom the country has to contend, and many of them have never seen the inside of any prison.

Meanwhile we should recognize that we also have a great many public Friends, as well as Public Enemies, and warm tributes should be paid them, and people should be encouraged to qualify for this class. What are the characteristics of the Public

The Public Friend believes he must take some share of the labors of carrying on community work in his home town. If he is asked to take some office in some good community organization, he does not say, "O, no, I could not possibly do anything like that. You find him taking up tasks that are more or less distasteful. You will probably see him at your door some night, offering you an opportunity to give money to some good home town cause.

The Public Friend makes his purchases at home whenever he can, which is practically always. Public Friend always speaks good words for his home town. He does not think it smart or funny to take a superior attitude and point out its friendly spirit, and the public institutions built up over years of labor. We have many of these Public Friends in Royal Oak.—Tribune, Royal Oak, Mich.
